This course is an extension and continuation of Typographic Systems GDES 311. The course addresses the typographic principles of the grid, text typography, text hierarchies, and image integration, all within the context of a multipage format. Students must have working knowledge of Adobe InDesign, image scanning, and basic knowledge of Photoshop or be concurrently enrolled in Electronic Media/Production II EMDI 312 to gain admission to this course. Additional working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator is preferred. Formerly GD 306B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: GDES 311, EMDI 202

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 331 - Photographics I

Develops a designer's methodology and viewpoint to achieve both structure and meaning in photography, and as a way to extend the range of how objects and nature can be seen and translated using photographic processes. Students use both traditional photography and digital software to create hybrid photographic images. Formerly GD 310A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

GDES 334 - Font Design Lab

The emphasis of this course is on the design and production of an entire alphabet or limited set of letters to form distinct word picture as in a logotype. The work process seamlessly integrates hand and computer skills. Students rely on, expand, and also question existing conventions of the Roman alphabet. The course uses specialized type design software to make the new typefaces available in word processing or page layout environments. The course provides highly applicable professional skills.

Prerequisites: GDES 203

Graphic Design majors only.

GDES 335 - Single Image

This course explores the communication potential of imagery both in a single and/or serial format. Students develop an understanding of literal and abstract forms of expression and how they can be used to articulate and solve visual concepts. Formerly GD 326

Prerequisite: GDES 202

Student must have completed the first semester of their Sophomore year (45 credits). Open to majors in the College of Art and Design only. Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

GDES 336 - Visualizing Information

This elective course emphasizes the analytical understanding, purposeful structuring, and clear visual presentation of information-rich content. Issues of information design including accessibility, transparency, credibility, quantity, density, dimensionality, and utility, as well as universality and language independence are investigated. Applications including maps, guides, diagrams, instructions, timelines, charts, graphs, and tables are explored using both traditional and electronic media.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 201

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 401 - Design Studio

A wide-ranging exploration of the connections between image and text, and symbolic and narrative imagery. These studies are supported by inquiries into semiotics, information theory, and research methodology. This course uses both traditional and computer technologies within a thorough research process. Preliminary research and definition of a self-generated degree project is undertaken by Graphic Design majors in this course. Students should have expertise in Adobe InDesign, Adobe Illustrator, and Adobe Photoshop. Formerly GD 411A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 302

Open to Graphic Design majors only.

GDES 402 - Design Studio: Senior Project

A self-generated degree project involving research, proposals, complete design formulation, and final presentation. Topics are reviewed by a panel of faculty in Graphic Design; and the students are reviewed by an outside critic midway through the preliminary stages of development. This course uses both traditional and computer technologies within a thorough research process. Students should have expertise in Adobe InDesign, Adobe Illustrator, and Adobe Photoshop. Formerly GD 411B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 401

Open to Graphic Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 403 - Problem Solving

Develops approaches to solving communications problems of diverse character and increasingly practical application. It assumes a high level of formal competence and places special emphasis on working within technical and time constraints by developing clear and concise thought patterns. This course uses both traditional and computer technologies within a thorough research process. Students should have expertise in Adobe InDesign, Adobe Illustrator, Adobe Photoshop, Macromedia Director, Macromedia Flash, and Macromedia Dreamweaver. Formerly GD 412A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 302

Open to Graphic Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 404 - Problem Solving

A continuation of Problem Solving GDES 403. This course develops approaches to solving communications problems of broad scope and increasingly practical application. Students work within technical and time constraints while developing clear and concise thought patterns. The course assumes a high level of formal competence and places special emphasis on the development of unified visual and conceptual relationships across various formats and scale. Both traditional and computer technologies are used within a thorough research process. Students should have expertise in Adobe InDesign, Adobe Illustrator, Adobe Photoshop, Macromedia Director, Macromedia Flash, and Macromedia Dreamweaver. Formerly GD 412B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 403

Open to Graphic Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 411 - Advanced Typography

This elective course addresses typography as a primary vehicle to communicate information and as a support to images. Assignments range from informational design to expressive, content-based problems, to intuitive investigations and formal experiments. Although traditional methods of conceptualizing are used within a thorough visual process, extensive computer work is involved. Students should have expertise in Adobe InDesign, Adobe Illustrator, and Adobe Photoshop. Formerly GD 426

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 312

Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors and Typography minors. May be taken twice for credit.

GDES 690 - Independent Study

Independent Study offers a matriculated student the opportunity to initiate individual research or advanced projects that are beyond the limits of the standard curriculum, with limited supervision. Independent Study is available to Junior and Senior undergraduate students who have a minimum 2.5 GPA and to graduate students in good standing. Each Independent Study may be taken for one to three credits in Liberal Arts, 1.5 to six credits in CAD, and one to six credits in CPA and CMAC. Independent Study cannot fulfill major requirements. Independent Study may serve as free, studio, and liberal arts electives, depending on the topic of investigation. Students cannot apply more than 12 total credits of independent study towards their degree requirements.

Credits: 1.5 - 6 cr

GRAD 650 - University Seminar: Structure and Metaphor

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from the several graduate programs examine theoretical issues of structure and metaphor in relation to art and design. Topics include cognition and perception, meaning and representation, and systems of organization and expression. (May be taken to satisfy Aesthetics and Art Criticism co-requisites for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 691

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRAD 651 - University Seminar: Art and Society

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from all graduate programs examine theoretical issues relating to the place of art and design in society. Topics include the social role of the artist/designer, public policy and the arts, issues of post-modernism, and aesthetic and ethical implications of emerging arts communication technologies. (May be taken to satisfy Sociology/Anthropology corequisite for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 692

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRAD 652 - Studio and Text

Focuses on the creation and development of text in the context of the visual arts from text that generates the visual to text that is an essential part of the work. A concept-generating course, this combines the making of art and a writing workshop. Students may choose to work in any of various visual arts areas, including book arts, picture books, painting, printmaking, sculpture, photography, and multimedia. Formerly GR 610

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate students in the College of Art and Design only. May be taken twice for credit.

GRAD 690 - Independent Study

Independent Study offers a matriculated student the opportunity to initiate individual research or advanced projects that are beyond the limits of the standard curriculum, with limited supervision. Independent Study is available to Junior and Senior undergraduate students who have a minimum 2.5 GPA and to graduate students in good standing. Independent Study may serve as free, studio, and liberal arts electives, depending on the topic of investigation. Students cannot apply more than 12 total credits of independent study towards their degree requirements.

Credits: 1.5 - 6 cr

GRAD 750 - University Seminar: Criticism

An interdisciplinary seminar in which advanced graduate students from various disciplines in the visual arts further examine the nature of image-making with particular attention to the theories and applications of criticism. Formerly GR 791

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate students in the College of Art and Design only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRAE 699 - Topics

Graduate students may register for upper-level undergraduate liberal arts courses and studio electives for graduate credit. Graduate students are expected to contribute at a higher level in the classroom and have additional assignments (readings, papers, etc.) in order to be granted graduate credit. Students are advised to select an area of study that broadens or intensifies their background in the arts, education, and related disciplines. Often this work contributes directly to the preparation of the graduate project proposal. In order to register for an upper-level undergraduate course and receive credit, the student must submit a completed special topics/independent study form to the Office of the Registrar.

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 1.5 - 6 cr

GRCR 611 - Major Studio I/Ceramics

Evaluation of the student's artistic involvement, projecting and testing options for the direction of the student's graduate work. Formerly CR 610

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Ceramics majors only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 6 cr, 10 hrs

GRCR 612 - Major Studio II/Ceramics

Further exploration of options, with increased awareness of theoretical issues and personal vision. Greater focus on the student's work, with a view to completing the repertoire of skills and expression in the medium needed to undertake a thesis project. Formerly CR 611

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRCR 611

Open to graduate Ceramics majors only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 6 cr, 10 hrs

GRCR 660 - Ceramics

Through lecture and demonstration, students learn basic skills such as handbuilding, throwing, and press molding with an introduction to loading and firing kilns. Mixing clay, slips, and glazes is also covered. Meets with CRCM 220. In order to receive graduate credit, graduate students are expected to exceed undergraduate course expectations by applying the skills and competencies outlined in the syllabus to graduate-level concepts that typically relate to their major program of study. In this regard, graduate students taking this graduate elective are required to meet with the instructor prior to the start of class to determine and outline the nature of the requirements to be met. Formerly CR 656

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs. Not open to graduate Ceramics majors. May be taken twice for credit.

GREM 601 - Electronic Media/Production I

Addresses the development of foundation computer skills in image scanning technology, desktop publishing, digital photographic technologies, and basic output procedures. Technical expertise and efficient working methodologies are applied to problems brought into the class from other design courses as well as from both individual and group-assigned projects. All software is standard to current graphic design industry practices. Meets with EMDI 201. In order to receive graduate credit, graduate students are expected to exceed undergraduate course expectations by applying the skills and competencies outlined in the syllabus to graduate-level concepts that typically relate to their major program of study. In this regard, graduate students taking this graduate elective are required to meet with the instructor prior to the start of class to determine and outline the nature of the requirements to be met. Formerly EM 601

GREM 610 - Digital Multimedia

The elements of digital multimedia production techniques address the integration and creation of digital media for websites and interactive programs. The course involves hands-on production experience as well as perspective on developments in this rapidly growing field through the readings and lectures. Students create interactive projects involving digital imagery, video, sound, and animation. A third of the semester is dedicated to authoring a website. Software utilized includes Director, Flash, Dreamweaver, iMovie, iDVD, Garageband, and Audacity. Emphasis is on clear communication and the creation of intuitive interactive interfaces. Graduate students generally integrate projects that reflect research or thesis concerns. Formerly EM 610

GRFA 611 - Independent Studio I

Intended to assist students in establishing independent production in their major discipline while acquiring the ability to integrate studio production with the demands of off-campus life. At the conclusion of Summer I and subsequently, Winter Critique I, the student and faculty mentor agree on a plan of work to be pursued during the off-campus semester, which is a continuation of work begun in the previous semester. The students are required to propose a direction for their investigations and have access to off-campus studio space in which to carry out the proposal. Enrollment in the Independent Studio requires a commitment of 150 hours, equivalent to 10 hours of studio activity per week during the 15-week off-campus semester. The studio mentor meets with the student five times during the semester at three-week intervals, reviewing the student's progress for a 1/2 hour session. The first meeting may take place at the mentor's studio. The last meeting is the final critique of the semester, which takes place at the Winter Critique held at the University. Formerly FA 691

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRCR 611, GRPT 611 or GRSC 611 Corequisite: GRFA 621

Open to majors in the Summer MFA program only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 10 hrs

GRFA 612 - Independent Studio II

GRFA 613 - Graduate Drawing

Advanced studio develops and expands the student's visual language and skills while challenging their conceptual approach to drawing by examining and applying the use of materials and methods having historic and cultural origins. Formerly FA 611

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the Summer MFA program only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRFA 614 - Studio Topics

This course brings together students from each of the major disciplines to explore studio issues common to all visual arts. Formerly FA 610

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the Summer MFA program only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

GRFA 621 - Independent Writing Project I

The Independent Writing Project is a corequisite of the Independent Studio I and II, and is intended to inform the student's ongoing Independent Studio investigations undertaken during the fall and spring off-campus semesters. The student proposes an area of research intended as a continued examination of topics introduced during the previous summer seminars, Structure and Metaphor or Art and Society. The student is encouraged to explore through writing the range of issues emanating from seminar reading and discussion and the relationship of these external influences to the development of themes and directions being explored in the studio work. Formerly FA 695

GRFA 740 - Professional Practices

This course is designed to familiarize students with methods, practices, and professional standards in preparation for the Thesis Exhibition and eventual entry into the visual arts professions. Formerly FA 612

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the Summer MFA program only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRFA 781 - Thesis Writing Project I

The Thesis Writing Project is a corequisite of Thesis Preparation I and II, and takes place during the fall and spring off-campus semesters. Research for the Thesis Writing Project is intended to inform the student's second-year Independent Studio activity, which focuses on identifying and developing potential directions for the thesis exhibition and written thesis. The student is expected to consider issues raised during the previous summer's seminar that are particularly relevant to the more focused direction of their studio work. The student independently formulates a proposal and bibliography for a formal paper to be based upon the more developed direction of their work. The range of issues considered for further investigation may include aesthetic, conceptual, technical, or visual culture issues as well as the relationship of the major work to other disciplines. Formerly FA 781

GRFA 783 - Thesis Preparation I

Following the successful completion of Summer II and the MFA Candidacy Review, the student is declared a candidate by the graduate faculty and may begin independently producing a body of work intended for eventual presentation in a thesis exhibition following the successful completion of Summer III. In consultation with the studio mentor, the student submits Thesis Preparation Plan I, identifying and describing a direction of investigation to be undertaken during the fall semester. The student is expected to identify specific issues to be addressed: intended focus of the work, considerations of technique, materials, scale, location, etc. The student must propose a personal timetable for accomplishing the thesis and identify the sources that will be used in preparation for the exhibition. Enrollment in Thesis Preparation I and II requires a commitment of 150 hours, equivalent to 10 hours of studio activity per week during the 15-week off-campus semester. Formerly FA 793

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the Summer MFA program only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

GRFA 784 - Thesis Preparation II

In consultation with the studio mentor, thesis candidates propose further development of directions begun in studio work the previous semester by submitting Thesis Preparation Plan II for the spring semester to the mentor. Formerly FA 794

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRFA 783

Open to majors in the Summer MFA program only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

GRFA 785 - MFA Thesis Exhibition

The MFA degree certifies that the artist has attained a high level of competence and independent judgment in the discipline and is qualified to stand with his/her mentors as a master artist. The thesis exhibition and accompanying written statement are intended to serve as a demonstration of this mastery. During the final semester, criticism-based research is undertaken as a continuation of the summer seminar in Criticism and is intended to assist the MFA candidate in completing the written component of the thesis requirements. Formerly FA 795

GRID 603 - Design Studio I

The major multidisciplinary studio where design ideology, process, development, and production are emphasized through a collaboration with one of MID's strategic industry partners. Project teams will combine first and second year students. First year students will be introduced to the MID design culture and second year students will have the opportunity to further improve their abilities to apply the design process while acting in a leadership role. Issues discussed and studied are: learning and design process informed by applied design research, communicated through clearly designed information, and driven by collaborative design development. The design process considers above issued in the formulation of a design program; conceptual abstract studies; physical and material investigations; simulated and physical representation; and the application of manufacturing. Specific design skill sets covered in GRID 604 Design Methods I, complement this studio's projects.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GRID 604

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs.

GRID 604 - Design Methods I

As a complement to the studio course (GRID 603), this course helps to develop the skills and methods required to realize successful design projects. Put into practice, these "tools" enable and support a design process that is increasingly shared with other disciplines, facilitates collective learning, and produces actionable strategies for change. Special emphasis is placed on participant field research, system mapping, the development of design-orientated scenarios and the ability to communicate design thinking and concepts in a clear and compelling way. Content of the coursework comes directly from the studio projects.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GRID 603

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs.

GRID 605 - Design Studio II

This design studio offers the opportunity to launch individual or group design projects that are not connected to the on-going industry partnerships. Projects are framed through critical issues and connected to the on-going industry partnerships. Projects are framed through critical issues and take into consideration personal interests of the individual student. The primary goal of this course is to increasingly strengthen the student's ability to engage and advance critical issues through demonstrating and testing design concepts that can lead to products, systems and/or services. Students will be able to gauge their personal strengths and weaknesses, and orient/position themselves for the subsequent summer internship.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GRID 606 Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs.

GRID 606 - Design Methods II

As a complement to the Design Studio II course (GRID 605), this course builds on the introduction to the design process, its tools and methods, to further develop the skills and methods in GRID 604 in the previous semester. The course further develops field research methods and principles (e.g. Universal Design, Human Factors) and refines mapping, modeling and presentation techniques. This course also supports students' portfolio development and self-promotion in order to secure an appropriate internship for the summer.

Corequisite: GRID 605

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs.

GRID 611 - Design Seminar: Concepts and Contexts

A seminar devoted to examining the shift in cultural, technological, material, and professional landscapes that a graduate design candidate must navigate. Through readings, presentations, and discussions, students explore how these evolved contexts are changing the nature of design practice and thinking. Special emphasis is placed on developing key concepts and ideas that inform the work that the students undertake throughout their program. The seminar works in parallel with the studio course; topics and themes covered in the seminar are germane to the studio projects. Formerly ID 600

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GRID 614 - Materials and Processes Seminar

A writing-intensive course introducing the student to the nature of materials used in industrial products and the various processes by which they are formed. Films, lectures, and field trips familiarize students with wood, metal, and plastic materials as well as processes such as injection molding, laser cutting, and stereolithography. Emphasis is placed on the study of material characteristics and the appropriate use of forming methods. Introduction to technical information, specification writing, and professional communications. Meets with IDES 232. In order to receive graduate credit, graduate students are expected to exceed undergraduate course expectations by applying the skills and competencies outlined in the syllabus to graduate-level concepts that typically relate to their major program of study. In this regard, graduate students taking this graduate elective are required to meet with the instructor prior to the start of class to determine and outline the nature of the requirements to be met. Formerly ID 614

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate students in the College of Art and Design only. May be taken twice for credit.

GRID 624 - Architectonics

An elective course intended as a multidisciplinary forum for the investigation, appreciation, and design of architectural space, structures, and systems. Using in-class exercises as a laboratory for creative and collaborative exchange, students learn and apply alternative design processes, design vocabulary, user-centered experience, and design. This course develops concepts and analytical studies of objects/spaces through various 2D and 3D drawing/modeling techniques and culminates in an actual built/alterd environment. Meets with IDES 371. In order to receive graduate credit, graduate students are expected to exceed undergraduate course expectations by applying the skills and competencies outlined in the syllabus to graduate-level concepts that typically relate to their major program of study. In this regard, graduate students taking this graduate elective are required to meet with the instructor prior to the start of class to determine and outline the nature of the requirements to be met. Formerly ID 612

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate students in the College of Art and Design only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GRID 690 - Independent Study

Independent Study offers a matriculated student the opportunity to initiate individual research or advanced projects that are beyond the limits of the standard curriculum, with limited supervision. Independent Study is available to Junior and Senior undergraduate students who have a minimum 2.5 GPA and to graduate students in good standing. Each Independent Study may be taken for one to three credits in Liberal Arts, 1.5 to six credits in CAD, and one to six credits in CPA and CMAC. Independent Study cannot fulfill major requirements. Independent Study may serve as free, studio, and liberal arts electives, depending on the topic of investigation. Students cannot apply more than 12 total credits of independent study towards their degree requirements.

GRID 699 - Topics

Graduate students may register for upper-level undergraduate liberal arts courses and studio electives for graduate credit. Graduate students are expected to contribute at a higher level in the classroom and have additional assignments (readings, papers, etc.) in order to be granted graduate credit. Students are advised to select an area of study that broadens or intensifies their background in the arts, education, and related disciplines. Often this work contributes directly to the preparation of the graduate project proposal. In order to register for an upper-level undergraduate course and receive credit, the student must submit a completed special topics/independent study form to the Office of the Registrar.

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Repeatable for credit.

GRID 703 - Advanced Design Studio

The major multidisciplinary studio where design ideology, process, development, and production are emphasized through a collaboration with one of MID's strategic industry partners. Project teams will combine first and second year students. First year students will be introduced to the MID design culture and second year students will have the opportunity to further improve their abilities to apply the design process while acting in a leadership role. Issues discussed and studied are: learning and design process informed by applied design research, communicated through clearly designed information, and driven by collaborative design development. The design process considers above issues in the formulation of a design program; conceptional abstract studies; physical and material investigations; simulated and physical representation; and the application of manufacturing. Specific design skill sets covered in GRID 604, Design Methods I, complement this studio's projects.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GRID 704

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr

GRID 704 - Advanced Design Methods

Building on the design methods classes offered during the first year, the laboratory offers a series of tutorials in order to round out students' particular skill sets. This course will further support professional networking through development of student's portfolio websites and other outreach projects.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GRID 703

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GRID 711 - ID Seminar: Professional Development

A professional seminar that addresses the individual career interests of each degree candidate especially as they relate to the student's thesis project. The product of this course is the formulation of a career plan and objectives tailored to each candidate, and further development of a portfolio, resume, and other documentation targeted toward the practical application of the candidate's knowledge and skill. Formerly ID 700

Prerequisites & Notes

Adv. Design Studio

GRID 712 - Design Entrepreneurship

This course will develop the tools that take ideas from inception to business plan, to put their ideas into idioms that make sense to industry, and to create the viable means for connecting new product and service development to sustainable outcomes. This course will explore new business incubation; micro business practices, emerging models of design consultancies, and, practices of innovation in a global economy.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Master of Industrial Design Majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs.

GRID 720 - ID Seminar: Professional Development

A professional seminar that addresses the individual career interests of each degree candidate especially as they relate to the student's thesis project. The product of this course is the formulation of a career plan and objectives tailored to each candidate, and the further development of a portfolio, resume, and other documentation targeted toward the practical application of the candidate's knowledge and skill.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRID 703

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs.

GRID 721 - Masters Thesis Project

A tutorial providing the opportunity for individual candidates to shape and present the outcome of their programs of study in a manner that directly reflects their career objectives. Projects may be carried out independently, under industry sponsorship, or as part of a research project, based on a plan produced and approved through the thesis director.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRID 703

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

GRID 722 - Masters Thesis Documentation

A tutorial providing the opportunity for individual candidates to develop and present their thesis in a manner that directly reflects their career objectives. The thesis project and document must exhibit an in-depth exploration of an approved topic, which addresses an area of importance to the Industrial Design field and contributes to the body of knowledge pertaining to that area. It may be carried out under industry sponsorship, as a part of a research project, or be independently based.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRID 703

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GRID 795 - Design Internship

A supervised practicum in a cooperating business, consultancy or design firm. The internship represents full-time employment under the mentorship of a professional; it provides practical on-site experience in which the intern is integrated into the professional staff, assuming professional-level responsibilities and experience. A University Professor also observes, advises, and assesses the student during the course of the internship.

GRIL 699 - Topics

Graduate students may register for upper-level undergraduate liberal arts courses and studio electives for graduate credit. Graduate students are expected to contribute at a higher level in the classroom and have additional assignments (readings, papers, etc.) in order to be granted graduate credit. Students are advised to select an area of study that broadens or intensifies their background in the arts, education, and related disciplines. GRPR 434 - Book Production

This advanced course focuses on the development and production of a printed book or portfolio of works: design and formatting of a publication including the investigation of sequence, page design, and binding possibilities; hands-on experience in the preparation of images for press production, pre-press techniques; and assisting the Master Printer in the printing. All work is produced in the Borowsky Center for Publication Arts, the University's offset lithography facility. Students may choose to collaborate on projects or work independently. Formerly PR 425

GRPR 601 - Colloquium: Text & Image

The focus is on the development of the student's sensitivity to language and verbal constructs and an understanding of the relation of text to image and structure. The course also supports the development of the student's creative writing, in particular in the context of artists' books. Formerly PR 600A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 602 - Colloquium: History of the Book

Hands-on study of rare books and manuscripts from antiquity to the present, with discussions dealing with their structural, historical, and artistic significance. The class meets at the Library Company of Philadelphia, with field trips to local special collections. Formerly PR 600B

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 603 - Colloquium: The Artist's Book

An introduction to the history of the artist's book and an investigation into the artist's book as a complex art form. Classes consist of discussion of readings and the examination of artists' books in the Special Collections of various libraries and cultural institutions.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 611 - Book Arts Studio: Color/Mark

Provides the student with a broad range of image-making approaches. Personal imagery is investigated through various printmaking and drawing techniques. Formerly PR 610A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate students in the College of Art and Design only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GRPR 616 - Book Arts Studio: Concept, Image, Type

Introduction to practical and conceptual concerns intrinsic to the production of books and prints. Emphasis is on both print processes, including hands-on experience with letterpress, lithography (plate and offset) and digital printmaking, and conceptual/production processes, including creating dummies and pre-press work. Conceptual explorations further the development of the student's visual language.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

GRPR 617 - Book Arts Studio: Projects

Building on what has been learned in the previous semester, students continue to develop their skills and techniques and explore their particular interests in the creation of several works.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRPR 611 Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

GRPR 621 - Bookbinding

Basic book structures are explored with emphasis on sound conservation techniques and good craftsmanship. Formerly PR 623A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Book Arts majors only. Experience required – See Department for information.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 622 - Bookbinding

Historic book structures serve as models and departure points for innovative bindings. Formerly PR 623B

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Book Arts majors only. Experience required – See Department for information.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 631 - Graduate Papermaking

An advanced studio course based on the in-depth involvement with handmade paper as a creative artistic medium. Digital slide lectures and demonstrations on Western and Japanese pulp preparation, sheet formation, and pressing and drying techniques are presented. Students create papers and images using a variety of handmade pulps and fibers. Book structures unique to the handmade paper process and the creation of the unique papers specifically for prints and books are presented. Formerly PR 500

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to graduate students in the College of Art and Design. Open to Senior Fine Arts majors and graduate students in the College of Art and Design only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GRPR 632 - Non-Toxic Printmaking Methods

Introduction to a range of printmaking media using nontoxic processes and materials. Designed for graduate students who are experienced artists with an understanding of their personal imagery and approach to visual expression, but who are not necessarily proficient printmakers. Students are offered a number of solutions to working in the studio, solvent and acid free. Topics covered include intaglio (using water process photographic plates), drypoint, relief, collograph, monotype, and screen-printing. Formerly PR 611

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate students in the College of Art and Design only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GRPR 633 - Digital Printmaking

An opportunity for continued investigation within the various printmaking processes. Photoshop is introduced and emphasis is on the use of the computer as an image-making tool within the context of printmaking, and the integration of idea and process. Meets with FAPR 411. In order to receive graduate credit, graduate students are expected to exceed undergraduate course expectations by applying the skills and competencies outlined in the syllabus to graduate-level concepts that typically relate to their major program of study. In this regard, graduate students taking this graduate elective are required to meet with the instructor prior to the start of class to determine and outline the nature of the requirements to be met. Formerly PR 613

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate students in the College of Art and Design only. May be taken twice for credit. Computer literacy required.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GRPR 690 - Independent Study

Independent Study offers a matriculated student the opportunity to initiate individual research or advanced projects that are beyond the limits of the standard curriculum, with limited supervision. Independent Study is available to Junior and Senior undergraduate students who have a minimum 2.5 GPA and to graduate students in good standing. Independent Study may serve as free, studio, and liberal arts electives, depending on the topic of investigation. Students cannot apply more than 12 total credits of independent study towards their degree requirements.

GRPR 695 - Graduate Book Arts Internship

A supervised practicum, working with practicing artists, with non-profit arts organizations, in print shops, and in book and paper conservation laboratories. Students gain knowledge of the field and hands-on experience in a variety of professional settings. One goal of the internship is to assist them in testing and expanding their professional skills and knowledge and help them make informed career decisions.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 701 - Colloquium: Professional Practices

Professional practices and issues related to the fields of printmaking and book and publication arts are explored through discussions, lectures and field trips. Formerly PR 700A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 702 - Colloquium: Professional Practices

Focuses on the completion of the student's professional portfolio. Formerly PR 700B.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRPR 701 Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 721 - Bookbinding

Continued investigation of the book structure at an advanced technical level. Individual attention to developing creative solutions to support book content starts in the first semester. Formerly PR 723A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRPR 622 Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 722 - Bookbinding

Through critiques and individual instruction, the second semester of this investigation into book structure is devoted to developing structures that support thesis work. Formerly PR 723B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRPR 721 Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 785 - Thesis Studio I

In conjunction with the faculty advisor, the MFA candidate develops an individual course of study and defines the projects, in preparation for the required Thesis Exhibition during the final semester.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: GRPR 617 Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

GRPR 786 - Thesis Studio II

The planning and execution of a mature body of work to be prepared for thesis exhibition at the end of the semester.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: GRPR 785 Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

GRPT 611 - Major Studio I/Painting

Evaluation of the student's artistic involvement, projecting and testing options for the direction of the student's graduate work. Formerly PT 610

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Painting majors only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 6 cr, 10 hrs

GRPT 612 - Major Studio II/Painting

Further exploration of the options, with increased awareness of theoretical issues and personal vision. Greater focus on the student's work, with a view to refining the repertoire of skills and expression in the medium needed to undertake a thesis project. Formerly PT 611

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRPT 611 Open to graduate Painting majors only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 6 cr, 10 hrs

GRPT 690 - Independent Study

Independent Study offers a matriculated student the opportunity to initiate individual research or advanced projects that are beyond the limits of the standard curriculum, with limited supervision. Independent Study is available to Junior and Senior undergraduate students who have a minimum 2.5 GPA and to graduate students in good standing. Each Independent Study may be taken for one to three credits in Liberal Arts, 1.5 to six credits in CAD, and one to six credits in CPA and CMAC. Independent Study cannot fulfill major requirements. Independent Study may serve as free, studio, and liberal arts electives, depending on the topic of investigation. Students cannot apply more than 12 total credits of independent study towards their degree requirements.

GRPT 711 - Major Studio III/Painting

Planning and initiation of a sustained body of mature work to be presented in a thesis exhibition following the thesis exhibition semester. Formerly PT 710

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRPT 612 Open to graduate Painting majors only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 6 cr, 10 hrs

GRSC 611 - Major Studio I/Sculpture

Evaluation of the student's artistic involvement, projecting and testing options for the direction of the student's graduate work. Formerly SC 610

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Sculpture students only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 6 cr, 10 hrs

GRSC 612 - Major Studio II/Sculpture

Further exploration of the options, with increased awareness of theoretical issues and personal vision. Greater focus in the student's work, with a view to completing the repertoire of skills and expression in the medium needed to undertake a thesis project. Formerly SC 611

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRSC 611 Open to graduate Sculpture students only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 6 cr, 10 hrs

GRSC 621 - Advanced Projects

Provides a studio context where maturing self initiated areas of concentration in sculpture can be developed to fruition on an advanced level. Whatever the direction, a critical emphasis is placed through both open and devised assignments on how materials and forms compatible to personal statements are found. Meets with FASC 421. In order to receive graduate credit, graduate students are expected to exceed undergraduate course expectations by applying the skills and competencies outlined in the syllabus to graduate-level concepts that typically relate to their major program of study. In this regard, graduate students taking this graduate elective are required to meet with the instructor prior to the start of class to determine and outline the nature of the requirements to be met. Formerly SC 641

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs. May be taken twice for credit.

GRSC 631 - Molding and Casting

Covers processes and techniques utilizing plaster, rubber, plastics, clays, and wax for making hard and flexible molds and for casting sculpture in durable materials. Provides a thorough foundation in foundry practices, including wax preparation, investing, pouring bronze or aluminum, chasing, finishing, and patinating finished metal casts. Meets with FASC 321. In order to receive graduate credit, graduate students are expected to exceed undergraduate course expectations by applying the skills and competencies outlined in the syllabus to graduate-level concepts that typically relate to their major program of study. In this regard, graduate students taking this graduate elective are required to meet with the instructor prior to the start of class to determine and outline the nature of the requirements to be met. IDES 101 - Freshman I.D.

This course introduces first-year students to the issues surrounding the profession and highlights its importance in informing culture and shaping the way we live. Students are exposed to the fundamental skills required to support the process of concept ideation, design development, and presentation of products and furniture. These fundamentals are introduced through in-class exercises, lectures by visiting professionals, and direct involvement in relevant activities within the Industrial Design Department itself. Formerly ID 113

Priority enrollment to Foundation majors. Student must NOT have completed the second semester of their Sophomore year (45 credits).

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

IDES 201 - Studio 1: Projects Studio

A conceptual and practical understanding of design and three-dimensional problem-solving processes. This studio is taught in a collaborative manner, with two instructors conducting projects individually or as a team in order to provide focused instruction and integrated experiences covering a wide range of subjects including the tools, processes, and languages of design and model making. Emphasis is on the development of three-dimensional model making skills, problem solving and creative thinking and their application to problems of design. Formerly ID 200A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation
Open to Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

IDES 202 - Studio 1: Projects Studio

A conceptual and practical understanding of design and three-dimensional problem-solving processes. This studio is taught in a collaborative manner, with two instructors conducting projects individually or as a team in order to provide focused instruction and integrated experiences covering a wide range of subjects including the tools, processes, and languages of design and model making. Emphasis is on the development of three-dimensional model making skills, problem solving and creative thinking and their application to problems of design. Formerly ID 200B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: IDES 201

Open to Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

IDES 221 - Studio 2: Techniques

This studio assists the student to acquire essential two-dimensional representational skills to support the process of design, including production and presentation. It is taught in a collaborative manner, with the instructors conducting projects individually or as a team in order to provide focused instruction and integrated experiences over a wide range of subjects, including the tools, processes, and languages of conceptual drawing, rendering, and detailing using both the computer and traditional media as means to assist design and control production. Principles of technical specification and machine control are introduced as are concepts such as rapid photocopying, computer-integrated manufacturing, parts reduction through integration, and other techniques for efficient production. Students learn to apply these techniques to design problems addressed in IDES 201: Projects Studio. Formerly ID 220A

IDES 231 - Design Issues Seminar

This course is designed to assist the student to develop an understanding of the major issues for design in modern society. Discussions range from issues such as the ecological responsibility of designers to the contributions of individual designers and design organizations throughout the history of the discipline. Assignments include research and demonstration projects that explore ideas and illuminate ethical, practical, and moral issues with which designers should be concerned. Students prepare information and present their views on issues through written, oral, and visual means. Formerly ID 290

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation

Open to Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

IDES 232 - Materials & Processes Seminar

A writing-intensive course introducing the student to the nature of materials used in industrial products and the various processes by which they are formed. Films, lectures, and field trips familiarize students with wood, metal, and plastic materials as well as processes such as injection molding, laser cutting, and stereolithography. Emphasis is placed on the study of material characteristics and the appropriate use of forming methods. Introduction to technical information, specification writing, and professional communications. Graduate students may register for this course under GRID 614. Formerly ID 214

IDES 301 - Studio 3: Projects Studio

Following a year of basic design process, methods, and vocabulary introduction, the Junior Studio sequence focuses on solving more advanced design process and project opportunities through applied integration with Human Factors, Design Semantics, and Design Communication skills. The first semester offers more advanced design projects exploring user-centered design and creative exploration of industrial materials usage. The second semester continues with a focus on collaboration with various community groups and/or industry-sponsored projects. Formerly ID 300A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: IDES 202, IDES 222, IDES 231 Corequisites: IDES 321, IDES 331, IDES 332

Open to Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

IDES 321 - Studio 4: Techniques

Assists the student in developing graphic communication skills using computational media and applying these skills to both two- and three-dimensional images and presentations. The student is taught to conceptualize, develop, detail, present, and communicate design ideas through graphic design, computer imaging, three-dimensional computer modeling, basic animation, and interactive design presentation. The first semester focuses on integrating graphic software and the development of printed presentations. The second semester focuses on the development of interactive digital presentations. Formerly ID 320A

IDES 331 - Human Factors Seminar

The object of this research-intensive course is to develop an ability to apply technology effectively to meet human needs through the study of human engineering principles for the design of products and equipment. Human anatomy, anthropometrics and motion, and strength of body components are considered as are sensory systems, human perception, and sensitivities. Lectures are complemented by laboratory experiments designed to teach students methods of testing and evaluating their own product design concepts in human terms. Concepts of scientific writing and reporting are demonstrated through the documentation of coursework. Formerly ID 326

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: IDES 301, IDES 232, IDES 321, IDES 332

Open to Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

IDES 332 - Design Semantics Seminar

This seminar addresses design as a languaging process of social interaction. Semantic principles and design vocabulary are introduced through lectures, weekly readings, discussions, and exercises. Students work on individual as well as team-based projects to increase their competence in translating these ideas, concepts, and principles into design practices, applying replicable design methods towards proposing particular products whose meanings matter and whose use is dominated by facets of human understanding. Formerly ID 327

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: IDES 202 IDES 222 IDES 231

Open to Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

IDES 371 - Architectonics

An elective course intended as a multidisciplinary forum for the investigation, appreciation, and design of architectural space, structures, and systems. Using in-class exercises as a laboratory for creative and collaborative exchange, students learn alternative design processes, design vocabulary, user-centered experience and design. This course develops concepts and analytical studies of objects/spaces through various 2D and 3D drawing/modeling techniques and culminates in an actual built/alterd environment. Graduate students may register for this course under GRID 624. Formerly ID 312

IDES 401 - Studio 5: Projects Studio

These studio courses focus on decisive and responsible positions in formulating new design directions. Building upon past learning, projects sharpen fundamental skills of sketching (2D & 3D), design drawing, computer modeling, prototyping and conceptual diagramming. Students are encouraged through critical discourse and research on historical and contemporary material of cultural shifts to formulate their own ideology. Project proposals forward questions such as social context, ergonomics, and ecological consequences. Students are expected to identify local stakeholders (industry, users, designers, etc.) and ask them to be topic advisors as appropriate. First semester projects are dedicated to three fast-paced, highly theoretical, predefined topics. The next semester is devoted to further development of one of these projects. This final semester-long project works toward project closure and pragmatic articulation, ready to be shown both inside and outside an academic context. Formerly ID 400A

IDES 432 - Design Practice Seminar

Exposes the student to industrial design professional practice through discussion, lectures, and research. The following subjects are addressed: 1. Running a practice 2. Legalities and contracts 3. Publications/exhibitions 4. Client interaction 5. Job search, recruiters and directories 6. Networking (etiquette and strategy) 7. Work structure (internship, freelance, in-house etc.). Visitors and field trips represent a broad spectrum of the design community including design shop owners, design curators from galleries or museums, industrial design entrepreneurs, and copyright lawyers. Formerly ID 490B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: IDES 431

Open to Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

ILUS 101 - Foundation Illustration

Within the context of illustration assignments, students are introduced to a variety of media, methods, styles, and techniques used to create both black-and-white and color illustrations. The course includes conceptual, perceptual, and technical problems. The development of narrative skills, logical steps to problem solving, research, and creative thinking is also covered. Numerous presentations are made by guest illustrators. Formerly IL 100

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Foundation majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

ILUS 201 - Pictorial Foundation

Introduction to drawing and painting skills as they relate to illustration. Objective visual perception, clarity in drawing, and technical facility are stressed. Students are exposed to visual communications, strategies, and design concepts through exposure to art history and the field of contemporary illustration. Formerly IL 200A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FNDP 111, FNDP 121

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 202 - Pictorial Foundation

Introduction to drawing and painting skills as they relate to illustration. Objective visual perception, clarity in drawing, and technical facility are stressed. Students are exposed to visual communications, strategies, and design concepts through exposure to art history and the field of contemporary illustration. Formerly IL 200B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: ILUS 201

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors.

ILUS 211 - Figure Anatomy

Focus on the investigation and application of line, plane, mass, light and shade, shadow, perspective, anatomy, and proportion as they relate to figure drawing. Weekly sessions include a lecture, demonstrations from the skeleton, and drawing from life. Formerly IL 202A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors. May be taken twice for credit.

ILUS 212 - Figure Anatomy

Focus on the investigation and application of line, plane, mass, light and shade, shadow, perspective, anatomy, and proportion as they relate to figure drawing. Weekly sessions include a lecture, demonstrations from the skeleton, and drawing from life. Formerly IL 202B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: ILUS 211

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 220 - Typography

Beginning studies in the form, use, nomenclature, and history of typography. Individual letters, word formations, text arrangements, and the application of type to simple communication exercises. Use of Macintosh computer for generating type and industry-accepted software is used. Formerly IL 204

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FNDP 111, FNDP 121

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 280 - Anatomy Elective

Focus on the investigation and application of line, plane, mass, light and shade, shadow, perspective, anatomy, and proportion as they relate to figure drawing. Weekly sessions include a lecture, demonstrations from the skeleton, and drawing from life. Formerly IL 208

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 285 - Drawing for Animators

Focuses on introducing and developing the skills and disciplines needed for good figurative animation drawing. The primary issues of anatomical figure drawing with a strong emphasis on the structure and solidity of the figure, good proportions, and specific movement and gesture as they relate to the model. Topics also covered: two-dimensional versus three-dimensional ways of translating form; how perspective and viewpoint are used with the figure and their effect on scale; exaggerated foreshortening techniques; diagrammatic and expressive line quality; facial expressions; hand and foot studies; capturing movement through gesture; and introduction to animal drawing for animation. Formerly IL 205

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Animation and Film/Animation majors. May be taken twice for credit.

ILUS 301 - Illustration Methods

The development of narrative imagery, pictorial illusion, and space, and their combined potential for communication. Procedures focus on developing visual awareness, personal imagery, and conceptual directions. Direct drawing situations and photographic reference (existing or student-produced) also serve as source material for pictorial development. Various media and technical procedures are explored. Assignments and lectures focus on the requirements of applied illustration. Formerly IL 300A

ILUS 312 - Figure Utilization

Studies of the figure in narrative contexts are explored, as is work from single and grouped models, nude and costumed. Concentration is on developing compositions and concepts from different and often combined resources. Drawing and painting techniques are utilized. Formerly IL 303

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: ILUS 321

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 320 - Design Methods

Within the context of design/illustration projects, a basic understanding of how artwork is reproduced in commercial print media. Emphasis is on the relationship between electronic media and production techniques. Specific programs utilized include: Adobe InDesign, Adobe Illustrator and Adobe Photoshop. Formerly IL 301

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: ILUS 220

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors. Junior/Senior preferred.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 321 - Figurative Communication

Emphasis on working from life. The course focuses on the use of the figure and or still life objects to communicate concepts in the figurative context. Drawing and painting media are explored. Formerly IL 302

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: ILUS 212 Corequisite: ILUS 301

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 322 - Sequential Format

Course focuses on sequential formats as they relate to illustration and graphic design. Potential areas of inquiry: brochures, storyboards, simple animations, slide presentations, websites, multipage spreads, and identity programs. Formerly IL 304

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: ILUS 320

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 380 - Children's Book Illustration

The design and illustration of children's books. Emphasis on the stages of development of a book from manuscript through dummy design to finished art. Professional practice and working with editors and art directors are discussed. Students become familiar with the work of past and present book illustration and design. Formerly IL 310

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 112

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors. May be taken twice for credit. Junior/Senior preferred.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 401 - Illustration

Assignments revolve around specific areas of illustration—advertising, book, documentary, editorial, and institutional. Emphasis is on communication, personal viewpoint, and focused technique that are practical and relevant, to professional needs and demands. A senior thesis project, the William H. Ely Illustration Exhibition, is incorporated into the late fall and early spring semesters. Formerly IL 400A

Prerequisites & Notes

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 480 - Communication Workshop

Structured as a design studio, the workshop brings Graphic Design and Illustration majors and their respective faculty together to produce posters for the School of Theater Arts productions. Students are challenged with real-life, professional design studio experiences: working with a client on deadline from concept, illustration, and design through publication in the University's Borowsky Center for Publication Arts. Junior and Senior Graphic Design and Illustration majors only, approved by faculty advisors. Formerly IL 402

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 202 or ILUS 202

Student must have completed the first semester of their Sophomore year (45 credits). May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

ILUS 482 - Illustration Workshop: Personal Viewpoint

A special elective course for qualified Junior and Senior Illustration majors. The Department invites three of America's most accomplished illustrators to share their talent, insights, and expertise by finding and emphasizing the personal conceptual viewpoint of each student. The goal is to meld that identity with each student's developing technique to create the greater vision of the artist through illustration as a self-expressive art form. Each of the three faculty presents their work and answers questions in an open forum and then teaches an intensive four-week long segment of the course. The artists give lectures, technical demonstrations, and studio assignments, and students work through a demanding process to produce finished illustrations. This flexible curriculum also allows for timely illustration issues to be covered as they develop in the field. Formerly IL 404

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Prerequisite: ILUS 301

May be taken twice for credit.

ILUS 690 - Independent Study

Independent Study offers a matriculated student the opportunity to initiate individual research or advanced projects that are beyond the limits of the standard curriculum, with limited supervision. Independent Study is available to Junior and Senior undergraduate students who have a minimum 2.5 GPA and to graduate students in good standing. Each Independent Study may be taken for one to three credits in Liberal Arts, 1.5 to six credits in CAD, and one to six credits in CPA and CMAC. Independent Study cannot fulfill major requirements. Independent Study may serve as free, studio, and liberal arts electives, depending on the topic of investigation. Students cannot apply more than 12 total credits of independent study towards their degree requirements.

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 811 - Ancient Art

A consideration of art and myth in Western Civilization as they are represented in their earliest forms beginning in ca. 3000 BCE in the cultures of the Ancient Middle East, Egypt, and the Aegean. It concludes with the arts of Classical Greece in the fifth-fourth centuries BCE in recognition of their seminal influence on the arts of the West.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 813 - Medieval Art

This course examines the sculpture, architecture, painting and decorative arts of Europe from the early Christian period in the third century C.E. to the proto-Renaissance in Italy in the fourteenth century. The course focuses on the emergence and flowering of a European mystical Christian vision as distinct from the earlier monumental classical vision Greece and Rome.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 815 - Art in Renaissance Europe

The painting, sculpture, architecture, and decorative arts of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries in the major artistic centers of Northern Europe and in Italy are studied. The course compares and contrasts the works of painters such as Jan Van Eyck and Masaccio; and sculptors such as Claus Sluter and Donatello, who enriched both the habitations and churches of their secular and religious patrons and the proud and expanding mercantile cities in which they lived. Formerly HU 242

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 817 - Baroque Art

This course studies the work of the major European painters and sculptors of the seventeenth century; Bernini, Rubens, Velasquez, Rembrandt, Poussin and Vermeer. More specialized artists - painters of landscape, still life genre, and the portrait - will also be considered.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 819 - 19th Century Art

An investigation of change and diversity as represented by the major painters, sculptors and architects of Europe and America in this emerging Modernist century. Style categories under consideration include Neo-classicism, Romanticism, Realism, Impressionism and Post-Impressionism.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 821 - American Art to 1945

A survey of American art, architecture, and design, emphasizing the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. The material covered is divided into a series of sections or themes and is considered in relation to tradition. Each section or theme is studied through the work of the major artists who best represent it. Formerly HU 348

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 830 - Modern Art

At the beginning of the twentieth century, artists responded to new technological forces and the pressures of mass culture in styles such as cubism, constructivism, and surrealism – styles that are still being explored by our contemporaries. The course surveys the period 1880-1980, emphasizing the continuity of the modern artist's situation and role. Formerly HU 357

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 831 - American Art Since 1945

In 1945, World War II ended and the focus of modern art shifted from Paris to New York City. The course begins with Abstract Expressionism; studies other major American styles, such as pop art and minimalism; and concludes with post-modernist development such as performance and decoration by artists. Graduate students may register for this course under GRLA 631. Formerly HU 448A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 832 - European Art Since 1945

Art since World War II has been dominated by the New York market and by the issue of abstraction; in Europe, however, artists continued to use the human figure as a vehicle for social and ethical concerns, and, more recently, their engagement has become a model for younger artists in both Europe and America. The course will look at crafts and book arts as well as fine arts; it will also make use of plays and films. Formerly HU 448B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 851 - History of Industrial Design

A survey of industrial design in the West, paying particular attention to developments in the twentieth century.
Formerly HU 251

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Priority enrollment to Industrial Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 853 - History of Crafts

A survey of the principal movements and tendencies in Western crafts since the middle of the nineteenth century. Main topics include the arts and crafts movement, art nouveau, the Bauhaus, the interrelationships among fine arts, crafts, and design, and postmodernism. Formerly HU 253

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 854 - History of Communication Design

A survey of two-dimensional design in the West, with particular attention to developments in the twentieth century.
Formerly HU 254

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 855 - History of Photography

An introduction to the significant photographers and their work in the history of the medium, including technical developments and their impact, the major visual and aesthetic trends in the development of photography and their relationship to art in general, and the larger social context in which photography has developed. Formerly HU 255

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Priority enrollment to Photography majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 861 - Arts of China

This course covers ceramics, sculpture, painting, and other arts of China from the Neolithic through the last Chinese dynasty, that is from roughly 10,000 BCE to 1911. (If time permits some comments may be made about twentieth century Chinese art.) A brief introduction to the historical and social background of each period will be presented as the outstanding arts and art styles of each period are examined. Particular attention will be paid to what, if any, uniquely Chinese characteristics are evident in the arts of China. Art recovered from major archaeological discoveries in China including the "terra cotta" warriors found near the tomb of China's first emperor will be introduced and reviewed. Important masterworks of Chinese art in all media will also be analyzed and discussed. The influence of religion on Chinese art, particularly Buddhism, will be addressed, and we will also look at Chinese painting in some detail, especially at how figure painting came to be eclipsed by landscape painting. One quiz, mid-term and final examinations and one short paper. Formerly HU 342

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 862 - Arts of Africa

Artistic, religious, sociological, and geographic aspects of societies in sub-Saharan Africa are studied in order to establish continuity as well as distinction between their art forms. Black American folk art, an extension and transformation of African art, is analyzed. Formerly HU 347

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 863 - Arts of India

Painting, sculpture, and architecture from the Indus Valley civilization of the second millennium B.C.E. through the different periods of the Buddhist, Hindu, and Islamic dominance to the Rajput painting of the eighteenth century C.E. The different art styles are related to their historical, religious, and social background. Formerly HU 450

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 864 - Art of Islam

The course covers architecture, architectural decoration, calligraphy, book illustration, textile and ceramic art of the Middle Eastern countries from the beginning of the Islamic era (seventh century C.E.-eighteenth century C.E.). It studies the impact of Islamic religion on the character of Islamic art and architecture. It also studies the various regional styles within this unified visual mode of expression. From time to time Islamic and Christian cultures will be compared so as to understand better the similarities and differences of the two. Formerly HU 451

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 865 - Arts of Japan

This course covers the architecture, ceramics, painting, and sculpture of Japan from 11,000 BCE to the nineteenth century CE, and if time permits into the twentieth, and twenty-first centuries. It considers and examines the special characteristics of Japanese art, and analyzes the influence of Chinese art and culture on Japanese art and culture. Particular attention will be paid Buddhist art, especially that influenced by Zen Buddhism. In addition, Japan's unique achievements in illustrated narrative hand-scrolls of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries and decorative screens of the sixteenth-eighteenth centuries will be highlighted. One quiz, one paper, a mid-term, and final examination.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 931 - History and Aesthetics of 20th Century Performance Art

This course traces the evolution of Performance Art including its roots in Futurism, Constructivism, the Bauhaus, Dada, Surrealism, Fluxus movement, parallel movements in Japanese Butoh dance, European Figuren theater, developments of media in performance, autobiographical performance, and spectacle. Video slides are shown to portray the visual impact of the genre. Formerly HU 256

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 933 - Modern Architecture

The course investigates modern architecture, its theoretical premises, and the social context that generated it. Students will also inquire into modern architecture's legacy: postmodern architecture. Formerly HU 345

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 935 - Dada and Surrealism

The history of the post-World War I antirational movements Dada and Surrealism. Since these were literary and political as well as artistic movements, attention is given to texts by such authors as Artaud, Breton, Freud, Jarry, Rimbaud, and Tzara, as well as to works of art. Formerly HU 355

LAAH 937 - Abstract Expressionism

Abstract Expressionism was the most important movement in post-WWII American art. This course surveys its origins, accomplishments, and decline. Formerly HU 442

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 970 - Major Artists

The course concentrates on a single artist or a group of related artists. Among the artists who have come under this intense investigation have been Donatello, Michelangelo, Rembrandt, and Picasso. The course has been designed to give students an in-depth knowledge of one artist's life and art or the artists of a single school. Formerly HU 456

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 973 - Women Artists

A chronological survey of professional female painters and sculptors active in Western Europe and the United States, from the sixteenth century to the present. The role played by women artists in earlier ages, other nations, and different media is also examined. Three written assignments. Formerly HU 354

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 974 - Topics in Design

A seminar in the history of design. Each semester the course is taught, a different aspect of design history is studied. Individual designers under consideration have been Wright, Le Corbusier, and Aalto; other topics have been particular design histories: crafts history, graphic design history, industrial design history; and particular styles of design: The Arts and Crafts movement, Art Nouveau, Bauhaus, de Stijl and Constructivism, Art Deco, and Post-Modernism. Formerly HU 452

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 975 - "Dirty Pictures" A History of Art Censorship

There has been some form of art censorship, virtually everywhere in the world, as long as there has been art. For centuries visual artworks deemed offensive have been altered or destroyed, their audiences restricted and their creators fined, imprisoned, harassed, and/or physically harmed. The purpose of this course is to examine important cases of art censorship, to try and understand why this phenomenon has been so widespread and long-lasting and to consider its implications within, and beyond, the art community today and for the future.

After briefly surveying the history of art censorship in the Western world from antiquity through the mid-20th century, this course will focus on five recent case studies - [particularly notorious instances of art censorship that occurred in the U.S. between 1982 and 2004. We will examine the basic facts of each case, then review and discuss the principal responses it has generated and its subsequent implications, from several points of view. Some of the complex questions to be explored will include: Exactly what constitutes "censorship"? Under what circumstances might censorship be justified? Should different criteria be applied to potentially controversial public art, vs. the art displayed in art galleries and museums?

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 007 - English as a Second Language I

Prepares students for whom English is a second language to produce the kinds of writing and presentations expected of them on the college level, and to improve their reading and critical thinking skills. This is a two-semester requirement. LACR 007 provides review of English grammar, sentence structure, and paragraph development. It focuses primarily on the development of fluency in writing, speaking, listening and reading. The second semester, LACR 008, focuses on the different kinds of prose techniques and on responding in writing to readings and to the work of other students. A workshop format engages students in collaborative learning activities. Credits for LACR 007 or LACR 008 do not count toward graduation. On rare occasions, students may be exempted from LACR 008 by the instructor. LACR 007, 008 are graded on a pass/fail basis. A student who successfully completes the sequence enters LACR 101.

Prerequisites & Notes

Credits for LACR 007 or LACR 008 do not count toward graduation.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LACR 008 - English as a Second Language II

Prepares students for whom English is a second language to produce the kinds of writing and presentations expected of them on the college level, and to improve their reading and critical thinking skills. This is a two-semester requirement. LACR 007 provides review of English grammar, sentence structure, and paragraph development. It focuses primarily on the development of fluency in writing, speaking, listening and reading. The second semester, LACR 008, focuses on the different kinds of prose techniques and on responding in writing to readings and to the work of other students. On rare occasions, students may be exempted from LACR 008 by the instructor. LACR 007, 008 are graded on a pass/fail basis. A student who successfully completes the sequence enters LACR 101.

Prerequisites & Notes

Credits for LACR 007 or LACR 008 do not count toward graduation.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LACR 009 - Fundamentals of Composition I

This course is designed to help students improve reading, writing, and study skills. The emphasis is on the technical aspects of technical aspects of writing, specifically grammar, punctuation, spelling, and paragraph construction, along with reading comprehension, vocabulary, sentence structure, logical relationships, and usage. Students may work on particular problem areas in the Learning Resource Center. This course does not count for credit toward graduation. LACR 009 is graded on a pass/no grade basis. Students who pass LACR 009 enter LACR 100. On rare occasions, a student may pass, with the instructor's recommendation, from 009 to LACR 102. Such a student must take an additional LA elective to fulfill the 42 credit requirement in Liberal Arts. Enrollment in LACR 009 is based on performance on a placement test. Formerly HU 009

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 100 - Fundamentals of Composition II

Continuation of LACR 009. Successful completion of this course counts for credit toward graduation and permits the student to enter LACR 102 in the following semester. Formerly HU 109B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 221 - SIFT: Problem Solving

This course is one of the options in the Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT). It serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, mathematics and life-long learning. Students will explore the basics of scientific method and research. They will learn how to frame questions that can be investigated empirically. The results of these "pilot studies" will be written up as papers and discussed in class presentations. The idea of intimate engagement will be introduced to enhance the student's ability to problem solve more effectively.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 222 - SIFT: Human Adaptability

A examination of the relationships between environmental resources, technology and power in production systems ranging from hunter-gatherer to industrial. Jared Diamond's GUNS, GERMS and STEEL forms the core of the course with his discussion of the geographical context of domestication of plants and animals and how they might have ultimately affected the world distribution of power. Various ecosystems (deserts, grasslands, arctic, tropical and temperate forest and high altitude) are considered along with their advantages and disadvantages for domestication and human adaptation. The scientific questions underlying these geographic and ecological investigations are considered throughout the term.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 223 - SIFT: Life Science Concepts

This course introduces learners to issues of critical and contemporary significance in the life sciences. In this context, students will learn about the scientific method, experimental design, data analysis, ethical considerations and critical thinking, particularly in the framework of environment and human health. In addition, the course encourages research and dialogue regarding the role of society in these issues. Several key environmental issues are highlighted in the course, and students are encouraged to research additional topics in more detail through their assignments. Students will keep a journal of relevant articles in recent news as well as learn about aspects of biological sciences that impact their lives. The final two weeks of the course will be dedicated to student led presentations on these topics. Topics covered in the course include: a) historical and ethical perspectives of the environment, b) ecological principles, c) biodiversity and endangered species d) renewable and nonrenewable environment resources, e) resource management and quality, f) environmental law, g) human health and toxicology, h) waste management, i) air and water pollution, and j) environmental sustainability.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 224 - SIFT: Death and Ritual

This course examines death with the tools of physical and cultural anthropology. Students will learn the scientific process of forensics and the utilization of evidence. They will also engage in analytical methods of examining cultural and social practices. The course will be project-based: In the realm of physical anthropology, projects will include analyses of mummified and other human remains, as well as funerary structures; in the cultural anthropological field, projects will focus on critical looks at beliefs about death, burial, reincarnation, eternal recurrence, and other socio-cultural phenomena.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 225 - SIFT: Observing Humans

This course presents several different social science frameworks and seeks to uncover what can be learned about human behavior by people watching. Students choose places for brief weekly observation and use their own art skills to document what they see.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 226 - SIFT: Fundamentals of Mathematics

An introduction to the fundamental mathematical principles and operations used in undergraduate courses in the physical and social sciences. Topics include sets, logic, probability, statistics, number theory, algebra and geometry. The course includes a module on scientific method which is common to all SIFT courses.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Open to all students. LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 227 - SIFT: Discovering America

Are most Americans middle class? Are college students elite? Do most Americans believe in God? Are Democrats a majority? Are UArts students strange? The knowledge we have about society typically comes from generalized personal experience and/or media accounts, both of which often suffer from idiosyncrasy, ideological bias, or some other distortion. This course introduces the student to the scientific approach to knowledge by investigating society on several dimensions selected from the following: income, class, education, religion, occupation, political orientation, family structure, sexuality, crime and deviance, and social attitudes and beliefs on a variety of issues. The first half of the course focuses on the nature of science, social science, and sociology and its methods. The second half examines specific examples of sociological research and findings about American society to understand both what the facts are and how they are discovered and validated.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 229 - SIFT: Science and Contemporary Society

An introduction to the scientific approach to knowledge by exploring sociology and some of its findings about contemporary society. Students begin by considering the distinctive nature of science as a way of discovering verifiable knowledge about the empirical world. Historical and contemporary examples of scientific discoveries as well as examples of pseudo-science supplement the theoretical discussion. Students then focus on the science of sociology. Case studies from sociological research illustrate the perspective and methods of sociology as an example of the scientific approach. Students also examine different aspects of contemporary American society like inequality and social class, sexuality and conceptions of the family, racial and ethnic diversity, changing levels of educational attainment, varieties of religious participation and belief, rates of deviance and crime, and political identification. In the last part of the course the context in which science develops and operates, both social and cultural is considered. Social values, political ideologies, and religious beliefs are examined for the ways in which they can affect science as well as the ways in which science can affect them.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 801 - French I

Students study the basic elements of French grammar through conversation and drills derived from readings of easy modern prose and from a cultural reader. Formerly HU 130A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 802 - French I

Students study the basic elements of French grammar through conversation and drills derived from readings of easy modern prose and from a cultural reader. Formerly HU 130B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 803 - German I

One-year course of basic grammar. The aim of the course is to develop reading, writing, and conversing skills of the first-year German student. Formerly HU 131A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 804 - German I

One-year course of basic grammar. The aim of the course is to develop reading, writing, and conversing skills of the first-year German student. Formerly HU 131B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 805 - Italian I

This course covers conversation about everyday Italian life and culture and basic grammar through reading of Italian prose. Formerly HU 132A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 806 - Italian I

This course covers conversation about everyday Italian life and culture and basic grammar through reading of Italian prose. Formerly HU 132B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 807 - Spanish I

This introduction to Spanish is open to students who have had little to no previous Spanish language experience. In this course, the fundamentals of Spanish grammar, pronunciation and Spanish culture are introduced. Students will develop listening comprehension, speaking and writing skills. Emphasis on conversational Spanish.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 808 - Spanish II

Spanish II is the continuation of Spanish I. It is open to students who have had Spanish I or equivalent high school experience. In this course, the fundamentals of Spanish grammar, pronunciation and Spanish culture are further developed. Students will improve listening comprehension, speaking and writing skills. Emphasis on conversational Spanish.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR102, LALL 807 or permission from the department.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 811 - Western Literary Masterpieces I Ancient to Medieval

Works from antiquity through the Middle Ages that form the foundation of Western literature. Focuses on the creation of character, the structure and form of the works and the perspectives and values they reveal. Examines the questions asked by different cultures and how human potential, fate, and reality are defined. Formerly HU 320A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 812 - Western Literary Masterpieces II Renaissance to Neoclassical

Works from the Renaissance through the Neoclassical period that form the foundation of Western Literature. Focuses on the creation of character, on structure and form, but also on tone (humor, parody, satire, and irony) and the perspectives and the values that the works reveal. Formerly HU 320B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 821 - Lyric Poetry

A survey of lyric poetry, with particular emphasis on a single period or a group of poets, e.g., Walt Whitman, Emily Dickinson, Wallace Stevens, Allen Ginsberg, Sylvia Plath, and the English Romantics. Formerly HU 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 822 - Haiku: Classical to Contemporary

A survey of Haiku poetry from its development in Japan to its influence on American and world poets of the twentieth century. This short, enigmatic poetic form is approached from three perspectives. First, we will focus on understanding the craft of haiku and the use of that knowledge to interpret the individual poems. Second, the foundations of haiku's aesthetic principles as they developed over the centuries in Japan. And third, the influence of Japanese haiku on such twentieth century poets such as Ezra Pound, William Carlos Williams, Wallace Stevens and the Beat poets. Throughout the course, English language haiku of contemporary North American poets is read, and students write their own haiku verses.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 823 - Women Writers

This course explores and perhaps reclaims the provocative treasures of women writers, ancient and contemporary and their potential capacity to transform us as human beings. The various works studied, from the ancient poetic fragments of Sappho to the solitary lyrics of Emily Dickinson from the fictional classic of Bronte, Austen, Wharton and Virginia Woolf to the twentieth century voices of Adrienne Rich, Toni Morrison, and Julia Alvarez, all give us the spectrum of authenticity in the female voice. In our reading, the questions will emerge: Do women think/write differently from men? What is the role of gender in artistic imagination? As a counter example, students will also look at Louisa May Alcott's Little Women with its classic work in feminine psychology and Gilbert and Gubar's groundbreaking textual analysis on women writers.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 825 - The Short Story

A study of the short story from Poe to the present. Samplings from the British, the American, and the European, with particular attention to the major authors who reinvented the genre. At the end of the semester, students look at developments in contemporary fiction, the anti-story, the new wave, the surreal, the minimal, the mythic. Formerly HU 216

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 831 - 19th Century American Writers

From the Gothic darkness of Edgar Allan Poe to Stephen Crane's Red Badge, from Irving's mystic Sleepy Hollow to Hawthorne's Scarlet Letter, from Thoreau's idyll on Walden Pond to Melville's terror rounding Cape Horn, from Whitman's barbaric shout to Emily Dickinson's lyric whisper, from Emerson's "Self Reliance" to Mark Twain's despairing loss of innocence, the trajectory of American Literature in the nineteenth century traces a movement from the past to the future. This course looks at the major writers of nineteenth century America, a fascinating and revolutionary period in American art, where an American past becomes an American Voice and our Original Sins form our future.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 832 - 20th Century American Writers

An introduction to twentieth century American literature and its roots. What can be traced in that literature is a movement from idealism to cynicism or, perhaps, from idealism to realism. As America from an agrarian, small town culture to an increasingly urban and industrialized society, the American Dream of infinite potential and freedom for each citizen was re-mapped, just as the Western movement changed the geographical landscape of America. How the individual - the "little guy" marginalized from self and society - reacted to this aloneness, this powerlessness is the focus of the course. We ask, as a new American century begins, what does it mean now to dream Dreams, to endure Nightmares? What truths do Americans continue to hold as self-evident in the wake of international terrorist violence and the uncharted seas of a new future? Of what use is literature in this?

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 833 - African American Literature

Readings may include works by Langston Hughes, Richard Wright, Ralph Ellison, James Baldwin, Toni Morrison, Imamu Baraka, and Gwendolyn Brooks, focusing on the larger question of the role of the African-American writer in American society. Formerly HU 217

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 835 - American Politics and Culture: 1945-1975

The interaction of politics and culture from 1940 to 1975. Course material includes fiction and poetry, history and journalism, and film. Formerly HU 422

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 841 - Introduction to Mythology

A definition of mythmaking and an analysis of different approaches to myth, exploring the function of different myths, their relevance to the culture that created them and the forms through which the myths survive, particularly the epic tragedy.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 842 - Literature of the Roman Empire

After a glance at Greek influences, the course focuses on the literature of classical Rome. Readings from epic, drama, and lyric, with an emphasis on the interaction between those classical forms and the culture that produced them. Formerly HU 318

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 843 - Latin American Literature

The major literary trends and writers of Latin America where the way in which writers such as Rulfo, Marquez, Lezama Lima and Mutis reinvented the Western literary tradition as they incorporated a common landscape and history into their work is explored. The origins of both their style and imagery are traced by looking at earlier exponents of Latin American literatures.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 851 - Greek Drama

Plays by Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripides, and Aristophanes are examined to understand their integrity as works of art and to develop an appreciation of the extraordinary accomplishment of Greek drama. Formerly HU 311

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 852 - Modern Drama

A study of the modern theater from the end of the nineteenth century to the mid-twentieth century. Students read some of the world's most famous playwrights: Ibsen, Strindberg, Chekhov, Shaw, Pirandello, Lorca, Brecht, and Beckett. Theater trips are part of the experience of this course. Formerly HU 315A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 853 - Contemporary Drama

A study of the experimental developments in today's theater, both on Broadway and off, from Waiting for Godot to the present moment. Students read some of the most famous playwrights of our times: Genet, Beckett, Ionesco, Albee, Pinter, Shepard, and August Wilson, as well as some exciting major new voices. Theater trips are part of the experience of this course. Formerly HU 315B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 860 - Literature & Film

This course explores different subjects through the arts of literature and film. Among the topics treated have been images of Vietnam, the thriller, and science fiction. Formerly HU 314

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 861 - Film History

A survey of the history of film. Films to be shown are selected from the following categories: early film forms (Lumiere, Griffith, and De Mille); Dada and Surrealist influences (Leger, Bunuel, Marx Brothers, and Resnais); the impact of Constructivism and the Machine Aesthetic (Eisenstein, Vertov, and Chaplin); German Expressionists' influence on Hollywood (Ford, Welles, Wyler, and Hitchcock); modern European and American films (Bergman, Godard, Kubrick, and Altman); and avant-garde art influences on new American cinema (Deren and Brakhage). Formerly HU 248A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 862 - Issues in National Cinema

Films from modern and post-modern European cinema and from emerging national cinema that demonstrate both their interaction with politics and culture and an alternative discourse to Hollywood commercial filmmaking. Italian Neo Realism; French REVISED Wave; postwar European national cinema and other national cinemas (China, Japan, Brazil, Chile, etc.) are included.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 871 - Poetry Writing Workshop

Students' poems are discussed, criticized, revised, and improved. Principles governing the decision to change a poem in various ways, the study of poems by American and English poets, the reading of some criticism, and concentration on the basic principles of craft are all included. Theories involve sound, content, meaning, and purpose of student poems and of poetry in general. The poet's sense of an audience also figures in the discussion. Formerly HU 313

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 873 - Playwriting

This workshop course introduces students to the discipline of writing for theater and radio. Focusing on the elements necessary for the creation of producible scripts, the student develops practical skills leading to the creation of a short work for stage or radio by the end of the semester. Formerly HU 322

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 875 - Fiction Writing

This course focuses on writing short fiction. Students study the elements of creative writing, experiment with several forms, and develop a clear voice. The goal is to produce a portfolio of finished pieces. Formerly HU 325

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 901 - French II

Open to students who have completed French I or have had two or more years of high school French. Emphasis is on speaking French and reading French short stories, modern poetry, newspapers and magazines.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LALL 802

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 902 - French II

A continuation of LALL 901. Open to students who have completed French I or have had two or more years of high school French. Emphasis is on speaking French and reading French short stories, modern poetry, newspapers and magazines.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LALL 901

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 905 - Italian II

Open to students who have completed Italian I or have had two or more years of high school Italian. Verbal skills in Italian are developed as well as the ability to read poetry, short stories and newspaper articles in Italian.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LALL 806

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 906 - Italian II

A continuation of LALL 905. Open to students who have completed Italian I or have had two or more years of high school Italian. Verbal skill in Italian and ability to read poetry, short stories and newspaper articles in Italian.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LALL 905

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 907 - Spanish III

An accelerated course which reviews the basic principles of the Spanish language for students with some background of high school Spanish or Spanish I and II at UArts. Spanish grammar and culture are introduced in the context of short literacy readings, and articles from newspapers and periodicals. This course helps students develop listening comprehension, speaking, reading, and writing skills. It is given predominantly in Spanish.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102, LALL 808 or permission from the department.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 908 - Spanish IV

This course will offer a content-based review of Spanish grammar and systematic vocabulary and skill development. At this level, more advanced grammatical structures are presented. The course integrates language, culture, art, and literature. It is given predominantly in Spanish.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102, LALL 907 or permission from the department.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 911 - Major Writers

Focuses on the life and work of a single important writer. Among the authors who have received this intense examination have been James Joyce, Samuel Beckett, and Emily Dickinson. Formerly HU 420

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 913 - Nineteenth Century Novel

We study some of the most admired, best loved books of the world, written in the heyday of the novel, the nineteenth-century: Crime and Punishment, by Dostoevsky, Madame Bovary by Flaubert, Wuthering Heights, by Bronte, Great Expectations, by Dickens, Portrait of a Lady, by James. This is a course for people who love to read. Formerly HU 414B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 914 - Contemporary Novel

This is a course for people who like to read. We study 10 (count 'em 10!) novels by some of the most interesting authors of the past two decades including works from North and South America and Eastern and Western Europe. Some are weird, some beautiful, some sexy, some funny. Formerly HU 416A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 915 - Modern Poetry

A consideration of both the central figures and the central movements in modern poetry. The first part of the semester addresses the stylistic changes and the ideological currents which shaped the high modernist mode. The second part of the course explores the major figures through their most important work. Figures include Yeats, Pound, Eliot, Stevens, Williams and Frost.

LAPI 820 - Rome From Julius Caesar Through Nero

This course is a study of the transition of Rome from a Republic to an Empire, focusing on the Julio-Claudian line, which began with Julius Caesar and ended with Nero. This course examines the historical background and the religious, social, and economic issues that facilitated such a transition. Accompanying the transition was a flourishing of poetry, due in part to the patronage system and in part to increased literacy of the Roman people. Economic prosperity among the upper classes led to an increased demand for architecture, visual arts (painting and sculpture), and public entertainment (theater, music and dance, spectacles, gladiatorial combats). At the same time, the division among the social classes became even more dramatic, and government censorship and intrusion into private life emerged as major concerns under Augustus. Through the use of primary sources, class handouts, and independent study, students are encouraged to investigate the transition from Republic to Empire and to explore possible parallels in contemporary U.S. history.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 822 - Age of Reason, Age of Satire: 18th Century England

The cultural history of England in the eighteenth century, focusing on two preoccupations of the day: rationalism and satire. The class introduces philosophic and political documents that justified the American and French Revolutions and then turns to satire in fiction in the visual arts. The term closes with a discussion of the twentieth century satire, our legacy from the Enlightenment and Revolutionary periods.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

LAPI 823 - Victorian England: Dr. Jekyll or Mr. Hyde?

This course is a study of the two faces of Victorian England: (1) the respectable and highly moralistic image reflected in much of the art as well as in social and cultural norms and (2) the underbelly of violence and perversion, reflected not only in the decadent artists of the 1890s but also in the social underworld of Jack the Ripper and the increasing population of prostitutes. The course also examines the historical background and the political, social, and economic issues that made such a dichotomy virtually inevitable. Artists who understood this dichotomy, in varying terms, are emphasized: Stevenson, Tennyson, Browning, the Pre-Raphaelites, Gilbert and Sullivan, Wilde, and Beardsley. Through reading, lectures, class discussion, and independent study students investigate the two faces of Victorian England and explore possible parallels in contemporary U.S. society.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 824 - "Orientalism": 19th Century European Eyes on the Middle East

The "Orient" (the land and its peoples included in the Ottoman Empire in the Near East, North Africa, Egypt, Palestine, and the Arabian peninsula) as seen by nineteenth century European travelers, artists, poets, adventures, wayfarers, dogooders, soldiers, and colonial officials; i.e., "outsiders" in cultures they observed, imagined, marveled at, or exploited - sometimes all of them simultaneously -in their art. The history and culture of nineteenth century colonial expansion is studied as is the modern discourse surrounding it.

Prerequisites & Notes

LAPI 827 - Greece: Democracy and Empire

Greece: Democracy and Empire is an introduction to classical Greece. It explores the historic forces, intellectual currents, cultural and social phenomena that shaped fifth century Athens and analyzes the tensions between imperialistic aspirations and artistic production. The course investigates the way in which the Persian and Peloponnesian Wars shaped and challenged Greek ideas about humanness and civilization. It analyzes and interprets Greek drama to see the extent to which it attempted to work out the often contradictory values in the culture. Students examine both extant theoretical writings on dance and the vase painting to understand their performative aspect.

LAPI 920 - Berlin: The 1920s

The twentieth century saw a cultural shift of nearly seismic proportions from communal sources of identity to an apparent freedom to invent the self, from work ethic to consumer values, from traditional word-based forms of expression to a visual culture. The artists and writers of Weimar, Germany were among the first to register these revolutionary social changes and to articulate the tensions they continue to generate. The course emphasizes film, photographic and graphic arts, and performance from Berlin. Examples include works by Bertolt Brecht, Fritz Lang, and John Heartfield. The course connects the past to the present by comparing issue-based art of the 1920s with cultural critiques by contemporary media artists.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LACR 210

LAPI 924 - Existential Paris: 1938 - 1959

An examination of the central ideas and creative works associated with Parisian Existentialism and the way in which they both shaped, and were shaped by, the cultural period in which they emerged: Nazi-occupied Paris, the liberated Paris after World War II, and the Cold War. Other artistic productions not specifically linked with existentialism but which emerged during its period of ascendance are also explored.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 925 - New York in the 1950s

This course investigates the arts centered in 1950s New York (with an emphasis on jazz, literature, and painting) in the context of a decade characterized by rising consumerism, conformity, corporate capitalism, and emerging popular arts that would reshape American culture from then on. This is also the decade of Red Scare paranoia, A-bomb anxiety, Cold War blues, and deep doubts about the American Dream. In addition to the assigned readings, papers, and discussions, students pursue their own interests in the decade through individual projects in the second half of the course. As a supplement to the course, a number of special screening of films important to the decade are shown several times during the term. Students are expected to see and complete exercises on at least three of the films.

LAPI 926 - Les Amis de Paris: 1904-1913

This course examines the friendship and work of a select group of artists living in Paris between 1904 and 1913. Studying the biographical and interpersonal layers of their relationships and artwork provides new insight into the legacy of these masters. The literature of Gertrude Stein, Apollinaire, and others, the visual art of Picasso, Matisse and the Cubists, as well as other materials and mediums contribute to understanding how this particular circle of friends cultivated the artistic and intellectual leaps that created Modernism. Interdisciplinary methods for creating cultural models are explored.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 927 - Becoming Modern: 1900 - 1914

An exploration of the innovations in the arts in the first decade and a half of the twentieth century when becoming Modern was the challenge facing every artist. The results were works that called into question almost every previous assumption about the arts. This was a period also characterized by radical changes in technology, in science, in philosophy, and in politics. This course investigates a wide range of material in order to bring some clarity to the elusive term "modern." In addition to the assigned readings, papers, and discussions, students pursue their own interests in the decade through independent study "side trips" in the second half of the course.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LACR 210

LAPI 928 - Franco's Spain: An Open Wound

Spanish history from 1700 to the present, focusing most heavily on the Spanish Civil War (1936-39) and the dictatorship of Francisco Franco (1939-1975). Students learn about the War of Spanish Succession (1702-1713), the Bourbon Monarchy and Eighteenth Century Reforms (1700-1808), the Peninsular War (1808-1814), the turbulent nineteenth century, the First Republic (1873-74), the military dictatorship of Primo de Rivera (1923-1930), the Second Republic (1831-36), the transition to democracy (1975-1978), and Spain since the death of Franco. Students also discuss Spanish poetry (Miguel de Unamuno), art (Salvador Dali, Joan Miro, and Pablo Picasso), novels and plays (Hemingway's For Whom the Bell Tolls and Lora's Yerma), and memoirs about the Spanish Civil War (George Orwell's Homage to Catalonia).

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 929 - Age of the Masses: From Versailles to September 1, 1939

Focusing on the aftermath of WWI, looks at the period as one where the dissolution of old social orders led to the emergence of the crowds as catalysts in the tensions between liberalism, conservatism and socialism. Students examine at essays, poems, films and listen to music. The most extensive part of the course, however, considers the work of three poets, Cesar Vallejo, W.H. Auden, and Bertold Brecht to analyze the ways in which each of these writers commented on central historical events, while exploring the tensions between art and wider social concerns, ultimately testing the humanistic assumptions inherent to all works of art against historical reality.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 930 - Age of Consumer Culture 1945-1972

An exploration of the way in which consumer culture redefined America in the post-war period and transformed its culture, including the reconfiguration of space. Particular focus is placed on the rise of the suburb, television and malls and the ways in which these redefined the role of public and private, reshaping art, politics and audiences. Students look at poetry, fiction, and the visual arts and trace their reaction from an initial anti-materialist critique to gradual incorporation and appropriation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 936 - Post World War II Amsterdam

Amsterdam isn't known as a place of tolerance. By concentrating on Amsterdam's history, art and culture following World War II, this concept of tolerance will be described and analyzed, with the ultimate purpose of seeing if it really exists, and if it does exist, what it is and why it is. Also, given the recent murders of politician Pim Fortuyn and filmmaker Theo Van Gogh by extremists in traditionally non-violent Holland, the course will examine whether this famed tolerance is now under threat. The first part of the course will look at early Dutch history and culture as a prerequisite for understanding contemporary Amsterdam. The great bulk of the course will concentrate on the post-World War II period through a study of history, philosophy, literature, film, architecture, painting and photography. Included in this course will be a reading of Albert Camus's novel, The Fall, an analysis of art movements like DeStijl and CoBra, a look at modern Dutch architectural movements such as the Amsterdam School, a viewing of the film "Submission," directed by Theo Van Gogh, and a reading of Infidel, an autobiographical work by the controversial politician Ayaan Hirsi Ali.

An examination of the Zen understanding of being human: the problem of human existence Zen seeks to resolve, the liberation it claims to achieve, the meaning of the satori or "Awakening" which Zen claims is the basis of this liberation, the Zen koan as the meaning through which the Awakening is attained, the art that results from Awakening, and the possible contributions of Zen to the contemporary spiritual, philosophic, and artistic situation in the West.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 950 - Aesthetics Seminar

Advanced philosophic problems that are related to works of art and discourse about works of art. Focus varies from year to year but may include Postmodernism, Neo-Marxism, reception aesthetics, gender and sexuality identity.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LAPR 850

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 951 - Art, Media and Society

A seminar exploring the identity crisis of the modern artist in the period since the industrial revolution and the rise of the middle class. Conflicts or collaborations between the fine arts and commercialism, including mass media and new technology, from Romanticism and the arts and crafts movement to Pop Art and the Web. Issues of authorship, production, quality, and permanence. Who determines taste, and why? Does high art have a future? Formerly HU 498

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 961 - Opera and Politics

Throughout its history, whether at court or in public theaters, opera has exhibited a magnetic pull on artists and audiences attracted to the exploration of political themes. This course examines operatic instantiations of the conflict between social conformity and personal freedom, the hedonistic abuse of power, the glorification of past achievements in order to deflect attention from present impotence, the retreat from political disillusionment, and idealized interior worlds. General commentary on musical, formal, and dramatic elements characteristic of historical periods alternates with closer analysis of specific works. Formerly HU 294

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 962 - Diaghilev and the Ballet Russes

An investigation of the role of the impresario Serge Diaghilev and his Ballets Russes in both shaping and echoing the course of artistic revolution in Paris from c. 1909-1929. Several Diaghilev ballets will be introduced, viewed, and critiqued. Particular attention will be given to Picasso and Stravinsky, Fitzgerald and Pound. In passing, students look at the ideas of Sigmund Freud on the unconscious and invented myths, particularly as they are reflected in Nijinsky's ballets, Rites, Faun, Jeux and Spectre.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 972 - Women and Sex Roles

An introduction to the history of women and to theories of gender. An interdisciplinary course combining history, literature, and the visual arts. Slide lectures on images of women in art, myth, and religions, from ancient times to modern. Economic and historical factors affecting how women have lived. Definitions of masculinity and femininity. The nature-nurture debate over hormonal differences. Formerly HU 497

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 801 - Fundamentals of College Mathematics

An introduction to the fundamental mathematical principles and operations used in undergraduate courses in the physical and social sciences. Topics include sets, logic, probability, statistics, number theory, algebra, and geometry. Meets with LACR 226. Formerly HU 282A

Prerequisites & Notes

Successful completion of LACR 009 or 100 where required as a result of the English Placement Exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 802 - Calculus

An introduction to calculus with the emphasis on the applications of differential and integral calculus to the physical and social sciences. Formerly HU 282B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102, LASM 801 Students with equivalent college-level mathematics, or pre-college advanced algebra and geometry should request special permission.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 803 - Probability

This class introduces some of the most fundamental ideas in classical probability. Polling techniques, casino gambling, weather forecasting, and lotteries are a few areas in which the principles of probability directly influence our lives. Modern science depends upon probability to build mathematical descriptions of the real world. This course explores the concepts of probability in an intuitive and accessible way, understandable to beginners. Topics include sample spaces, counting, conditional probability, and the concept of independence, game theory, random variables, and the law of large numbers. Formerly HU 283

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 810 - Life Sciences

Life forms in the context of current adaptations and evolutionary history. Special emphasis is placed on an exploration of evolutionary relationships, ecological specialization, and the dynamic relationships of organisms in an integrated ecosystem. Formerly HU 285A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 811 - Contemporary Issues in Life Sciences

Each semester this course explores one area of current research in the life sciences by focusing on three significant issues in the current scientific literature. Students participate in a series of semi-independent inquiry activities. For each research issue, student teams complete a “challenge” that demonstrates their ability to understand, collect, interpret and apply appropriate information in order to propose solutions and to convince classmates of the success of their approaches. Formerly HU 289

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 830 - Physical Sciences

An investigation of astronomy, geology, and other physical sciences, including the origin of the universe and solar system and the nature of physical science, matter, and energy. This course provides a background for understanding the problems of the impact of science on human values. Formerly HU 285B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 831 - Physics

An introductory college physics course. The first semester covers kinematics, dynamics, energy structural analysis, and waves; the second semester concentrates on a study of light, electricity, and magnetism. Both semesters include the frequent references to architecture, design, and the fine arts. A background in algebra is required. Formerly HU 481A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 832 - Physics

A continuation of the study begun in LASM 831. Formerly HU 481B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LASM 831

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 913 - Urban Wildlife

An examination of the ways in which humans and other animals interact in shared and contiguous environments based on semi-independent field studies carried out by students on selected species. After an introduction to common species and a short period of directed study, teams of students plan, carry out, and analyze one short-term (4-week) study of one species of their choice that inhabits urban Philadelphia. Formerly HU 381

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 914 - Human Genetics

Explores the fundamentals of genetics through the study of our own species, Homo Sapiens. Introduces the students to the study of inheritance and how molecular, physiological, environmental, and behavioral mechanisms affect the measurable characteristics of humans around the world. Topics include genetic diseases and unusual physical characteristics among others. Using local resources, students engage in problem-solving activities in comparative biology. Formerly HU 386

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 915 - Perception

The structure and function of the senses of vision, audition, olfaction, gustation, touch, temperature, kinesthesia, time, and the brain and nervous system are considered as they relate to perception. Formerly HU 388

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 916 - Evolution in Modern Perspective

Evolution is the unifying theoretical foundation of all the life sciences. This course explores the mechanisms that produce evolution, and their meaning for our current knowledge in biology, conservation, medicine, agriculture, and related sciences. Students also consider the effect(s) that society's awareness of evolution has had on social institutions such as law, literature, politics, and education. Formerly HU 389

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 917 - Brain and Behavior

This course is an introduction to the organization of the brain and nervous system and to their interactions with other body systems that produce observable behavior. Topics include brain structure and function, neurological changes over the life cycle, and the effects of malfunctions. Students learn about specific brain structures and how they contribute to or produce specific behavioral characteristics. We explore the neurochemistry of drug addiction, degenerative diseases, and psycho-active drugs, as well as other current topics of interest. Formerly HU 485

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 921 - Dynamic Anatomy

The structure of the body as it relates to form (size, shape, and proportion) and support (posture, position, and movement). In-depth exploration of the location, orientation, and actions of the major muscle groups, joints, and bones, and how they differ by gender through the life cycle. Formerly HU 281

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Dance.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 931 - Concepts of Modern Physics

This course surveys important concepts in twentieth century physics, including chaos theory, cosmology, quantum mechanics, and relativity. Without mathematics, we examine the tumultuous changes that have taken place in the scientific view of space, time, and physical reality. Formerly HU 385

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 932 - Pseudoscience in Contemporary Society

The methods and issues of contemporary science. Explores how scientific information is used in society through an examination of scientific, near-scientific and pseudoscientific claims, including strange creatures like Bigfoot and the Loch Ness monster, miracle cures for diseases, and paranormal phenomena. The question of how funding might affect scientific research is also examined. Formerly HU 286

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 951 - Technology, Culture and Society

This course explores the complex relationship among technology, cultural paradigms, and popular consciousness. We study and analyze such questions as “What is technology?”; “Does technology necessarily imply progress?”; and “How does technology define reality?" Students examine these and other related themes through readings and other media. Formerly HU 396

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 810 - Modern American History

A study of contemporary developments, values, and issues as a product of twentieth century phenomena. The course seeks to understand the dramatic changes that have occurred in American society over the last fifty years. Formerly HU 264

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 or WRIT 111

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 811 - History of China

The time span is from the earliest days to the present, with special emphasis on the modern period and relations with the United States and the Western powers. Intellectual and cultural developments take precedence over political and economic history. Formerly HU 262

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 812 - History of Japan

The history of Japan; the time span is from the earliest days to the present, but special emphasis is placed on the modern period and relations with the United States and other Western powers. Intellectual and cultural developments take precedence over political and economic history. Formerly HU 262B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 813 - History of Classical World

The history of ancient civilizations in the Near East and Europe. Egyptian, Greek, and Roman history, religion, philosophy, and culture. Readings from selected ancient texts and slides of art works illuminate the culture of these civilizations and provide links with the present world. Formerly HU 266A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 814 - History of Medieval Europe

The history of medieval Europe from the Germanic settlements to the establishment of Christianity and the feudal social expansion of the late Middle Ages are important topics for the course. A wide range of readings and the use of examples of medieval art promote a broad interpretation of this period. Formerly HU 266B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 815 - History and Culture of Latin America

The history and culture of Latin America, including indigenous as well as European cultural sources. National distinctions and the origins of modern society in the area will be developed. Formerly HU 365A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 816 - History and Culture of Latin America

The history and culture of Latin America, including indigenous as well as European cultural sources. National distinctions and the origins of modern society in the area will be developed. Formerly HU 365B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 817 - The Culture of the Italian Renaissance

A comprehensive study of the political and social conditions in Italy from the end of the fourteenth until the middle of the sixteenth century that led to the artistic and philosophical flowering known as the Renaissance. Not only are the contributions of the larger states of Milan, Venice, and Florence be explored, but also the princely courts of Mantua, Ferrara, and Urbino. Reading Machiavelli's The Prince and portions of Castiglione's The Courtier is an essential part of the course. Formerly HU 263

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 820 - Individual & Society

An examination how the individual person is related to society, considering the ways in which society is a separate reality that regulates and even defines the personality and identity of the individual person. After covering some introductory material on culture, definitions of situations, social location, socialization, and deviance, a few sociological works are examined in depth that discuss such subjects as street gangs, ethnicity, social mobility, suicide, morality instincts, and the nature of the self. How the individual can be free in the context of the constraints of society is a major issue addressed within the course. Formerly HU 162

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 821 - American Civilization I

An in-depth study of the origins of American society with an emphasis on the particular political, social, and cultural patterns that shaped the course of American development. The first semester surveys the process of settlement, colonial societies, independence, the growth of the egalitarian spirit, and the Civil War. Formerly HU 362A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 822 - American Civilization II

An examination of some of the ways in which contemporary society and culture, including the arts and media, are related. For example, which people choose which forms of culture for their use, why do they use them, what effect does the culture have on the people who use them, and what interest does society have in regulating which culture people have access to? The course considers the categories of high and popular culture, the nature of social and cultural hierarchy, the social values transmitted by popular culture and media, and perspectives on censorship.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 823 - Modern Culture

An examination of some of the ways in which contemporary society and culture, including the arts and media, are related. For example, which people choose which forms of culture for their use, why do they use them, what effects does the culture have on the people who use them, and what interest does society have in regulating which culture people have access to? The course considers the categories of high and popular culture, the nature of social and cultural hierarchy, the social values transmitted by popular culture and the media, and perspectives on censorship. Formerly HU 363

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 831 - Money Matters

Explores issues in economics and business by working out from the roles and interests of individual agents and groups. We look at economic dynamics in artistic and cultural work in the present, and at different historical moments, to explore further the nature of these relationships and their meanings. Students are exposed to economic and business discourse, provided with a broad and intensive understanding of economic and business language and logic, given experience in the application of these concepts to the issues in their field of interest, and provide a foundation for thinking through the economic and ethical dimensions of their work. Formerly HU 272

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 850 - Introduction to Cultural Anthropology

An exploration of the nature of human culture, its variations and the anthropological explanations of these differences ranging from symbolic, functional, to historical. This survey of culture in Western and non-Western societies considers a number of special topics such as: language and society; cultural identity and the arts; gender; religion and cultural change; marriage and family; ethnicity and race; the impact of globalization, tourism and cultural change.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 851 - Human Origins and Primates

An anthropological perspective on evolution, biology, ecology, and behavior of nonhuman primates from prosimians to great apes. Students are introduced to the principles of evolution and adaptive trends. The course focuses on the successful terrestrial species of Old World monkeys and the apes – the gibbon, orangutan, gorilla, and chimpanzee. Comparisons are made among nonhuman primates and our own species regarding diet, locomotion, tool use and manufacture, modes of communication, social behavior and social systems, motherhood and child care, aggression, “cultural” behavior and recent trends in nonhuman primate behavior studies. Films are an important part of the course. Formerly HU 260A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 852 - Human Evolution

An introduction to human biological and cultural evolution, a survey of the major evolutionary stages in hominid evolution, an introduction to Paleolithic technologies, and a comparison of contemporary Stone Age societies with Paleolithic populations. Formerly HU 260B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 854 - Analyzing Talk

This course asks: what can be learned by listening, recording, and analyzing human communication. Much like the interdisciplinary course "Observing Humans," "Analyzing Talk" will involve student-led field work in a location chosen by the student. This is a course primarily about the study of power and culture; the students will be learning about patterned power dynamics through the frameworks of gender, race, ethnicity, class and age. Speech, para-linguistics, gesture, and posture are the focus as the course introduces classics in sociolinguistics, semiotics, and video ethnography. Like music, drama, and choreography, and visual art, human talk can be analyzed both aesthetically and structurally. Framed by the media available of its time, "Analyzing Talk" will cover speech and gesture research and will ask how media extends and limits the questions of a particular age. Classics in documentary film will augment the course.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 861 - Introduction to Folklore

Folklore is considered the artistic communication of small groups of subcultures. This course emphasizes urban folklore. Each student chooses a subculture and an art genre of an existing community to study. Classes involve the development of interviewing skills, documenting methods and an understanding of the history of folklore study. Students learn about people's lives through their songs, tales, movements and material culture.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 862 - Psychology of Music

What makes a phenomenon musical? What are people doing when they make or listen to music? Can musical understanding be fully grasped through listening? These and similar questions represent an effort to find something that lies at the core of our humanity, and that may be in danger of being lost. We start from the simple assumption that, in order to find something, we must try to grasp what is essential about it. Ranging between the hows and whys of music, the course explores the origins of human music-making, the psychology of aural awareness, the strategies of organized musical expression, and the construction of musical meaning in relation to culture. Formerly HU 259

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 871 - Child & Adolescent Psychology

This course is developmentally oriented and focuses on Erikson's psychosocial stages of life from birth to adolescence. Major topics include pregnancy, the birth process, and the physical, intellectual, emotional, and social development of the child. Family life and parent-child relationships are also examined, with particular attention given to the impact of our social institutions upon parents and children. Formerly HU 181A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Art Education, Art Therapy concentration and Dance Education.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 872 - Adult Psychology

An overview of adult stages of psychological development throughout early, middle and late adulthood. An eclectic variety of perspectives citing psychoanalytic, cognitive and humanistic orientations are considered.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Art Therapy concentration and Dance Education.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 873 - Personality & Creativity

Through readings of works of major theorists on the nature of personality and on creativity, the course poses two major questions: "What do major theorists have to say about the human personality?" and "What do major theorists have to say about what it means to be a creative person?" There are a number of ways of answering these questions and it is not the purpose of the course to choose the "best" answer, but rather, to put the student in a better position to make his or her own decision. Formerly HU 374

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 874 - Psychology of Touch

In this course students learn about the role the sense of touch plays in early physical development and in the development of perceptual and cognitive skills. The last part of the course is devoted to the aesthetic dimension of touch and the significance of early tactile stimulation for the visual and performing arts. Formerly HU 378

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 875 - Social Psychology

A survey of major social problems today and an analysis of society's resistance to implementing the necessary painful solutions. Students study the current status of major social institutions and their increasing failure to meet and satisfy human needs. Some of the other areas that are studied are mental health and mental illness, human values, love and marriage, dreams, and preventative programs. Formerly HU 382

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LASS 871 or LASS 872

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 876 - Psychology of Creativity

The course examines the problems involved in defining and attempting to measure creativity. The course is developmentally oriented, focusing on relationships between creativity and normal growth and development, and intelligence and personality. Problems that the artist encounters with productivity are explored, as well as the values of society toward creativity and the artist. Formerly HU 480

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LASS 871

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 911 - Renaissance and Reformation: 1400-1648

The intellectual and cultural explosion that heralded the modern era in Western civilization. Political, economic, philosophical, religious, and cultural developments. Formerly HU 360A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 912 - Age of Science & Enlightenment: 1648-1815

The dramatic intellectual revolution of the age of science and the applications of the revolution to every province of the human experience. The Enlightenment and the French Revolution, which are parts of the transformation of Europe, are studied from the perspective of their consequences for the modern world. Formerly HU 360B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 914 - Holocaust

The Holocaust is a watershed event in modern history. This traumatic episode left indelible marks on Western society, probably for generations to come. It was caused by factors that still exist in the world. This course examines the history that led to the Holocaust, and will attempt to help students understand what happened and what meaning it has for us today. Formerly HU 464

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 922 - Politics and the Media

This course analyzes how political and social forces interact with the American community and how that interaction affects government structure and policy. Factors such as population profiles, suburbanites, elite groups, public opinion, party organization, elections, and reform movements are studied. Formerly HU 359

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 923 - Sociology of Art

An examination of the relationships that exist between art and society. The course focuses on the social influences that shape the creation and reception of artistic works. Topics include the social role of the artist; art as a socially organized form of work; the social institutions of artistic production, transmission, and audience reception; and the understanding of art in terms of its social content. Formerly HU 364

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 924 - Sociology of Politics

This course studies the interaction of political, social, economic, technological, and cultural forces in American society with their resultant impact on the political system. A brief introduction to political science is incorporated early in the semester. Factors such as population profiles, "suburbanites," elite groups, party organization, elections and reform movements are considered. Formerly HU 368

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 925 - Mass Media and the Arts

The purpose of this course is to develop an understanding of mass media and popular culture, primarily in the United States since the 1890s. Various forms of mass media are defined and the shared techniques by which these forms seek to communicate are analyzed. Finally, the values, both aesthetic and social, embodied in both these media and popular culture are examined in relation to social and economic change. Formerly HU 390

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 931 - The City

A study of the city in history, the forces that shaped its development, and the impact the city has had on history. The American city from the seventeenth century to the present is used as the model for this study. Formerly HU 366

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 932 - The American Suburbs

The modern suburb has had a tremendous impact upon the history, culture, politics, and art of American society. In this course we investigate the historical development of the American suburb as well as its modern form. Looking at the suburb as a cultural phenomenon, we explore both the stereotype of the suburbs as well as its more complex reality. We also examine works of fiction, photography, painting, film-making, architecture, and design that have emerged out of this strange and familiar landscape. Formerly HU 371

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 933 - American Social Values

What is the USA? It is different from other societies? Who is an American? Is there such a thing as "Americanism?" Is it possible to be "un-American?" This course focuses on the fundamental nature of American society by examining the organizing principles of its culture. It explores some basic American value-orientations, like equality, individualism, and freedom as well as their sources and effects on American institutions and behavior. To highlight American distinctiveness it compares American society to some others like Canada and Japan. Finally, it examines some value differences within American culture that lead to political/ ideological conflict and challenges to American national identity. Formerly HU 462

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 951 - Islam: Religion & Culture

This course examines Islamic culture as it is refracted in various religious and literary texts by Muslims from Arabia, Iran (Persia), India as well as North America. The course begins with discussion of the centrality of prophecy and scripture in Islam, followed by a perusal of Islamic theology and mysticism, and ends with a sampling of primarily literary prose and poetry pieces that provide insights into the multifarious facets of Islamic civilization. Formerly HU 361

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 952 - Afro-American Culture

A survey of some of the most important Afro-American contributions to American culture, with special attention to the twentieth century and to the arts. Among those whose work is discussed are W. E. B. DuBois, Duke Ellington, Langston Hughes, and Paul Robeson. Formerly HU 393

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LASS 871 or LASS 872

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MAAN 101 - Freshman Animation

An introduction to the basics of animation, with an emphasis on the development of storytelling capabilities. Inventive studio projects explore production techniques used both in experimental and character animation. In addition, an historical overview is provided through film screenings and group discussion. Formerly PF 127

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Foundation majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MAAN 201 - Introduction to Animation I

Through a series of drawn exercises concentrating on timing, movement, and weight, the student acquires an understanding of fundamental animation principles. Formerly PF 212A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111, FNDP 121 or MMDI 101

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 202 - Introduction to Animation II

Students are introduced to under-the-camera animation using varied mediums such as puppets, cut-outs, and painting-on-glass. Special attention is given to non-narrative approaches to animation. A final project is created using one or more of the techniques explored during the semester. Formerly PF 212B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 201 or MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 211 - Character Layout and Design

Designing characters, backgrounds, pans, and creative camera moves for the animated scene. Design styles and techniques are explored for their potential in developing a wide range of character types, traits, moods, personalities, and attitudes. Students learn integrate space and character action, work with camera fields, deal with issues of composition and perspective, and to create moods through layout. A final project requires development of an "Animator's Bible," a production workbook for the student's personal film portfolio. Formerly PF 219

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 201

Priority enrollment to Animation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 231 - Introduction to Computer Animation

This introductory course develops the student's understanding of digital movement and imaging through animation exercises using a variety of 2D software programs on the PC platform. No previous computer experience is required. Formerly PF 216

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Animation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 232 - 2-D Computer Animation

Using both raster- and vector-based programs, students explore how to build 2D animation sequences in the computer and how to translate hand-drawn animation into digitally composited animated pieces. Traditional animation principles are expanded upon and reinforced using 2D computer graphics and editing programs. Digital imagery and sound are integrated in class assignments designed to explore a wide variety of 2D styles. Formerly PF 316

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 231 or MMDI 102

Priority enrollment to Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 301 - Junior Animation Workshop I

The first half of this course is devoted to the creation of a short, client-based project. The second half involves an interdisciplinary group project aimed at refining students' knowledge of animation movement design. Formerly PF 312A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 202

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 302 - Junior Animation Workshop II

This course focuses on the creation of a personal, 1.5 minute animated piece, starting from initial conception and ending with final output to digital of film media. Stages in the production cycle include storyboarding, animatics, animation, inking and painting, sound image editing, and final output. Formerly PF 312B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 301

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 314 - Sound Design and Technology

A hands-on exploration of various technical materials and procedures that complement the animator's production skills, including video editing, analog and digital sound recording, mixing and processing, digital soundtrack preparation, and green screen compositioning techniques. Formerly PF 325

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 202

Open to Animation majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 320 - Selected Topics in Animation

An exploration of media used in animation. The content of each course offering reflects the professional interests of the instructor. Topics have included sound installation, visual poetry and experimental techniques. Formerly PF 328

Prerequisites & Notes

Note: May be taken four times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 321 - Clay and Puppet Animation

The technique of animating handmade three-dimensional characters. Topics include puppet construction (clay and mixed media), set design and construction, and lighting. The history of puppet animation is also studied through film screenings and lectures, with a special emphasis on European filmmakers and nonverbal storytelling. Formerly PF 330

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 201 or MAAN 202

Open to Animation majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors only. May be taken four times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 325 - Storyboarding

The ability to create effective visual continuities represents a fundamental skill in animation and live-action filmmaking. In this class, an understanding of narrative story structure and the ability to translate words into images will be developed through exercises dealing with the specifics of shot and shot sequence design. Storyboards will be expanded into animatic form and will include the creation of basic soundtracks.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MAAN 201, MAAN 202, MAFL 201, MFAL 202

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 331 - 3-D Computer Animation

Using industry-standard 3D computer software, students learn basic modeling, texturing, lighting, movement, and rendering techniques. This course prepares students for further 3D computer coursework and allow them to utilize 3D software in the development and creation of their Junior and Senior thesis work. Formerly PF 326

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 231 or MMDI 102

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 332 - Advanced 3D Modeling and Texturing

This course is designed to further develop 3D computer animation modeling, texturing, lighting, and rendering skills. Using industry-standard software, students explore and develop 3D skills with both photo-realistic and stylized graphic approaches to image creation and manipulation. Formerly PF 337

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 331

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 333 - Advanced 3D Character Animation

This course is designed to deeply increase students' 3D computer character animation knowledge. Using industry-standard software, students build character models and skeletons, attach the models to the skeletons, and move the resulting 3D computer characters through a series of exercises as they explore and refine 3D character animation skills. Formerly PF 338

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 331

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 341 - Moving Art: Animation Theory and Production

The aesthetics of animation design and the structural elements of frame-by-frame filmmaking have evolved over time. Analytical, procedural, and historical approaches are brought to bear in the study of animation principles and their development in cinematic history. Formerly PF 327

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 202

Open to Animation majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 401 - Senior Animation Workshop I

Directed independent production of a short film project in an idiom of the student's choosing; additional production of a visual portfolio and reel.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 302

Open to Animation majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 402 - Senior Animation Workshop II

Directed independent production of a short film project in an idiom of the student's choosing; additional production of a visual portfolio and reel.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MAAN 401

Open to Animation majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MACR 304 - Image and Performance

For artists and performers of all disciplines. An intensive cross-disciplinary workshop in which the students create their own short performance works using fusions of video, animation, dance, motion, and sound to explore the interactions between visual media and the performing arts. Formerly PF 331

Prerequisites & Notes

May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MACR 304X - Image and Performance

Meets with MACR 304. For artists and performers of all disciplines. An intensive cross-disciplinary workshop in which the students create their own short performance works using fusions of video, animation, dance, motion, and sound to explore the interactions between visual media and the performing arts. Formerly PF 331X

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: DACR 153, THMD 161, MUPF 864, MUPF 872 or MUPF 874

Open to majors in the College of Performing Arts only. May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MACR 443 - Time: A Multidisciplinary Seminar

The concept of Time considered from a multidisciplinary perspective, drawing on readings in philosophy, literature, psychology, sociology, and film theory. Relevant works in film and video are screened. Students are responsible for a final term paper that interrelates two or more of the readings with one of the screened works. Formerly PF 424

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 302 or MAAN 302

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MACR 499 - Internship

Internship program in which the student, working closely with the Media Arts Department internship advisor, is placed in one of several professional situations. Placements include assisting in professional studios, practice in biomedical photography laboratories, and working for commercial and non-profit galleries, among others. Placements in film and animation are sponsored by local independent production houses and television stations, design firms, and free-lance artists; students of film may assist in location shooting, set production, editing, casting, scripting, and a myriad of other practical tasks. Formerly PF 499

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202, MAPH 202 or MAAN 202

Open to Media Arts majors only. May be taken twice for credit.

MACR 690 - Independent Study

Independent Study offers a matriculated student the opportunity to initiate individual research or advanced projects that are beyond the limits of the standard curriculum, with limited supervision. Independent Study is available to Junior and Senior undergraduate students who have a minimum 2.5 GPA and to graduate students in good standing. Each Independent Study may be taken for one to three credits in Liberal Arts, 1.5 to six credits in CAD, and one to six credits in CPA and CMAC. Independent Study cannot fulfill major requirements. Independent Study may serve as free, studio, and liberal arts electives, depending on the topic of investigation. Students cannot apply more than 12 total credits of independent study towards their degree requirements.

MAFL 101 - Freshman Film

A short survey of the artistic possibilities of film and video. Topics include elements of narrative, the poetics of film, the documentary idiom and video as an art form. Students write two short papers and work on group shooting projects. Formerly PF 128

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Foundation majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MAFL 102 - Video: Strategies and Tactics

Building on the skills and concepts introduced in Time/Motion, (FNDP *161) this course introduces the student to the creative and expressive possibilities of film and video. The course surveys a variety of approaches to film from narrative to documentary to experimental, fosters more critical viewing habits, and provides the student with basic production skills in digital video and audio.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111 FNDP 151 FNDP 161 FNDP 171

Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MAFL 201 - Introduction to Film I

A hands-on introduction to the principles and techniques of media production: shooting 16mm film and digital video, developing a sensitivity to the nuances of movement, understanding lighting and exposure, composition, and the logic of editing. We also survey the historical and aesthetic development of the medium in order to expand the students' sense of the possibilities of the medium. Formerly PF 210A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 202 - Introduction to Film/Digital Video

This course offers an introduction to the basic practices of digital video editing and further creative exploration of the art of moving images. Students perform timing, staging, and blocking exercises to develop a feel for direction, experiment with more advanced film strategies, learn to edit digital video, and investigate relationships between sound and image. A final project integrates these explorations creatively. Formerly PF 210B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 301 - Junior Cinema Production I

First part of a year-long film and digital video production class emphasizing independent filmmaking techniques and concepts. Students explore cinematic ideas through structured and personal filmmaking assignments that emphasize keen visual thinking, story development, and an understanding of film form and film language. Students are taught professional lighting, 16mm sync sound camera technologies, editing and soundtrack strategies, and laboratory procedures. Students also view and analyze significant films. Formerly PF 310A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 302 - Junior Cinema Production II

Second part of a year-long film and digital video production class emphasizing independent filmmaking techniques and concepts. Students explore cinematic ideas through structured and personal filmmaking assignments that emphasize keen visual thinking, story development, and an understanding of film form and film language. Students are taught professional lighting, 16mm sync sound camera technologies, editing and soundtrack strategies, and laboratory procedures. Students also view and analyze significant films. Formerly PF 310B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 301

Open to Film/Digital Video majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 311 - Sync-Sound for Narrative Film

Students in this course explore creative sound design in finished films with instruction and practice in the use of sound recording equipment, sound transfers, building and editing multiple synchronous sound tracks, and preparing for the sound mix. Students work in groups to create and complete a five-minute sync sound film that incorporates the concept of "sound design." Formerly PF 320

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 320 - Film Forum: Selected Topics

Concentrated study of a particular area of film, video, or animation. Courses deal with specific issues and have included: film theory; seminars in sound and installation; studies in Japanese media; the history of video art; and the history of animation. Formerly PF 324

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202 or MAAN 202

Open to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 331 - Experimental Video

An intermediate-level course in digital audio and video production. In the context of screenings and readings drawn from the history of experimental media, students learn to use various digital and optical strategies to approach a variety of thematic issues. This course is a venue for the production of short, aesthetically energized works for a variety of screening environments, and encourages collaboration with Dance and Music majors. Formerly PF 322

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 401 - Senior Cinema Production I

First part of a year-long course in which students produce their own thesis film or video. The students are also introduced to contemporary professional practices including resume writing, applying to film festivals, readings contracts, dealing with copyrights, and financing and distributing independent films. Formerly PF 410A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 311 or MAFL 302

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 402 - Senior Cinema Production II

Second part of a year-long course in which students produce their own film or video. The students are also introduced to contemporary professional practices including resume writing, applying to film festivals, readings contracts, dealing with copyrights, and financing and distributing independent films. Formerly PF 410B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 401

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 460 - Professional Practices in Film/Digital Video

A series of mini seminars in various aspects of professional film and video production. Topics to be addressed include: studio operations, advanced sound recording, sound mixing, and gaffer and grip responsibilities. Independent producers are brought in to conduct workshops on topics of interest. This course supplements, but does not replace, Media Arts required courses. Formerly PF 423

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 302

Open to Film/Digital Video majors; and Film/Animation majors.

MAPH 101 - Freshman Photography

An introduction to fundamental techniques used in black-and-white photography, including camera operation, developing, and printing. Lectures and presentations on the technical aspects of photography as well as the creative and conceptual aspects of the field. Demonstrations on the production of photograms and pinhole images, the use of the copy stand and slide film, mural printing, and a brief description of different camera formats. Formerly PF 125

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Foundation majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MAPH 201 - Introduction to Photography I

Introduction to basic concepts, processes, and techniques of black-and-white photography, including camera operation, exposure, darkroom procedures, lighting, and their controlled applications of these techniques. Emphasis is upon the normative standard of photographic rendering. Formerly PF 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite for all upper-level photography courses. Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts, Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 202 - Introduction to Photography II

While consolidating the student's control of the medium, this course introduces the student to a departure from normative photographic rendering, techniques, and modes of expression and form. Strong emphasis on manipulation of materials, including traditional photographic methods as well as an introduction to computer manipulation. Formerly PF 211B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 282, MAPH 201 or MAPH 221

Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts and Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

MAPH 211 - Color Concepts

Introduction to methods of color shooting and printing, leading to an exploration of the technical and creative possibilities of color in photography. Processes covered include negative and transparency films, filtration, chemical printing, and digital color controls with Photoshop. Formerly PF 217

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Photography majors; Photo and Photo Studio minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. Not open to Foundation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 221 - Introduction to Documentary Photography

Introduces students to documentary photography as it exists in the digital age. Topics covered include the history of documentary photography, 35mm camera operation, digital camera operation, and the ethical, legal, and strategic issues of contemporary journalism. Students create documentary photographic projects utilizing both traditional and digital photographic techniques. Formerly PF 220

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication majors. Not open to Photography majors or Foundation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 281 - Portfolio Documentation

The use of photography to create a portfolio of artwork, exhibitions, and installations is necessary for artists in all visual media. Students learn how to photograph two- and three-dimensional artwork in a studio setting and on location. Instruction addresses a wide range of issues including: artificial and natural lighting, film-based and digital camera operation, image processing techniques, and output options. By participating in lectures, demonstrations, field trips and shooting assignments, students acquire the skills necessary to create a coherent visual portfolio of their work. Formerly PF 203

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 112 or FNDP 152

Not open to Photography majors. Not recommended for Foundation students. May be taken 3 times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MAPH 282 - Photography for Illustrators

This course introduces Illustration majors to the fundamental techniques used in black-and-white photography, including camera operation, developing, and printing, as well as photographic digital imaging. Emphasis is placed on film selection and lighting for both the studio and environmental shooting. The fundamentals of Photoshop are employed for digital image manipulation. Lectures and projects are designed to provide the tools necessary for illustrators who wish to use photography in their work. Formerly PF 209

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Photography majors. Priority enrollment to Illustration and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Photo minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 301 - Junior Photography Workshop

Exploration of photographic imagery through a series of problems aimed at personal vision and creative growth. Formerly PF 311A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202

Open to Photo and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors; Photo and Photo Studio minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 302 - Junior Photography Workshop

Exploration of photographic imagery through a series of problems aimed at personal vision and creative growth. Formerly PF 311B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 301

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 303 - Basic Photography Studio I

Familiarizes the student with the tools, techniques, and language of studio photography. Entails extensive use of the 4" x 5" view camera. Deals with black-and-white materials, sheet film exposure, hand processing, printing large-format negatives, and digital capture and output. Formerly PF 313A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202 or GDES 331

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 304 - Basic Photography Studio II

Continuation of MAPH 303. This course furthers the students' familiarization with the tools, techniques, and language of studio photography and entails extensive use of the 4" x 5" view camera. This semester covers the introduction of color transparency films and strobe lighting, digital capture and output. Formerly PF 313B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 303

Open to Photo majors; Photo and Studio Photo minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 311 - Digital Photography Workshop

Concentrates on the production of creative digital photography; students are encouraged to experiment with new tools and techniques. Film and print scanners, CD-ROM discs, and digital cameras are used to produce images that are critiqued on the basis of both technical proficiency and aesthetic accomplishment. Portfolios are printed on digital output machines and four-color offset. Frequent readings, lectures, and site visits expand the ongoing studio experience. Formerly PF 315

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202

Open to Photo and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors; Photo and Photo Studio minors only.

MAPH 312 - Advanced Digital Photo Workshop

The study of advanced photo imaging techniques. Through a series of problem-solving assignments, students are expected to develop strong digital shooting, scanning, color management, and printing skills as well as competency in advanced Photoshop techniques. A final portfolio of a series of creative images is a course requirement. Formerly PF 333

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 311

Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Photo and Studio Photo minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MAPH 319 - Selected Topics in Photography

Study of one or more various media, methods, or problems in still photography to be offered according to the instructor's interests and students' requests. Topics include: portraiture, documentary photography, digital imaging, color manipulation, photographic illustration, and photo-based mixed media. Formerly PF 323

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Photo majors; Photo and Studio Photo minors only. May be taken four times for credit.

MAPH 320 - Selected Topics in Photography

Study of one or more various media, methods, or problems in still photography to be offered according to the instructor's interests and students' requests. Topics include: portraiture, documentary photography, digital imaging, color manipulation, photographic illustration, and photo-based mixed media. Formerly PF 323

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Photo majors; Photo and Studio Photo minors only. May be taken four times for credit.

MAPH 321 - Surface Altered Photographs

A concentration on the fundamental ideas and techniques for altering the surface of photographic prints, the emphasis is on one-of-a-kind prints, mixed media, and nontraditional materials. Techniques and materials covered include: traditional hand-coloring (oil paint, watercolor, acrylic, pastel, pencil, liquid dyes), toning and bleaching, graphic arts film, Polaroid transfer, photocopier transfer lifts, liquid emulsion, tin-types, and the preparation and painting of digital prints. Assignments, a research paper, slide lectures, and critiques center on creative possibilities, technical proficiency, and the development of increasingly more personalized visual and photographic statements. Formerly PF 334

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors.

MAPH 322 - Photojournalism

This course covers basic photojournalism with a focus on the picture story. Choice of subject depends on the students' individual style of photography and their point of view. The class is built on an intensive shooting schedule emphasizing photographic composition, regular feedback, and the use of appropriate equipment. The class covers selecting story ideas, picture editing, writing captions and preparing text blocks to accompany photographs, and business aspects of the field such as how and where to sell or publish work. Formerly PF 335

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 323 - Fashion and Editorial Portrait Photography

This course explores the real world of fashion and editorial photography. Students learn to present both themselves and their work professionally. They visit professional studios and, on occasion, collaborate with art directors. They learn to interpret and execute assignments dealing with deadlines and other restrictions posed by commissions. Photographers, art directors, and studio assistants are invited into the class. Emphasis is placed on expanding and maintaining personal vision in a commercially oriented context. Formerly PF 336

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 301 or MAPH 303

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 341 - Critical Issues in Photography

Concentrated study of the concepts of photographic criticism. Extensive reading, writing, and discussion of contemporary photographic literature, exhibitions, and trends are required. An in-depth examination of the photographic medium from an historical and critical viewpoint. Field trips to galleries and museums, and attendance at visiting lecture events are required to place current trends in photography in a critical context. Formerly PF 415A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 301

Open to Media Arts majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 401 - Senior Photography Workshop

Continuation of Junior Photography Workshop. Students work on long-term individual projects or solve short-term problems to develop technical, aesthetic, and conceptual mastery of the medium. Formerly PF 411A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 302

Open to Photo majors; Photo and Studio Photo minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 402 - Senior Photography Workshop

Continuation of Junior Photography Workshop. Students work on long-term individual projects or solve short-term problems to develop technical, aesthetic, and conceptual mastery of the medium. Formerly PF 411B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 401

Open to Photo majors; Photo and Studio Photo minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 442 - Contemporary Issues in Photography

Analysis and study of contemporary photographic practices and trends. Extensive reading, writing, and discussion with attention to current showings and exhibitions are required. The course requires field trips to galleries and museums, and attendance at visiting lecture events to place current trends in photography in a larger historical and critical context, and to assist students in placing their own work within the canon of photographic expression. Formerly PF 415B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 341

Open to Photo majors; Photo and Studio Photo minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 460 - Professional Practices

Study of the practice of professional photography, with attention to various career opportunities, portfolio presentation, business practices, professional ethics, photographic law, intellectual property in the age of digital duplication and personal objectives. A variety of professional guests visit the course. Formerly PF 413

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 301 or MAPH 303

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 101 - Visual Communication Studio

All communication takes place through language. However, not all language uses words. This course allows students to harness the power of visual language in order to convey messages and meaning. The elements of drawing and two-dimensional design that are covered include point, line, shape, composition, texture, color, type, and image. Although non-digital mediums are addressed, the exploration of digital tools for the screen is a primary goal. Individual creativity is stressed. Formerly MM 110

MMDI 102 - Motion Graphics Studio

Motion graphics can be found in a wide range of media: broadcast, Web, animation, and film to name a few. This course allows students to explore the elements of time and space to convey messages and meaning through type, image, and sound for the screen. Individual creativity is stressed as well as the understanding and use of an industry-standard software for developing motion graphics. Both collaborative and individual exercises and assignments are given. Formerly MM 111

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 101

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 111 - Introduction to Interface Design

The software interface represents the focal point of user interaction with the various modes of multimedia communication. Readings by interface theorists inform discussions on the evolution of the software interface, conceptual models, prototypes, interaction design, deliverables, and basic concepts of human-computer interaction. Avenues for pursuing interactive media design in entertainment, publishing, and education are also addressed. Current technologies, including the trend from soft to hard interfaces are studied, in terms of their potential short- and long-term influence on communication and multimedia. Basic methods for rapid prototyping and testing are considered. Formerly MM 121

MMDI 131 - Introduction to Interactive Programming

This course is an introductory programming class, appropriate for students with no prior programming experience. Traditionally, introductory programming teaches algorithmic problem-solving, where a sequence of instructions describe the steps necessary to achieve a desired result. In this course, students are trained to go beyond this sequential thinking – to think concurrently and modularly. By its end, students are empowered to write and read code for event-driven graphical user interfaces, client server chat programs, networked video games, and user interfaces. Formerly

MM 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 141 - Collaboration and Spontaneity

Through a series of exercises, class discussions, and readings, students explore what it means to work as part of a team. Students learn to develop environments in which the creative process is encouraged to unfold. The basic assumptions that affect the formation of collaborative groups, such as personal responsibility, authority relations, leadership issues, individual differences, competition, the development of norms, and the generation and uses of power, are experienced, explicated, and examined. Students work within this collaborative environment to explore the connections between spontaneous verbal and nonverbal communication. Formerly MM 150

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 150 - Information Concepts

Emphasis is on the importance of organizing and communicating information in a digital world. Students acquire a basic understanding of how computers operate and communicate with each other, as well as an understanding of the evolution of the personal computer and the industries that have spun out of this technology. Student assignments include readings, database projects, and written analyses. Formerly MM 130

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 200 - Introduction to Multimedia

An introduction to the basic software environments for digital interactivity. After concentrating on creating nonlinear texts, students investigate the integration of other media elements. Subjects include the use of buttons, screen navigation, transitions, basic scripting, and controlling sound and video. Formerly MM 219

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Multimedia majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 201 - Visual Concepts Studio

Visual problem solving in a digital environment. A project-based visual art/design studio that builds on skills developed in Motion Graphics Studio. This course allows students the time to concentrate on and refine the visual communications aspects of their craft through three fully realized pieces. Projects are assigned by the instructor, and conceived of and developed by the students. Projects may include: titling design and animation, visual interface design, graphic design, CD packaging design, poster and postcard design, digital painting and drawing, etc. Formerly MM 210

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 102

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 212 - Game Design Studio

This course focuses on creating interactive games and exploring the concepts and practical application of game design. Games are developed for the Web, computer, and nondigital mediums. Course activities include lectures and studio practice, including completion of assignments, exercises, and projects. Individual creativity is stressed, as well as collaborative game development skills. Students leave the course having produced several games. Formerly MM 222

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 220 - Documentation and Presentation

In this course, students learn how to document their work for professional presentation. It focuses on issues relating to digital documentation and includes skills such as documenting projects, cross platform digital presentation, editing trailers of videos and using a copy stand. Students document previously completed multimedia work and then present that work. Guest speakers augment classroom lectures and activities. Formerly MM 250

Prerequisites & Notes

Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 1 cr, 2 hrs

MMDI 231 - Dynamic Web Development

Creating dynamic web solutions is an essential aspect of web development today. In this course, students build upon existing concepts learned in Intro to Interactive Programming. The focus is on client and server side programming and relational database design for the web. Examples of dynamic web applications include context management systems, custom audio and video players, and e-commerce solutions.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 131

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 241 - Interactive Narrative

Introduces students to new ways of thinking about interactivity and storytelling. Students analyze how the interactive structure of an experience creates narrative. Short readings discussed in class range from Surrealist Dada and Fluxus language games to the experimental literature of Joyce and Burroughs to the literary theory of Barthes and Eco.

Students examine contemporary examples of interactive media such as avatars, virtual realities, role-playing games and Internet sites. Formerly MM 223

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 242 - Digital Storytelling

This class explores how visual and aural languages complement the verbal while providing instruction in the use of multimedia software. After collecting old photographs, movies, tape recordings, and meaningful objects, students create stories associated with them in digital form. Formerly MM 231

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 245 - Writing for Games

A writing laboratory that allows students to develop competency in writing rule-based procedural description as well evocative storylines for games and user/play scenarios. Special emphasis is placed on the difference in writing required between game types (chance, puzzles, and strategies) as well as game genres such as role-playing, twitch, and games of perfect information. Formerly MM 240

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 250 - Survey of Multimedia

Examines the chronological evolution of digital technology and its inevitable application by the aesthetic community. Beginning with the development of digital technology in the mid-1940s, the course discusses the convergence of the scientific, military, and political environments that spawned the employment of digital technology, including the path that led to the digital dominance over analog. Includes the enhancement, exploitation, and embracing of digital technology by the corporate and aesthetic communities, the invention of the personal computer and its ancillary products, and the application of digital technologies in fields as diverse as medicine, communications, manufacturing, cognitive psychology, and in particular, the arts. Pioneers in all fields are identified and examined. Formerly MM 271

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 301 - Interactive Sound and Video

The course deals with the experience of producing complete multimedia installation works in a project-based environment focusing on interactive sound and video. Lectures and meetings augment this studio course. Individual creativity is stressed as well as collaboration in the creation of works through individual and group projects. Assignments vary in scale, and focus on appropriate planning and information architecture, as well as acquisition and creation of content in various media. Authoring environments used include but are not limited to MAX MSP, Isadora, and Macromedia Director. Previously introduced concepts and technology are re-explored with an emphasis on integration and effectiveness in the communication of the concept of the piece. Formerly MM 310

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 302 - Multimedia Studio II

The experience of producing complete multimedia works in a project-based environment. Lectures and meetings augment this studio course. Individual creativity is stressed as well as collaboration in the creation of works through individual and group projects. Assignments vary in scale, and focus on appropriate planning and information architecture, as well as acquisition and creation of content in various media. Programming environments used include, but are not limited to, HTML, Lingo, and Java Script. Previously introduced concepts and technology are re-explored with an emphasis on integration and effectiveness in the communication of the concept of the piece. Formerly MM 311

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 305 - Game Design Thesis

Students complete a fully marketable game prototype. Students and instructors examine how the gaming industry functions as well as research and develop an individual work. Special attention is paid to preparing to enter the field. Students must have completed Game Design minor requirements. Formerly MM 344

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Minor.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 315 - Advanced Interface Seminar

A seminar course that builds on Introduction to Interface Design. Focuses on the issues involved in creating user interfaces in today's development platforms (hardware, software, input devices, cell phones, etc.). Lectures, discussions, readings, research, and writing constitute the body of this course. In addition to current interface trends, the process of developing the interfaces of tomorrow is addressed. Formerly MM 320

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 319 - Innovation & Entrepreneurship

Both the business world and the arts are built on continuous innovation. This course will identify common principles and divergent processes in these highly competitive arenas and look for a shared language to facilitate collaboration between them. Students will use a case study model for the analysis and synthesis of new ideas. Students will be expected to identify and construct fruitful ideas with which to proceed and then to apply market, operation/technological and economic metrics to them.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 or USP Equivalent PA 315, 316, 323

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 320 - Business Seminar

In this course, students build on the skills learned in Documentation and Presentation. Students construct a digital portfolio of work that they have completed. They also create resumes, curriculum vitae, and project proposals. As part of this class, they participate in a mock interview for a job, go on an informational interview for an internship/job, and do a presentation in the form of their Multimedia Junior Review. Formerly MM 350

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 220

Students must have completed the second semester of their Sophomore year (60 credits).

Credits: 1 cr, 2 hrs

MMDI 330 - E-Music Thesis Project

A culminating course for students in the E-Music minor in which they develop an application. Students develop a proposal for an application and carry the idea through research implementation, execution, and presentation. With the consent of the instructor, projects may be the work of one student or that of a group of students, be in a variety of shapes, and in a variety of media. Students must have completed E-Music minor requirements. Formerly MM 370

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of other Minor courses.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 335 - Programming for Games

An introduction to programming for interactive game environments. Students learn techniques and theory through exercises and applications that they construct. The programming language studied can change each semester and may include: FlashAction Scripting, Advanced Lingo for Games, C++, or Java. Formerly MM 341

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 353 - Psychology of Human/Computer Interaction

Students explore the ways humans perceive interacting with computers. How do humans treat computers? Why? Should we interact with them the same way we do with other humans? The reasons behind why some computer interfaces work and some do not are discussed in depth. Should computers be able to perceive our emotions? Or should computers themselves have emotions? The final for this course allows students to take part in designing an original interface solution. Formerly MM 360

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 354 - Game Play

A lecture-based focus on the human behavior in the how and why of play and creativity. Course material examines the relationship between creativity and play, the effects of reward and punishment, cultural notions of play, and the integration of play with design play. Students examine the differences between informed and uninformed play as well as the phenomenon of flow. Formerly MM 342

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 401 - Senior Studio I

Studio course that makes use of all the students' previous instruction. One self-directed project is completed each semester. Students are expected to be prepared on the first day of each semester with a proposal that includes, but is not limited to, a schedule, map, research, executive summary, and supporting documentation. Projects can be collaborative or individual. Students are encouraged to try both over the course of the year. Formerly MM 410

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 320

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 402 - Senior Studio II

Studio course that makes use of all the students' previous instruction. One self-directed project is completed each semester. Students are expected to be prepared on the first day of each semester with a proposal that includes, but is not limited to, a schedule, map, research, executive summary, and supporting documentation. Projects can be collaborative or individual. Students are encouraged to try both over the course of the year. Formerly MM 411

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 320

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 405 - Innovative Interfaces

The notion of the digital environment transcends the concept of the computer as we know it. These addresses and environments, although supported by digital technology, are non-computer-like in many respects. Building them calls for changes in the choice of interaction devices (using touch, voice, gestures, and possibly just user's intent as a basis for interaction), shape and size of computers (no boxes, but interactive surfaces), their location (floor, wall, pocket), as well as change in content structure. Using cross-disciplinary data from cognitive and computer sciences and social psychology, the students in this research/studio course focus primarily on the design and development of innovative ways of interacting with digital technology. Formerly MM 440

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 419 - Strategic Business Planning

The capstone in the entrepreneurship minor, this requires the creation of a business plan. Students will research, develop, and prototype their ideas forming them into viable ventures. The course will culminate in public presentations and juries with venture grant(s) awarded to the winning business plan(s).

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 319

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 420 - Exhibition and Promotion

In this course, students continue to build necessary professional and business skills. Students learn about promoting their work, writing business plans, applying for grants, ownership and patent issues, writing press releases, printing promotional materials, and getting their art/design shown. Students promote and exhibit their senior project to be completed in MMDI 401 or MMDI 402. Formerly MM 450

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 320

Credits: 1 cr, 2 hrs

MMDI 421 - Issues in Multimedia Seminar I

These courses serve as vehicles for discussion of current topics in multimedia. Special attention is paid to the discussion of emerging technologies and criteria for evaluating their effectiveness, appropriate use, and potential. Ethical issues surrounding new media are discussed. Formerly MM 470

Prerequisites & Notes

Students must have completed the second semester of their Sophomore year (60 credits). May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 1.5 hrs

MMDI 422 - Issues in Multimedia Seminar II

These courses serve as vehicles for discussion of current topics in multimedia. Special attention is paid to the discussion of emerging technologies and criteria for evaluating their effectiveness, appropriate use, and potential. Ethical issues surrounding new media are discussed. Formerly MM 471

Prerequisites & Notes

Students must have completed the second semester of their Sophomore year (60 credits). May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 1.5 hrs

MMDI 425 - Special Projects in Multimedia

This seminar is designed to give students direct contact with their soon-to-be peers in the various multimedia industries. The multimedia industries that may be covered include but are not limited to: fine art, interface design, installation art, game design, and electronic music. Timely and relevant issues concerning the craft, thought, and professional expectations of a multimedia artist/designer are the content of this course. Topics related to the multimedia industries in general and the instructor's specific industry experience are discussed. Readings, discussion, and a practical presentation or project make up the body of this course. Formerly MM 472

Prerequisites & Notes

Students must have completed the second semester of their Sophomore year (60 credits). May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 499 - Multimedia Internship

Students are placed with regional companies to expose them to a professional work environment in the fields of multimedia, web design and information management. Formerly MM 499

Prerequisites & Notes

Student must have completed the first semester of their Sophomore year (45 credits). May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 1 - 6 cr

MMDI 690 - Independent Study

Independent Study offers a matriculated student the opportunity to initiate individual research or advanced projects that are beyond the limits of the standard curriculum, with limited supervision. Independent Study is available to Junior and Senior undergraduate students who have a minimum 2.5 GPA and to graduate students in good standing. Each Independent Study may be taken for one to three credits in Liberal Arts, 1.5 to six credits in CAD, and one to six credits in CPA and CMAC. Independent Study cannot fulfill major requirements. Independent Study may serve as free, studio, and liberal arts electives, depending on the topic of investigation. Students cannot apply more than 12 total credits of independent study towards their degree requirements.

Credits: 1.5 - 6 cr

MSEM 600 - Museology

Introduction to the social and cultural theory underlying museum practice. The museum is studied as a dynamic institution. Its structure and functions are examined in the context of political, economic, and social change. A seminar/lecture course, students study the writings of the founders of modern museum theory focusing on the development of museums and their service to the public, learning as a central focus of contemporary museums, and the shift from private to public support and responsibility for museums. Formerly MS 600

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs. Priority enrollment to Museum Studies.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 601 - Museum Seminar: The Museum Society

Lecture/seminar course exploring the history, organization, and operation of the museum as a cultural/educational institution, an economic entity, and a management enterprise. Visiting lecturers bring a wide range of knowledge and practices from their respective institutions and consultancies to provide the student with insight into the differences between museums of different types, sizes, and missions. The course provides students with an overall understanding of the museum as an institution and an introduction to the many roles played by museum professionals. Offered in the evening. Formerly MS 501

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 602 - Museum Seminar: The Exhibition and Educational Programming

Lecture/seminar course exploring the philosophy and history of museum exhibitions and the development of the museum exhibition discipline. Visiting lecturers bring a wide range of knowledge and practices from their respective professional disciplines and provide insight into museum exhibition practice. Provides students with an overall understanding of the role exhibitions can and do play in public institutions. Offered in the evening. Formerly MS 502

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 603 - The Museum Audience

Lecture into practice course focusing on the visitor experience through museum communications and learning. Designed to identify the characteristics of the museum visitor, the ways in which visitors experience museum exhibitions, cognitive and affective behavior, the relationship of museum exhibitions and educational programming, and the impact of institutions and visitor studies on the planning and design of institutions, museum exhibitions, and environments. Formerly MS 508

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 610 - Museum Exhibition Design Studio

The primary vehicle for exploring and developing museum exhibition planning, design, project organization, and presentation skills/techniques. This studio focuses on the foundations of museum exhibition development and design: space planning, color, light, informal education, communication, content, interaction, and crafting experiences. Formerly MS 610A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

MSEM 611 - Museum Exhibition Design Studio

The primary vehicle for exploring and developing museum exhibition planning, design, project organization, and presentation skills/ techniques. This studio focuses on the foundations of museum exhibition development and design: space planning, color, light, informal education, communication, content, interaction, and crafting experiences, with the addition of project management, model making, and group dynamics. Formerly MS 610B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 610

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

MSEM 614 - Museum Graphics

Writing, design, and production of museum graphic components. Graphic Design is defined as any visual information communicated through word and image. Formerly MS 620A

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GREM 601

Open to Museum Studies majors only. Computer literacy required.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 615 - Museum Lighting

A lecture/demonstration/workshop course dealing with the manipulation of light and color in the built environment, specifically museums. Formerly MS 620B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 616

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 616 - Exhibition Materials and Methods

This course gives students an in-depth acquaintance with exhibit fabrication/construction processes, techniques, methods and materials, how to research and specify appropriate materials, and how to use those materials in the best way. Formerly MS 623A

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: MSEM 610

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 617 - Exhibition Materials and Methods

Demonstration/studio course directed at the problems of exhibit production, organization of drawings and packages, clear communication to suppliers of materials and services, and the use of Mac-based CAD (computer aided design), specifically Vectorworks. Formerly MS 623B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 616

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 621 - Media for Museum Communication

Computer literacy, familiarity with Macintosh operating system required. A laboratory/workshop course on utilization of appropriate technological media, with emphasis on the creation of visitor interaction. Formerly MS 622

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 614 or GREM 610

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 630 - Museum Education Practicum

This course is designed to develop the practiced insight and skills needed as a professional in a museum environment working with all age groups. It provides opportunities for preliminary observations and experience with professional museum educators and directors led by a professor who conducts the seminar in conjunction with the museum visits and guest speakers. Through this process students develop dynamic teaching techniques that explore and interpret information, concepts, and cultural values that a museum collection communicates. Hands-on techniques and experiences with curriculum development and methodology help students prepare for their research and internship. Formerly MS 510

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Museum Education majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 631 - Educational Programming for Museums

Prepares museum educators for the development of educational programs and plans for diverse types of museums and alternative learning sites. Exposes students to current issues and trends in museum education such as interdisciplinary and integrated learning, and issues of diversity. Methods of interpreting works of art, artifacts, and collections are studied. Extensive, "theory into practice" component provides students with the opportunity to apply theory to actual permanent collection and temporary exhibition projects at area museums. Formerly MS 615

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MSEM 603, MSEM 630

Priority enrollment to Museum Education majors. Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 641 - Museum Governance: Legal Issues, Ethics, and Museums

Legal status of the museum and its obligations to the public, governance, staffing, and policy-making as a nonprofit organization. Establishing collections policies, laws, regulations, conventions, and codes that affect acquisitions, deaccessions, loans, and collections care. The case study method is used to examine the issues, the law, and the decisions that affect today's museums. State, federal, and international legislation, common law, and the applications of administrative law in museums are examined. Examines the complex relations of museums and museum professionals with trustees, collectors, donors, dealers, outside interest groups, and artists. Formerly MS 602

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 601 or MSEM 600

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 642 - Development, Fundraising, and Grantsmanship

An introduction to the development process as it relates to fundraising and, more specifically, grants writing. This course addresses the changing nature of funding for museums today, and sources of funds. In a lecture/workshop setting, students learn current techniques for formulating institutional funding requests under the guidance of an instructor and visiting experts in the museum field. Students acquire professional knowledge of museum practices in development and revenue generation; skills in developing a strategic fundraising plan and preliminary case statement plan, and carrying out its elements for specific institutions and for specific funding objectives. Formerly MS 650

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 643 - Collection Management and Computer Applications in Museums

Students acquire the skills and knowledge necessary to develop, implement, and supervise collections management projects. Emphasizes data processing applications related to collections management, documentation, and other museum functions, including collections administration, loan requests, rights and reproductions, exhibition planning and design, publications, collections security, and project management. Topics include multimedia and digital imaging, graphics, and database development and processing standards. Instruction in computer languages, database development and use, and digital imaging. Word processing experience and access to a computer are expected. Database management experience is helpful. General level of computer experience expected. Formerly MS 651

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 600

Open to Museum Studies majors only. Computer literacy required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 644 - Video, Film and Technology for Museum Interpretation

Students become familiar with important historical, philosophical, and site-based interpretive uses for media in museum settings through a practicum that includes analysis of media (video, film, and technology) in transferring knowledge and information in the museum environment. Relates to the artistic, historical, and content techniques of a variety of moving image and multimedia approaches. Research, planning, supervision, outsourcing, and execution of media pieces for museum environments are explored. Computer literacy is expected. Formerly MS 619

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs. Computer literacy required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 646 - Publications, Public Relations, and Marketing

Organizational principles and practices as they relate to the processes of public relations and museum communication (primarily print media). Topics include public relations, interpretive and informational publications, advertising, identity, audience development, and marketing. Addresses the use and creation of publications, marketing plans, institution and exhibition-based public relations, the creation of effective identity programs, and audience development through membership and outreach programs. In a workshop setting, students learn to create effective publications and print media, and discuss Web-based communication. Students work under the guidance of a university professor and visiting experts in the museum field. Formerly MS 621

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 614

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 690 - Graduate Museum Project

A culminating research project concerning museum studies, management, and education. The project is completed in one semester and includes the study of research in the field, a team project with the Museum Exhibition Planning and Design, and Museum Communication programs, and an individual project related to the student's main area of interest within the museum education profession. This course provides preparatory research for the culminating museum internship. Formerly MS 648

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Education majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 692 - Graduate Museum Project: Museum Communication

A culminating research project concerning museum studies, management, and exhibition. The project is completed in one semester and includes the study of research in the field. A team project with the Museum Exhibition Planning and Design, and Museum Education programs, and an individual project related to the student's main area of interest within the museum communication profession.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 695 - Museum Internship: Museum Education

Taken in a cooperating museum, the internship represents full-time employment equivalency under the mentorship of a professional museum educator. It is intended to provide practical on-site experience in which the intern is integrated into the museum staff, assuming professional-level responsibilities and experience. A University professor also observes, advises, and assesses the student during the internship. Formerly MS 658

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Education majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 - 6 cr

MSEM 702 - Issues in Museums Seminar

Presents and discusses current political and social issues, which may unexpectedly, sometimes problematically, affect museum practice, particularly in the public areas of exhibition, programming, and publications. Recent examples would include controversial exhibits, legal, gender, race, cultural, and religious issues impacting museums; and the public right to participate in the museum experience as an active contributor. Museum scholars, specialists, and university faculty offer in-depth examination of current topics. Students complete projects designed to develop professional ability to deal with emerging debates in the museum profession and the knowledge of the impact of politics and the mass culture on museum policies and practices. Formerly MS 601

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 601 or MSEM 600

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 711 - Museum Exhibition Design Studio

The primary vehicle for exploring and developing museum exhibition planning, design, project organization, project management, and presentation skills/techniques. This course focuses on the exhibition in its tangible/ physical form, taking concept into reality. Documentation, construction documents, schedules, budgets, and specifications are the deliverables. Formerly MS 710

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MSEM 601, MSEM 611

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

MSEM 716 - Advanced Exhibition Materials and Technology

Formerly MS 624

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 780 - Thesis Research

Examines the principle approaches to research. The nature of appropriate research methods for selected thesis topics; the approaches and benefits of various methodologies; and the steps in research design. Students identify a research problem, design a study, collect and analyze data, compile, interpret and report results. Formerly MS 740

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 781 - Thesis Development: Museum Exhibition Planning and Design

Independent research and design in an area supporting the student's career objectives and interests. Formerly MS 749A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 611 or MSEM 780

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 782 - Thesis Development: Museum Exhibition Planning and Design

Independent research and design in an area supporting the student's career objectives and interests. Formerly MS 749B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 781

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 783 - Thesis Development: Communication

Independent research and design in an area supporting the student's career objectives and interests.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MSEM 780 Open to Museum Communication majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 784 - Thesis: Communication

Independent research and design in an area supporting the student's career objectives and interests.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 783

Open to Museum Communication majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 785 - Thesis Development: Museum Education

Independent research and design in an area supporting the student's career objectives and interests.

Prerequisites & Notes

MSEM 780

Credits: 3 cr, 3hrs

MSEM 790 - Independent Study

Independent Study offers a matriculated student the opportunity to initiate individual research or advanced projects that are beyond the limits of the standard curriculum, with limited supervision. Independent Study is available to Junior and Senior undergraduate students who have a minimum 2.5 GPA and to graduate students in good standing. Each Independent Study may be taken for one to three credits in Liberal Arts, 1.5 to six credits in CAD, and one to six credits in CPA and CMAC. Independent Study cannot fulfill major requirements. Independent Study may serve as free, studio, and liberal arts electives, depending on the topic of investigation. Students cannot apply more than 12 total credits of independent study towards their degree requirements.

Credits: 1.5 - 6 cr

MSEM 795 - Museum Internship

A supervised practicum in a cooperating museum, gallery, or design firm. The internship represents full-time employment equivalency under the mentorship of a professional. Provides practical on-site experience, in which the intern is integrated into the professional staff, assuming professional-level responsibilities and experience. Formerly

MS 759

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 1.5 - 3 cr, 1.5 to 3 hrs

MSEM 796 - Museum Internship: Museum Communication

A supervised practicum in a cooperating museum, gallery, or communication firm. The internship represents full-time employment equivalency under the mentorship of a professional. Provides practical on-site experience, in which the intern is integrated into the professional staff, assuming professional-level responsibilities and experience.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUCP 131 - Composition: Forms & Concepts I

The first semester of this team-taught course is a hands-on exploration of standard and non-traditional compositional forms. After analyzing various forms, students will have the opportunity to apply those concepts and skills to their own compositions in different genres.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Composition majors only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUCP 132 - Composition: Forms & Concepts II

The second semester of this team-taught course introduces the primary skills and resources that belong in every composer's toolbox, sequencing, and counterpoint. After analyzing various techniques, students will apply those concepts and skills to their own compositions in different genres.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Composition majors only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUCP 141 - Calligraphy

Professional methods of musical score and part preparation, both in the traditional way with paper and pen, and with computer programs. An elective for all majors. Formerly MU 121

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MUSC 102

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUCP 322 - Analysis and Composition of Contemporary Music

An examination of compositional techniques used in pop songs, jingles, soundtracks, and underscores for radio, TV, records, films, shows, and industrials. Students investigate the ways in which music serves to enhance the overall goals of the product or project. Musical analysis serves to demonstrate how each style is created. Students produce their own musical compositions in each media context. Formerly MU 308A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MUSC 204, MUSC 206

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 1.5 hrs

MUCP 323 - Analysis & Composition of Commercial Music

Continuation of MUCP 322. Formerly MU 308B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MUCP 322

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 1.5 hrs

MUCP 325 - Fundamentals Film & Video Scoring

Formerly MU 325

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MUCP 331, MUCP 361

Open to Composition majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUCP 331 - Jazz Arranging I

A functional approach to ensemble scoring including score analysis, combo arranging, arranging for mixed instrumentation, musical settings for vocalists, string writing, writing for pop recording, and special techniques for multi-track recording. Formerly MU 315A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MUCP 361

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUCP 332 - Jazz Arranging II

A functional approach to ensemble scoring including score analysis, combo arranging, arranging for mixed instrumentation, musical settings for vocalists, string writing, writing for pop recording, and special techniques for multi-track recording. Formerly MU 315B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MUCP 361

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUCP 361 - Orchestration I

An introduction to instrumentation, designed to acquaint the student with ranges, transpositions, and characteristics of individual instruments and voices. Aural and score analysis provide the basis for understanding vocal and instrumental treatments in small and large ensembles. Written orchestrations are required. Formerly MU 317A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MUSC 203, MUSC 205

Open to majors in the School of Music only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUCP 362 - Orchestration II

Primarily intended for composers, this course presents an analytical history of orchestration. Coursework culminates in a large project that is scored and critiqued. Composers are encouraged to orchestrate their own compositions. Formerly MU 317B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MUCP 361

Open to majors in the School of Music only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUCP 441 - Form and Analysis

This course serves as a continuation of the theory work that Freshman Instrumental, Vocal, and Composition majors have done in the first year. It is designed to enhance basic classical theory skills; to prepare them for graduate-level theory work; and to prepare them to meet the requirements on the theory portions of the teacher certification examination. The emphasis is upon small and large harmonic forms, and forms built upon ostinati principles. The literature used for study is drawn from all musical periods. Harmony, rhythm, melody and timbre are discussed as they relate to specific compositions. Formerly MU 408

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MUSC 102

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUCP 624 - Composing for Performers

A dual emphasis — on acoustic instruments and on technologies — exposes students to a variety of professional composing situations, including large jazz ensembles, fusion, acoustic/electronic hybrids, films, videos, musical theater, and jingle writing. Techniques using MIDI, MAX, and electronic composition are explored. Faculty and guest composers present workshops on their own approaches. Students learn to use the recording studio as an instrument and use notation software for score and part preparation. Student works are rehearsed and performed by graduate and advanced undergraduate ensembles. Formerly MU 624

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUCP 631 - Graduate Arranging

Emphasis is on effective writing in various contemporary styles and building on basic arranging skills, with a focus on specific arranging techniques such as writing for the rhythm section, horn voicings, sax solo, and contemporary fusion styles. Arrangements are studied in score format and aurally, and then techniques are applied to student projects. Formerly MU 622

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUCP 641 - Advanced Transcription and Analysis

Accurate notation, transcription fluency, and recognition of theoretical concepts are developed through a regime of continual and rigorous assignments, all designed to further advance skills in ear training and theory. Projects begin with single line melodies in varying instrumental registers and progress through advanced rhythms and chord progressions to complete arrangements and compositions. Sources include bass lines, synthesizer sequences, pop recordings, jazz improvisations, and drum solos. Students learn techniques and performance practices of varying styles and periods, and then perform transcribed parts and solos. Formerly MU 617

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUED 110 - Brass Instruments

Students learn basic breathing, embouchure, sound-production, and fingerings for standard band and orchestra brass instruments, appropriate repertoire and pedagogy, and diagnosing typical problems of beginning performers. The performance emphasis is on cornet/trumpet, and horn and trombone, with euphonium and tuba being assigned to brass and bass majors.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the School of Music only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUED 111 - Flute & Double Reed Instrument

Students learn basic breathing, embouchure, sound-production, and fingerings for flute, appropriate repertoire and pedagogy, and diagnosis of typical problems of beginning performers. The performance emphasis in this course is on flute, with an introduction to oboe and bassoon.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the School of Music only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUED 112 - Folk and Social Instruments

Students learn basic techniques for guitar and other selected folk and social instruments, appropriate repertoire and pedagogy, and diagnosis of typical problems of beginning performers.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the School of Music only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUED 113 - Percussion Instruments

Students learn basic drum-performing techniques and an overview of all pitched and non-pitched standard band and orchestra percussion section instruments, appropriate repertoire and pedagogy, and diagnosis of typical problems of beginning performers. The performance emphasis of this course is on drum set, with timpani and mallet percussion being assigned to percussion majors.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the School of Music only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUED 114 - Single Reed Instruments

Students learn basic breathing, embouchure, sound-production, and fingerings for standard band and orchestra woodwind instruments, appropriate repertoire and pedagogy, and diagnosis of typical problems of beginning performers. The performance emphasis in this course is on clarinet and saxophone.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the School of Music only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUED 115 - String Instruments

Students learn basic bowing techniques, hand positions, and fingerings for standard orchestral instruments, appropriate repertoire and pedagogy, and diagnosis of typical problems of beginning performers. The performance emphasis of this course is on violin and electric bass, with viola and cello being assigned to bass majors.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the School of Music only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUED 320 - Music Pedagogy I - Private Lessons

Pedagogical and practical aspects relative to teaching private lessons. Students study the components of lessons, various pedagogical approaches, the interpersonal nature of private instruction, repertoire selection, diagnosis of problems, and administrative issues that are part of both private lessons and developing and managing a studio.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MULS 212 or MULS 222 or MULS 232

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUED 321 - Music Pedagogy II – Improvisation

The pedagogy of teaching improvisation to students of all ages, including an evaluation of literature available for various levels of difficulty.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MUSC 232

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUED 400 - Psychology of Music Teaching & Learning

This course covers major theories and developments associated with music cognition and child development in physical, emotional, and psychological terms; and principles supported by psychological observation and investigation that appear to possess import for the teaching/ learning endeavor in music. Emphasis is placed on the application of learning theories to practical considerations of teaching, including motivation, learning sequence, student-teacher interaction, and classroom management. Developmental theories, like those of Piaget and Erikson, and current research in cognitive science, are explored with attention to selecting learning experiences in the music and art classrooms.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUED 401 - Music and Special Children

This course consists of readings, discussions, guest speakers, classroom observations, and simulated teaching to help students define and examine various types of disabilities; develop a background on special education practices and laws in America; develop an appreciation of the needs of handicapped persons in general society, in education, and in music education; and guide music education students in developing goals and objectives, adapting lessons and preparing meaningful lesson plans for special students in the music classroom. Participation in class discussion — based on assigned reading, a written/verbal presentation on a specific disability, field observations, and two written examinations provide the basis for evaluating student achievement.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUED 430 - Rehearsal Techniques - Jazz Ensemble

Appropriate rehearsal techniques are studied along with rehearsal planning, score study and analysis, repertoire evaluation, selection, interpretation and preparation, performance aspects such as tuning, balancing, phrasing, and teaching improvisation in the rehearsal setting. Special topics include starting and building jazz programs, and jazz for younger students.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MULS 212, MULS 222 or MULS 232

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUED 431 - Basic Conducting

An introduction to a basic repertoire of conducting patterns and gestures, providing students with a hands-on laboratory conducting experience, and giving them opportunities to utilize their music theory analytical and aural skills. Through lectures, laboratory activities, and assignments, students are introduced to the technical skills used in conducting, are provided with opportunities to explore and implement them, and develop assessment strategies to improve their conducting.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MUSC 204, MUSC 206

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 401

Instructor permission required.

THST 440 - New Play Workshop

This workshop explores the collaborative relationship between the playwright, director, and actor in the practical creation of a new work. Within a supportive environment that encourages risk and exploration, the new work is developed through dramaturgical investigation, class discussion and critiques by the instructor, and results in an informal reading of the piece. Formerly TH 412

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 361

Priority enrollment to Applied Theater Arts majors. Open to majors in the School of Theater Arts. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THST 441 - Stage to Video Production

Project work both behind and in front of the camera. Each actor works on a monologue or scene chosen in consultation with the instructor to make his/her work in front of a camera compelling, secure, and believable. ATA students deal with Production Assistant responsibilities, such as continuity, assisting directing, etc. Student assignments may vary according to strengths and interests. Special benefit: students can use excerpts from the workshop for a "video audition" commonly required by today's casting directors, agents, and film/TV directors. Formerly TH 430

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 341

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

THST 443 - Acting for Film I

For acting students who want to gain advanced knowledge and experience in acting for film and television. The primary goal of the class is to bring out each actor's natural talent, which is often the most "marketable" in the film and television industry. Each actor works on a monologue or scene — chosen in consultation with the instructor — to make his/her work in front of a camera compelling, secure, and believable. Special video sessions give each participant a valuable, hands-on experience in acting for the camera. The actors are also able to see and evaluate each other's film work during a special screening session at the end of the course. The actors use excerpts from their monologue/scene for a "video audition" commonly required by today's Casting Directors, Actor's Agents, and Film/TV Directors. Formerly TH 400A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 341

Open to majors in the School of Theater Arts only.

WRIT 460 - Interarts Project

Provides an opportunity for writers and students throughout the University to collaborate on a semester-long project. Students jointly submit project proposals for approval and develop them to completion. Emphasis is placed on the student's ability to consider the artistic and technical implications of the combined media while successfully integrating art forms in a considered and polished final piece. Formerly WM 43

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the College of Media and Communication only. Students must have entered after Fall 2005.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 499 - Internship

Seniors are placed with regional companies to expose them to a real work environment in the field of media. Placements vary and can include local network-affiliated television stations, public broadcasting stations, film production companies or multimedia manufacturers. A paper or journal chronicling the experience is required upon completion of the internship. Formerly WM 499

Prerequisites & Notes

Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 690 - Independent Study

Independent Study offers a matriculated student the opportunity to initiate individual research or advanced projects that are beyond the limits of the standard curriculum, with limited supervision. Independent Study is available to Junior and Senior undergraduate students who have a minimum 2.5 GPA and to graduate students in good standing. Each Independent Study may be taken for one to three credits in Liberal Arts, 1.5 to six credits in CAD, and one to six credits in CPA and CMAC. Independent Study cannot fulfill major requirements. Independent Study may serve as free, studio, and liberal arts electives, depending on the topic of investigation. Students cannot apply more than 12 total credits of independent study towards their degree requirements.

The College of Art and Design offers the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Animation, Crafts, Film/Animation, Film/Digital Video, Graphic Design, Illustration, Multidisciplinary Fine Arts*, Painting and Drawing, Photography, Printmaking/Book Arts, and Sculpture. A major in Industrial Design leads to the Bachelor of Science degree. Crafts offers a post-baccalaureate certificate program. Art Education offers a post-baccalaureate pre-certification program.

At the graduate level are programs leading to the degrees of Master of Arts in Art Education, Master of Arts in Museum Communication, Master of Arts in Museum Education, Master of Industrial Design, Master of Arts in Teaching in Visual Arts, Master of Fine Arts in Book Arts/Printmaking, Master of Fine Arts in Museum Exhibition Planning and Design, and a low-residency Master of Fine Arts in Ceramics, Sculpture, or Painting. Teaching certification is offered on a non-degree basis, either independently or in conjunction with an undergraduate degree in the College of Art and Design. Concentrations in Art Therapy and Digital Fine Arts are offered, as well as eight minors.

All programs are dedicated to the development of the individual artistic spirit and vision within each student; the study of the historical and contemporary precedents that have shaped our culture; and the full range of analog and digital methods and processes that give form to the visual arts.

Class Size and Structure

Each department is unique, with its own curriculum and structure, but in every department, classes are small and informal. Faculty advisors and the generous student/faculty ratio assure close individual attention and assistance throughout a course of study.

One of the important teaching modes in the college is the critique, or crit, an evaluation of student work by the instructor with the participation of the class. Given informally to the class or individual as often as once a class, crits have proven to be an invaluable method for the development of critical thinking and self-awareness, which are major educational goals in our programs.

Credit-Hour Ratio

In general, credit is earned at the ratio of one credit for two class-contact hours in studio courses. Please refer to the course descriptions for specific information.

PCA Diploma Holders Seeking a UArts Bachelor's Degree

Diploma graduates of the Philadelphia College of Art may apply credits earned for the diploma toward the University's baccalaureate requirements. For additional information and to apply, contact the Office of the Registrar.

Exhibition Program

The Exhibition Program showcases major contemporary exhibitions related to the University's diverse academic curricula in design, crafts, and the fine arts.

Over the years, the Rosenwald-Wolf Gallery, the University's primary exhibition space, has attracted national and international artists to the campus. Artists who have had one-person exhibitions in the gallery include Vito Acconci, Siah Armajani, Alice Aycock, Willie Cole, Gregory Crewdsen, Robert Crumb, Rosalyn Drexler, John Duff, Richard Fleishner, April Gornik, Lois Greenfield, Alex Grey, John Hejduk, James Hyde, Daniel Jackson, Maira Kalman, Barbara Kasten, Mel Kendrick, Jon Kessler, Donald Lipski, Henry Moore, Ree Morton, Robert Motherwell, Isamu Noguchi, Thomas Nozkowski, Jack Pierson, Irving Penn, Anne and Patrick Poirer, Yvonne Rainer, Judith Shea, Pat Steir, Lenore Tawney, Paul Thek, George Trakas, and Lebbeus Woods. In addition, the gallery has presented notable historic exhibitions of design: Philippe Apeloig, Geoffrey Beene, Alexei Brodovich, Czech Cubism, Charles Eames, Dan Friedman, Frogdesign, Milton Glaser, Keith Goddard, Daniel Jackson, Matthew Liebowitz, Memphis, Milano, and Samuel Yellin.

Additional exhibition spaces in Dorrance Hamilton Hall Galleries, the Solmssen Court Gallery, and the Window on Broad furnish opportunities for faculty, alumni, students, and regional talents. Nearly every department also launches its own series of exhibits.

The galleries in Media Arts, The Mednick and 1401, The Art Education Gallery, the Fine Arts Galleries, Gallery 817, and the Printmaking/Book Arts Gallery, and the Richard C. von Hess Illustration Gallery all show works of emerging and established artists. Student-run invitational and juried exhibitions in Gallery One give students the experience of installing shows. Museum Exhibition Planning and Design MFA students gain experience and skills from their practical work in the galleries. Highlights of the year are the Annual Student Show, a featured Commencement event, and Senior Student and Master of Fine Arts exhibitions.

Borowsky Center for Publication Arts

The Borowsky Center for Publication Arts is a unique educational arm of the University providing students, staff, faculty, and visiting artists a resource to explore the creative potential inherent in the offset lithographic printing medium. The Center enables qualified users to experience the complete graphic arts process from initial conceptualization through production, while maintaining the highest printing standards. The Center is equipped with a Heidelberg Kora 19 x 25 offset press, a Dos horizontal camera, a darkroom for shooting and developing negatives, and platemaking and stripping facilities. Staffed with a master printer and student assistants, the Borowsky Center produces a wide variety of printed material including posters, catalogs, brochures, announcements, limited edition prints and artists' books. The Center's Fact Sheet, which includes all procedures for project submittal, is available in the CAD Dean's office.

The Imaging Labs

The Imaging Labs are fully equipped pre-press and output facilities that accommodate Graphic Design, Book Arts, The Borowsky Center for Publication Arts, Illustration, and Printmaking, among many other departments. The output centers house a Dolev 400 image-setter, film processor, Cannon LC 155 color fiery printer, Epson Stylus V4800 Pro, HP large-format six color printer, and Macintosh workstations. Imaging Labs also have a traditional darkroom with three copy cameras, one enlarger and one contact frame. Non-silver classed do all their darkroom work in this facility.

The Imaging Labs process film and color output for student work and departmental needs. Students are able to work in the lab under technicians and learn the workings of pre-press and high-end digital output. Imaging workshops are held with classes in the lab, as well as one-on-one consultations with students in the final stages of creative digital work for critiques, portfolios, and thesis exhibitions.

College of Art and Design Undergraduate Programs

All freshman students enter the 18-credit Foundation core program that includes courses in drawing, two-dimensional design, three-dimensional design, and time-motion studies. The Foundation program introduces the basic language and processes of the visual arts and prepares the students for entry into a major department. Through freshman elective course offerings, students are introduced to major course options and opportunities offered by the College of Art and Design.

In the sophomore year, students select a major from one of the following departments:

- Crafts: Ceramics, Fibers, Metals, Wood
- Fine Arts: Painting and Drawing, Printmaking/Book Arts, Sculpture, Multidisciplinary Fine Arts
- Graphic Design
- Illustration
- Industrial Design
- Media Arts: Animation, Film/Digital Video, Photography

The major program is augmented by required and elective courses in other departments in CAD, CPA, and CMAC to encourage an awareness of the productive interaction that can occur between the many disciplines available at the University. Alternative career opportunities are often developed by students stimulated by courses outside their major.

The college currently offers three concentrations and seven minor programs that can augment or complement the student's major course of study.

All departments offer internships and/or practicums to study off-campus during the junior and senior years. Frequent field trips to museums, galleries, artists' studios, and design studios in Philadelphia, New York, and Washington, D.C., supplement their regular work in studios and workshops.

Academic Advising

Academic advising at the University is designed to provide maximum information and assistance to students from the time they enter the Foundation program in their freshman year until they complete their final semester as seniors.

In the Foundation year, each student is assigned to a Foundation section with its own advisor. Each student is required to meet with the advisor at least once each semester and is encouraged to seek out the advisor as soon as any difficulties begin to occur.

At the end of the Foundation year, when the student selects and enters one of the major departments, the student is assigned to a faculty member who teaches in that department. This faculty member serves as that student's advisor for the next three years. Each student meets with his or her advisor at least once a semester to discuss the student's academic program.

In addition, there are two formalized advising sessions:

1. Second semester, freshman year: When students enter a major department, the advisor meets in small groups (four to five students) to orient them to collegiate and departmental academic requirements and standards, departmental expectations, elective options and opportunities, program strategies, two-year planning, and office hours.
2. Second semester, junior year: Individual meetings to review progress, plan final year (both semesters), and review graduation requirements. Students may access their degree audit by signing into the University Portal at any time.

Faculty advisors have access to degree audits and transcripts for the students they advise following the recording of grades each semester.

BFA Degree Requirements: Credit Distribution by Category

The student is ultimately responsible for completion of all course requirements for the degree program in which he/she is enrolled. The College requires a minimum of 123 credits for graduation (126 for the BS in Industrial Design). A student carrying an average of 15.5 credits per semester would be making normal academic progress toward graduation.

The general credit structure for the BFA is as follows:

| Courses | Credits |
|--------------------------|----------------|
| Foundation | 18 |
| Major department credits | 42 |
| Elective | 21 |
| Liberal Arts | 42 |
| Total credits | 123 |

Electives

Elective studio credits may be completed in any department at the College of Art and Design, the College of Media and Communication, or the College of Performing Arts.

- Students are required to take at least nine credits of studio elective courses outside of their major program.
- Major studio departments may require up to six credits of the 21-credit elective requirement in another studio major, and/or Liberal Arts.
- Students may select up to six credits of Liberal Arts courses to be used towards the 21-credit elective requirement, as long as the department has not also required the allocation of six credits of Liberal Arts from the 21-credit elective requirement.

Minimum Grade Requirements

The professional orientation and preparation of the College of Art and Design's undergraduate major degree programs require students to achieve beyond the University's minimum academic standards.

Students must achieve a grade of 'C' or better in all College of Art and Design major course requirements and any required courses in other departments, including a discipline history if applicable.

Students who receive a grade of "C-" or lower in a required major course must repeat the course. The degree requirement for that student will be increased by the number of credits that must be repeated.

Students who receive 'C-' or lower grades in major courses are required to schedule an appointment with the chair of their department during the first week of classes of the semester immediately following the semester in which the 'C-' or lower grade was received. After advising with the chair, students must adjust their schedule accordingly during the Drop/Add period.

A student who receives more than one grade of 'C-' or lower in required major courses in a given semester will be reviewed by the Academic Review Committee and placed on academic warning, even if the student's GPA is above 2.0.

An excessive number of grades of 'C-' or lower in major coursework may result in dismissal. Students who are unable to achieve minimum grades in major coursework are advised to speak with their advisor and consider transferring to another major.

The Art Therapy and Education concentrations are special courses of study that are offered in conjunction with the studio major programs. Interested students should refer to the program requirements of those concentrations.

Every student must have the approval of his or her department to proceed to the next level of coursework. Advising is a shared responsibility between the department and the student. Each must remain informed about the student's progress toward graduation. Finally, the student's petition to graduate must be approved by the department advisor or chairperson in consultation with his/her faculty.

Minors/Concentrations

The University offers minors and concentrations for students who wish to focus on a specific discipline through organized electives. Please note that minors are offered by all three colleges at UArts. Please refer to the other college sections of this catalog for additional information about offerings, eligibility, prerequisites, and course requirements. You may also contact the departments directly for additional information.

Students wishing to include a minor as part of their undergraduate program should be advised that it is not always possible to complete a minor, and there are no penalties for starting a minor and not completing it. Students are not permitted to continue pursuit of the minor once all degree requirements have been met. All University minors are governed by the following guidelines:

1. Students must meet eligibility requirements, which may include a satisfactory grade-point average, prerequisites, and departmental portfolio review.
2. Intent to complete a minor is declared by filing the completed Minor Declaration Form with the Office of the Registrar. The forms are available in the Office of the Registrar.
3. A student may not major and minor in the same program, except where indicated.
4. Courses applied to the minor may only be applied towards elective requirements.
5. All minors require a minimum of 15 credits, with the exception of E-Music for Music majors. Generally, no substitutions to the minor requirements are allowed. In exceptional situations where substitutions are granted, they must have the approval of both the major and minor program advisors.
6. The requirements of the minor must be completed prior to graduation.
7. A student pursuing a minor may be required to complete more than the minimum number of credits required to complete the undergraduate degree in order to also complete the minor.
8. Minors are available only to undergraduate students.

Internships

Internships courses are available for all students in the College of Art and Design. They reinforce and expand classroom theory and practice and allow the student to test possible career choices and get a feel for the workplace. Students applying for an internship must meet the following eligibility requirements: junior or senior level in a BS or BFA program, a 2.5 cumulative grade-point average and be registered for no more than 18 credits, including those from the internship during the semester. No more than six Internship credits may be credited toward a BS or BFA degree.

Each internship course has a Faculty Advisor who is responsible for coordinating the internships, placing students with workplace sponsors, advising students on course requirements, and deciding on the final pass/fail grades.

Students who are interested in pursuing an internship may obtain Internship information from their faculty advisor, the Career Services Office, or the Dean's Office in CAD. Students sign up for internships during the registration process. The internship course is graded on a pass/fail basis and carries three academic credits. For further information please see the Internship section of the Academic Policies and Procedures section of this catalog, and the course descriptions in the back of this catalog.

Study Abroad Programs

Opportunities to study abroad are available through a number of programs hosted by other institutions. Interested students should meet with the chair of their major department to discuss the appropriate program, timing, and feasibility of off-campus study. Those who choose to participate should contact the Study Abroad Office. To learn about the application process click here.

Cooperative Program with Philadelphia University

An agreement between The University of the Arts and Philadelphia University (formerly Philadelphia College of Textiles and Science) permits a limited number of students in each institution to register for a maximum of three undergraduate credits per semester at the sister institution without the payment of additional tuition.

Students are limited to a total of six undergraduate exchange credits during their four-year enrollment at the home institution. Registration is available on a selective basis for qualified students and is restricted to courses not offered at the home institution.

Interested students should contact the Office of the Registrar at 215-717-6420 for additional information and registration materials.

Association of Independent Colleges of Art and Design (AICAD) Mobility Program

The College of Art and Design at The University of the Arts is a member of the Association of Independent Colleges of Art and Design (AICAD). Students in good standing may spend a semester, usually in their junior year, as a guest at another participating member institution. Students remain matriculated at The University of the Arts, and with their advisor's prior approval will receive full credit for work done at one of the following cooperating institutions:

College of Art and Design Graduate Programs

Susan Viguers
sviguers@uarts.edu
Graduate Coordinator
215-717-6270

Graduate study in the College of Art and Design provides intensive professional preparation in a stimulating multi-arts environment. A select range of specialized graduate degrees in Fine Arts, Design, and Visual Arts Education features focused curricula, small classes, dedicated faculty, and access to outstanding facilities and resources.

All programs address interarts and/or interdisciplinary issues through both studio activity and the University Seminars on "Structure and Metaphor," and "Art and Society," which bring students together from all graduate programs at the College of Art and Design. Additionally, all MFA students take the University Seminar on "Criticism."

A University of the Arts education extends beyond the classroom and studio. Through partnerships, workshops, residencies, internships, and symposia, students engage the larger art, design, and education communities and interact with some of today's most important artists, designers, and educators in a broad range of disciplines.

The College of Art and Design offers these graduate programs: Master of Fine Arts degrees in Book Arts/Printmaking, Museum Exhibition Planning and Design; low-residency summer Master of Fine Arts degrees in Ceramics, Painting, or Sculpture; Master of Industrial Design; Master of Arts in Art Education; Master of Arts in Museum Communication; Master of Arts in Museum Education; Master of Arts in Teaching in Visual Arts.

Graduate Programs: Minimum Grade Requirement

A cumulative GPA of 3.0 is required for good standing and for graduation for graduate students. Students must also achieve a grade of B or above in all program-required courses. If they receive a B- or lower in any such course they will be required to repeat it. The original course/grade will remain on the student's record along with the repeated course/grade, and the degree requirement for the student will be increased by the number of credits that must be repeated.

A student whose GPA is lower than 3.0 or a student who receives more than one grade of B- in a program-required course (even if the student's GPA is above 3.0) will be reviewed by the Academic Review Committee and placed on academic probation.

Please also refer to the Academic Policies and Procedures section of this catalog for a full listing of policies that pertain to all UArts graduate students.

Graduate Thesis Requirements

CAD graduate programs require each graduate student to meet specific thesis requirements. The requirements may include a thesis exhibition or project, and should be successfully completed once the student has fulfilled all other program requirements. Students must submit two copies of their thesis to their program director in order to qualify for the degree. One copy of the thesis remains with the department and one is submitted to the Greenfield Library.

Leave of Absence for Low Residency MFA Programs in Ceramics, Painting or Sculpture

MFA C/P/S students are limited to one off-semester leave of absence between the first and third summers. If a longer leave of absence is necessary, the student will be asked to take a break from the program for a full year.

Summer Graduate Electives Policy

Students wishing to complete studio or liberal arts electives during University summer sessions may review pre-approved summer course offerings in the spring with their program advisor and may register for these courses only after obtaining approval and the signature of the CAD Graduate Coordinator. A maximum of six credits is transferable to the graduate curriculum.

Transfer Credit

Studio courses must be 300-level for graduate credit. Two hundred-level courses may be taken with justification from the director and written approval from the Graduate Coordinator. Art Education Competency may be taken as an independent study.

Changing Graduate Programs

Students enrolled in a CAD graduate program wishing to change degree programs must apply through the Office of the Registrar by completing an Application to Change Programs. A change of program is not automatic and occurs only when the applicant meets the acceptance requirements of the program to which they wish to transfer.

Graduate Seminars

The graduate seminar serves as a lively, interdisciplinary forum that brings together students engaged in discreet graduate programs to examine relationships between contemporary visual culture and historic ideas about art and design. Recognizing Philadelphia as a setting and laboratory for the development of collaborative projects and career initiatives, students in the seminar can discuss and apply ideas being explored in their own fields of study in order to identify and cultivate connections between and beyond their respective areas of study.

In practice, graduate seminar study emphasizes the development of writing, research, and critical skills to aid students in the communication and documentation of their work and ideas — both in the major, as it pertains to their specific explorations, and in the wider contemporary context of art and design issues. The seminar experience offers students the opportunity to develop presentation skills by maximizing the use of multimedia applications for presentations of their research results.

Each graduate program in The College of Art and Design offers a selection of seminars designed to inform the direction of the major curriculum. Seminar course listings, Structure and Metaphor, Art and Society, and Criticism are described in the course descriptions, and are listed as part of each graduate program's curriculum.

Animation - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

The Animation program in the Media Arts Department prepares students to work in computer, traditional, stopmotion, and experimental animation. The basic principles of animation can be applied to all forms of image and object manipulation. The program gives its graduates a strong understanding of timing and motion, and a grounding in the wide variety of techniques available to the animator. Animation majors get a solid background in life drawing and traditional modes of animation, as well as 2D and 3D computer animation. Animation majors choose the area(s) on which to focus as they construct their junior and senior thesis films.

Sophomore Year Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

WRIT 251 and WRIT 252 Narrative Cinema I and II are required of all Animation majors. WRIT 252 Narrative Cinema II can be counted as a studio elective, or liberal arts course.

MAAN 201 - Introduction to Animation I

Through a series of drawn exercises concentrating on timing, movement, and weight, the student acquires an understanding of fundamental animation principles. Formerly PF 212A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111, FNDP 121 or MMDI 101

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 201 - Introduction to Film I

A hands-on introduction to the principles and techniques of media production: shooting 16mm film and digital video, developing a sensitivity to the nuances of movement, understanding lighting and exposure, composition, and the logic of editing. We also survey the historical and aesthetic development of the medium in order to expand the students' sense of the possibilities of the medium. Formerly PF 210A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

ILUS 285 - Drawing for Animators

Focuses on introducing and developing the skills and disciplines needed for good figurative animation drawing. The primary issues of anatomical figure drawing with a strong emphasis on the structure and solidity of the figure, good proportions, and specific movement and gesture as they relate to the model. Topics also covered: two-dimensional versus three-dimensional ways of translating form; how perspective and viewpoint are used with the figure and their effect on scale; exaggerated foreshortening techniques; diagrammatic and expressive line quality; facial expressions; hand and foot studies; capturing movement through gesture; and introduction to animal drawing for animation. Formerly IL 205

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Animation and Film/Animation majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 231 - Introduction to Computer Animation

This introductory course develops the student's understanding of digital movement and imaging through animation exercises using a variety of 2D software programs on the PC platform. No previous computer experience is required. Formerly PF 216

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Animation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

WRIT 251 and WRIT 252 Narrative Cinema I and II are required of all Animation majors. WRIT 252 Narrative Cinema II can be counted as a studio elective, or liberal arts course.

MAAN 202 - Introduction to Animation II

Students are introduced to under-the-camera animation using varied mediums such as puppets, cut-outs, and painting-on-glass. Special attention is given to non-narrative approaches to animation. A final project is created using one or more of the techniques explored during the semester. Formerly PF 212B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 201 or MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 202 - Introduction to Film/Digital Video

This course offers an introduction to the basic practices of digital video editing and further creative exploration of the art of moving images. Students perform timing, staging, and blocking exercises to develop a feel for direction, experiment with more advanced film strategies, learn to edit digital video, and investigate relationships between sound and image. A final project integrates these explorations creatively. Formerly PF 210B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 252 - Narrative Cinema II

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 252

MAAN 301 - Junior Animation Workshop I

The first half of this course is devoted to the creation of a short, client-based project. The second half involves an interdisciplinary group project aimed at refining students' knowledge of animation movement design. Formerly PF 312A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 202

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 325 - Storyboarding

The ability to create effective visual continuities represents a fundamental skill in animation and live-action filmmaking. In this class, an understanding of narrative story structure and the ability to translate words into images will be developed through exercises dealing with the specifics of shot and shot sequence design. Storyboards will be expanded into animatic form and will include the creation of basic soundtracks.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MAAN 201, MAAN 202, MAFL 201, MFAL 202

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

MAAN 232 - 2-D Computer Animation

Using both raster- and vector-based programs, students explore how to build 2D animation sequences in the computer and how to translate hand-drawn animation into digitally composited animated pieces. Traditional animation principles are expanded upon and reinforced using 2D computer graphics and editing programs. Digital imagery and sound are integrated in class assignments designed to explore a wide variety of 2D styles. Formerly PF 316

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 231 or MMDI 102

Priority enrollment to Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 331 - 3-D Computer Animation

Using industry-standard 3D computer software, students learn basic modeling, texturing, lighting, movement, and rendering techniques. This course prepares students for further 3D computer coursework and allow them to utilize 3D software in the development and creation of their Junior and Senior thesis work. Formerly PF 326

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 231 or MMDI 102

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 3 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

MAAN 302 - Junior Animation Workshop II

This course focuses on the creation of a personal, 1.5 minute animated piece, starting from initial conception and ending with final output to digital of film media. Stages in the production cycle include storyboarding, animatics, animation, inking and painting, sound image editing, and final output. Formerly PF 312B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 301

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 341 - Moving Art: Animation Theory and Production

The aesthetics of animation design and the structural elements of frame-by-frame filmmaking have evolved over time. Analytical, procedural, and historical approaches are brought to bear in the study of animation principles and their development in cinematic history. Formerly PF 327

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 202

Open to Animation majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors only.

Open to Animation majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 320 - Film Forum: Selected Topics

Concentrated study of a particular area of film, video, or animation. Courses deal with specific issues and have included: film theory; seminars in sound and installation; studies in Japanese media; the history of video art; and the history of animation. Formerly PF 324

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202 or MAAN 202

Open to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Liberal Arts Distribution

Note all Liberal Arts courses are 3 credits.

- Liberal Arts Electives Credits: 15 cr

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 9XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - 20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI course in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR*102 and LACR*210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Animation Minor

This minor concentrates on the development of drawing skills that embrace a sense of timing and movement. The program also includes instruction in the basics of film and video technology. Film/Digital Video and Animation majors may not declare an Animation Drawing minor.

Requirements for the Minor

MAAN 201 - Introduction to Animation I

Through a series of drawn exercises concentrating on timing, movement, and weight, the student acquires an understanding of fundamental animation principles. Formerly PF 212A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111, FNDP 121 or MMDI 101

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 202 - Introduction to Animation II

Students are introduced to under-the-camera animation using varied mediums such as puppets, cut-outs, and painting-on-glass. Special attention is given to non-narrative approaches to animation. A final project is created using one or more of the techniques explored during the semester. Formerly PF 212B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 201 or MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 301 - Junior Animation Workshop I

The first half of this course is devoted to the creation of a short, client-based project. The second half involves an interdisciplinary group project aimed at refining students' knowledge of animation movement design. Formerly PF 312A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 202

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 302 - Junior Animation Workshop II

This course focuses on the creation of a personal, 1.5 minute animated piece, starting from initial conception and ending with final output to digital of film media. Stages in the production cycle include storyboarding, animatics, animation, inking and painting, sound image editing, and final output. Formerly PF 312B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 301

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 201 - Introduction to Film I

A hands-on introduction to the principles and techniques of media production: shooting 16mm film and digital video, developing a sensitivity to the nuances of movement, understanding lighting and exposure, composition, and the logic of editing. We also survey the historical and aesthetic development of the medium in order to expand the students' sense of the possibilities of the medium. Formerly PF 210A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Art Education - Graduate Concentration in Educational Media

The Concentration in Educational Media, as part of a Master of Arts in Art Education, is designed to prepare graduate students to use, plan, and manage technology in the K-12 art curriculum and classroom. Educational media are those digital tools and applications used for creative and instructional purposes within a K-12 classroom and school setting. The use of educational media, therefore, is not solely for developing creative expression in students, but also as a means to support the teaching and learning of K-12 art.

Candidates for this Concentration are students with a background and training in both technology and art who want to integrate the use of technology into the teaching of art. Students in the Master of Arts in Art Education program who complete this Concentration will serve as classroom art teachers integrating technology into their curriculum and practice, and as technology leaders in their school and district.

Requirements

A Master of Arts in Art Education major must complete a total of 12 credits in required core and elective courses in technology for a Concentration in Educational Media. The other remaining six credits may be elective courses that the student chooses to advance his or her study of technology.

In addition to these 12 credits toward a Concentration in Educational Media, the graduate thesis/project (six credits) will be directed toward research involving the use of technology in art education. Competencies and specific requirements for the Educational Media Concentration are the following:

Technology Competencies

To acquire the following basic competencies in technology, a student may take University technology courses, workshops, and tutorials, including those offered through the Continuing Studies Professional Institute for Educators. Based on a review of portfolio and approval by the Art Education Department, a graduate student may be excused from this requirement.

- Macintosh and Windows operating environments
- Navigation, menu, file management, and transfer and storage skills
- Productivity skills (word processing and spreadsheet)
- Navigational and information search and retrieval skills (Internet and World Wide Web)
- Electronic presentation skills (PowerPoint, etc.)
- Computer graphics knowledge, concepts, and skills (raster, vector, and Web graphics)

Required Core Courses

Two related semester courses form the required core of the concentration in Educational Media A: Teaching and Learning, and Educational Media B: Planning and Management. These two core courses are designed to be taken together as a year-long sequence. Educational Media A: Teaching and Learning focuses on the conceptual, curricular, and instructional approaches and strategies needed to integrate digital technologies into the K-12 art classroom. Educational Media B: Planning and Management examines the issues and topics related to designing technology environments for K-12 art education.

Concentration Requirements

- Elective: 6 cr

AEDU 621 - Educational Media A: Teaching and Learning Online

This online course provides students with the knowledge, skills, and strategies to successfully integrate educational media into the teaching and learning of K-12 art. Areas of study include theoretical and conceptual basis for educational technology, instructional practices and strategies, approaches to integrating technology into the curriculum, training and development of technology skills, such as computer graphics, Web page design, and electronic presentations; and issues and problems related to technology use in education. Formerly AE 507

Prerequisites & Notes

Computer literacy required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 622 - Educational Media B: Planning and Management Online

This online course addresses the design, planning, and management of educational media in the K-12 classroom and school. Topics include developing a technology plan; software and hardware acquisition and assessment; care, maintenance, and security of classroom and lab computer technologies; networking concepts, design, and protocols; Internet basics and issues; and managing technological and human resources. Online guest speakers support the study of these topics. Independent online visitations to either K-12 educational settings, technology fairs, conferences, or businesses. Formerly AE 509

Computer literacy required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 695 - Graduate Project/Thesis

Culminating independent project supervised by a faculty advisor. The graduate project or thesis may take either of two distinct forms: a) an academic thesis presenting original research in a significant historical, theoretical, or pedagogical question relating to visual arts education, or b) a studio or curriculum project intended for use as a pedagogical tool. Formerly AE 649

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 602, AEDU 606, AEDU 610

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 - 6 cr

NOTE: AEDU 695 Graduate Project/Thesis may be taken as a six-credit block or in two three-credit blocks. To remain in good standing while the thesis is "in-progress", students may register for the thesis continuation fee for each semester they are not enrolled in coursework. Students must be registered for the semester in which they defend their thesis, and until the thesis is completed and bound copies are submitted to the Art Education Department.

Art Education - Master of Arts

Coordinating professional education courses with work in liberal arts, graduate research, and a concentration in studio arts that include emerging digital and alternative media, the MA in Art Education Program offers custom designed programs of study to meet individual needs. A series of graduate education seminars address historical and contemporary issues in art theory, criticism, and education. Drawing on the wide range of studio departments, nearly one-third of the program is reserved for work in one or more studio areas, liberal arts, art therapy, or educational media depending upon the student's particular background and career needs. The independent thesis or graduate project, which is normally completed in two semesters, may take the form of either an academic research paper or a graduate project in an appropriate format.

Fall Credits: 12

AEDU 509 is required of students who do not pass the Art Education Department Writing Proficiency Exam. The exam must be taken and passed with a score of 80 percent or higher in the first semester of enrollment and it does not fulfill any credit requirements for the MA. If a student must take AEDU 509, his/her semester will include a total of 14 credits.

- Electives Credits: 6 cr

AEDU 509 - Professional Writing Intensive

This course is required for students entering all art education programs (pre-certification, MAT, MA, MA+EM) who have not passed the Art Education Department writing proficiency exam. It addresses the use of effective and cogent written communication for the teacher, artist, and administrator to classes, groups, or clients. Formerly AE 599

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

AEDU 606 - Research in Education: Methods and Trends

A graduate education seminar on principal approaches to research for art and museum education. The course examines types of research, applications and recent studies for their methodologies and findings, grant writing, and assessment techniques. Formerly AE 606

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Art Education and Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRAD 650 - University Seminar: Structure and Metaphor

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from the several graduate programs examine theoretical issues of structure and metaphor in relation to art and design. Topics include cognition and perception, meaning and representation, and systems of organization and expression. (May be taken to satisfy Aesthetics and Art Criticism co-requisites for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 691

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 12

AEDU 695 Graduate Project/Thesis may be taken as a six-credit block or in two three-credit blocks. To remain in good standing while the thesis is “in-progress,” students must register for the thesis continuation fee for each semester they are not enrolled in coursework. Students must be registered for the semester in which they defend their thesis, and until the thesis is completed and bound copies are submitted to the Art Education Department.

- Elective Credits: 3 cr

AEDU 602 - History of Ideas in Art and Museum Education

Seminar on major issues and trends in the history of art and museum education, with an emphasis on child-centered and content-centered theories and the theoretical antecedents of Discipline-Based Art Education, the Visual Culture movement, and standards-based education. Formerly AE 602

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Art Education and Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 695 - Graduate Project/Thesis

Culminating independent project supervised by a faculty advisor. The graduate project or thesis may take either of two distinct forms: a) an academic thesis presenting original research in a significant historical, theoretical, or pedagogical question relating to visual arts education, or b) a studio or curriculum project intended for use as a pedagogical tool. Formerly AE 649

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 602, AEDU 606, AEDU 610

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 - 6 cr

GRAD 651 - University Seminar: Art and Society

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from all graduate programs examine theoretical issues relating to the place of art and design in society. Topics include the social role of the artist/designer, public policy and the arts, issues of post-modernism, and aesthetic and ethical implications of emerging arts communication technologies. (May be taken to satisfy Sociology/Anthropology corequisite for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 692

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Fall Credits: 12

AEDU 695 Graduate Project/Thesis may be taken as a six-credit block or in two three-credit blocks. To remain in good standing while the thesis is “in-progress,” students must register for the thesis continuation fee for each semester they are not enrolled in coursework. Students must be registered for the semester in which they defend their thesis, and until the thesis is completed and bound copies are submitted to the Art Education Department.

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr
Please See the Liberal Arts Curriculum for Course Selection
- Elective Credits: 3 cr

AEDU 610 - Graduate Studio Seminar

A one-semester interdisciplinary seminar exclusively for art educators. Topics of broad concern to studio artists are addressed in response to students' work, assigned readings, and occasional public lectures or other art events in the University and the community. Formerly AE 610

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 695 - Graduate Project/Thesis

Culminating independent project supervised by a faculty advisor. The graduate project or thesis may take either of two distinct forms: a) an academic thesis presenting original research in a significant historical, theoretical, or pedagogical question relating to visual arts education, or b) a studio or curriculum project intended for use as a pedagogical tool. Formerly AE 649

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 602, AEDU 606, AEDU 610

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 - 6 cr

Must take this course for 6 credits.

Art Education Pre-Certification Concentration

Sophomore Year Credits: 15

- Math Elective: 3 cr
- British/American Lit. Credits: 3 cr

AEDU 200 - Presentation Skills

This course addresses effective speech and presentation skills for the teacher, artist, and administrator communicating with groups, classes, or clients. Formerly AE 200

Credits: 1 cr, 2 hrs

AEDU 201 - Introduction to Visual Arts Education

A theoretical and practical introduction to the entire field of art education with an emphasis on studio processes. A survey of various aspects of teaching in a variety of situations and environments, through field observations and classroom lecture-discussions, including public and private schools K-12, as well as specialized and alternative settings in museum education, early childhood education, special education (for students with disabilities and gifted children), and adult education. Formerly AE 201

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 226 - SIFT: Fundamentals of Mathematics

An introduction to the fundamental mathematical principles and operations used in undergraduate courses in the physical and social sciences. Topics include sets, logic, probability, statistics, number theory, algebra and geometry. The course includes a module on scientific method which is common to all SIFT courses.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Open to all students. LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 871 - Child & Adolescent Psychology

This course is developmentally oriented and focuses on Erikson's psychosocial stages of life from birth to adolescence. Major topics include pregnancy, the birth process, and the physical, intellectual, emotional, and social development of the child. Family life and parent-child relationships are also examined, with particular attention given to the impact of our social institutions upon parents and children. Formerly HU 181A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Art Education, Art Therapy concentration and Dance Education.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

This course also counts toward the liberal arts core of the bachelor's degree

AEDU 533 - Art and Inclusionary Education

This course is designed to provide the full scope of methodologies, techniques and innovative strategies needed to teach special education students effectively. Using the arts as a means for adapting to diverse learning methods, the K-12 classroom is regarded as a dynamic setting for inclusionary learning. The impact of special needs art education is further realized through direct school and community engagement; programs and national as well as local organizations are made available to assist in developing field placements. Arranged field placement opportunities include a broad range of community resources. Formerly AE 533

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs field work (8 weeks)

AEDU 541 - Program Design & Methods: Elementary

Through review of current literature, lectures, discussion, field observation, and miniteaching, students explore various educational philosophies and develop and implement effective classroom curricula based on prevailing theories of learning and child development. Topics include management issues; interdisciplinary content and teaching of art; evaluation and assessment of teaching and learning; and the integration of digital technology. Formerly AE 547

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: AEDU 201

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs; 3 hrs field work (8 weeks)

This course has a required field placement.

AEDU 543 - Aesthetics and Art Criticism

This course is designed to develop skills, techniques, and strategies for integrating developmentally appropriate aesthetics and art criticism activities in the K-12 classroom. Using prevailing theories of learning, teaching, and child development, students will design puzzle cases, activities, and curricula that promote the philosophical investigation and interpretation of art and aesthetic objects. Formerly AE 549

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 830 - Modern Art

At the beginning of the twentieth century, artists responded to new technological forces and the pressures of mass culture in styles such as cubism, constructivism, and surrealism – styles that are still being explored by our contemporaries. The course surveys the period 1880-1980, emphasizing the continuity of the modern artist's situation and role. Formerly HU 357

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

(preferred) or a Discipline Art History

LASS 820 - Individual & Society

An examination how the individual person is related to society, considering the ways in which society is a separate reality that regulates and even defines the personality and identity of the individual person. After covering some introductory material on culture, definitions of situations, social location, socialization, and deviance, a few sociological works are examined in depth that discuss such subjects as street gangs, ethnicity, social mobility, suicide, morality instincts, and the nature of the self. How the individual can be free in the context of the constraints of society is a major issue addressed within the course. Formerly HU 162

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Senior Year Credits: 15

AEDU 509 - Professional Writing Intensive

This course is required for students entering all art education programs (pre-certification, MAT, MA, MA+EM) who have not passed the Art Education Department writing proficiency exam. It addresses the use of effective and cogent written communication for the teacher, artist, and administrator to classes, groups, or clients. Formerly AE 599

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

AEDU 542 - Program Design & Methods: Secondary

Students in this course will explore current educational “best practices” in the field of secondary art education. Focus areas for learning will include curriculum development, lesson planning, classroom leadership, collaborative learning, student assessment, learning environments, materials ordering, and time budgeting. Class structure includes weekly outside reading assignments, group discussions, methods demonstrations, studio production activities, reflective writing, and field observation. Formerly AE 548

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 541 or AEDU 560

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs; 8 hrs field work

This course has a required field placement.

AEDU 560 - Saturday Practicum

Students are involved in various aspects of the Saturday Arts Lab. They observe classroom instruction, plan and teach lessons, and exhibit student work under the supervision of cooperating master teachers and through the instruction of a professor in the seminar portion of the course. Formerly AE 559

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs field work (10 weeks)

This course has a required field placement.

Post-Baccalaureate Teacher Program Credits: 12

Students will not be allowed to student teach unless they have successfully completed AEDU 509 Professional Writing Intensive and the Instructional I PRAXIS tests: Reading, Writing, and Mathematics.

AEDU 503 - The Art of Teaching

Teacher preparation and knowledge of instructional techniques will be addressed, including professional image, teachers' rights and responsibilities, and aspects of group process. The course explores cultural and family factors that influence learning expectations conveyed by teachers and peer behavior and techniques of instruction and creativity. A retrospective analysis of each student's individual education experience and perceptions of teaching is explored through interactive simulation of classroom situations and teaching styles. May be taken during either the summer or spring semester. Formerly AE 552

Prerequisite: AEDU 541

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 561 - Student Teaching: Elementary

An intensive, elementary-level field experience built around a seven-week student teaching internship, under the guidance and supervision of a highly qualified art teacher/mentor. It is intended to provide practical experience in which the intern assumes professional-level responsibilities and experiences in teaching art at the elementary level. A University supervisor observes, advises, facilitates the relationship between the mentor and intern, and assesses the student during the internship. AEDU 561 is taken concurrently with AEDU 565. (If students elect to take AEDU 561 one semester and AEDU 562 another semester, AEDU 565 must be taken both semesters.) Formerly AE 660

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 533, AEDU 541, AEDU 542, AEDU 560 Corequisite: AEDU 565

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 4 cr, hrs vary (7 weeks)

The two field placements may be taken over two semesters. If this option is elected, the full 15-week seminar that accompanies the field placement must be taken in both semesters.

AEDU 562 - Student Teaching: Secondary

An intensive, secondary-level field experience built around a seven-week student teaching internship, under the guidance and supervision of a highly qualified art teacher/mentor. It is intended to provide practical experience in which the intern assumes professional-level responsibilities and experiences in teaching art at the elementary level. A University supervisor observes, advises, facilitates the relationship between the mentor and intern, and assesses the student during the internship. AEDU 562 is taken concurrently with AEDU 565. (If students elect to take AEDU 562 one semester and AEDU 561 another semester, AEDU 565 must be taken both semesters.) Formerly AE 662

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 533, AEDU 541, AEDU 542, AEDU 560 Corequisite: AEDU 565

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 4 cr, hrs vary (7 weeks)

The two field placements may be taken over two semesters. If this option is elected, the full 15-week seminar that accompanies the field placement must be taken in both semesters.

AEDU 565 - Student Teaching Seminar: Elementary/Secondary

Discussion and analysis of: field experiences; special workshops; Literacy: Reading and Writing Across the Curriculum: Professional Teaching Portfolios; One-Year Curriculums for an Elementary and a Secondary Grade. Continuing development and refinement of skills in reflective practice is emphasized as well as the needs of special learners. AEDU 565 is taken concurrently with AEDU 561 and AEDU 562. (If students elect to take AEDU 561 and AEDU 562 over two semesters, AEDU 565 Student Teaching Seminar must be taken both semesters.) Formerly AE

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 533, AEDU 541, AEDU 542, AEDU 560

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, 2 hrs

Required Studio Electives

Pre-Certification students should complete at least three upper-level credits in a two-dimensional medium if their major is in a three-dimensional area, and vice versa. Other studio work must include at least one course each in photography, computer with graphics applications, painting, drawing, ceramics, and printmaking. A non-Western art history is also required. AEDU 533, AEDU 541, AEDU 542, and AEDU 560 fulfill Art Education and studio elective requirements outside of the major program.

Art Therapy Concentration

LASS 871 - Child & Adolescent Psychology

This course is developmentally oriented and focuses on Erikson's psychosocial stages of life from birth to adolescence. Major topics include pregnancy, the birth process, and the physical, intellectual, emotional, and social development of the child. Family life and parent-child relationships are also examined, with particular attention given to the impact of our social institutions upon parents and children. Formerly HU 181A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Art Education, Art Therapy concentration and Dance Education.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 872 - Adult Psychology

An overview of adult stages of psychological development throughout early, middle and late adulthood. An eclectic variety of perspectives citing psychoanalytic, cognitive and humanistic orientations are considered.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Art Therapy concentration and Dance Education.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Junior Year Credits: 12

Fall Credits: 6

AETH 301 - Introduction to Art Therapy

Introduces students to key concepts and dimensions of the art therapy profession. Course content addresses the different orientations and approaches that comprise this discipline, as well as the diverse populations that are served. Art Therapists who work within a wide range of settings are invited to present to the class to balance the theoretical with the practical. Formerly AT 300

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LASS 871, LASS 872

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 973 - Abnormal Psychology

Historical perspectives, causal factors and treatments for types of mental disorders in adults and children including stress, panic, anxiety, mood and substance eating, cognitive and personality disorders. Schizophrenia, mental retardation, autism and behavioral disorders of childhood are also addressed. Theoretical systems relating to psychopathology including psychodynamic, social theories, cognitive as well as biological influences are explored.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LASS 871 or LASS 872 Priority enrollment to Art Therapy concentration.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 6

AETH 302 - Social and Group Process

Introduces students to a basic understanding of social groups, group behaviors, group therapy, and group art therapy. The class helps students to better identify their own role as well as that of others within a group setting. Experiential art tasks are used to underscore course material and exemplify group dynamics. Formerly AT 301

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: AETH 301

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AETH 304 - Theories and Techniques of Art Therapy with Children and Adolescents

Introduces students to the use of art therapy with children and adolescents, including the different arenas where art therapists work with children, as well as the various approaches that are utilized. Normal child development, as evidenced in artwork, serves as the foundation for understanding key concepts. Indicators of emotional, cognitive, and behavioral difficulties, as seen in art productions, are also presented. Formerly AT 304

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LASS 973, AETH 301

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Senior Year Credits: 9

Fall Credits: 6

AETH 303 - Theories and Techniques of Art Therapy with Adults

This course explores the practice of art therapy with adults as demonstrated through the use of case material from a variety of clinical populations. Overviews of diagnostic indicators as seen in artwork are presented. Issues of long- and short-term treatment are addressed, as well as a rich variety of interventions that are at the art therapists' disposal. Formerly AT 305

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: AETH 304

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 974 - Theories of Personality

Introduces the study of personality and how patterns of behavior, interaction, perception and response are understood by a broad variety of theorists. Questions of nature vs. nurture, whether the past impacts the present, and what defines mental health are discussed. Psychodynamic, cognitive, humanistic, and behavioral approaches are compared and contrasted. Formerly HU 483

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LASS 871 or LASS 872; and one additional course from: LASS 871, LASS 872, LASS 873, LASS 874, LASS 875, LASS 876, LASS 972, LASS 973, LASS 975, or MMDI 353 Priority enrollment to Art Therapy concentration.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 3

AETH 401 - Senior Practicum

A field placement provides an opportunity for the student to apply classroom knowledge to work within a specific clinical setting. A research paper, based on the experience, enables students to integrate theory with observation and practice. This practicum includes on-site individual supervision by an art therapist, as well as a small group supervision on campus with the Art Therapy faculty. Formerly AT 401

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AETH 303, LASS 974

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Additional Requirements

- Art Therapy Courses Credits: 15 cr
- Liberal Arts Courses Credits: 12 cr

Book Arts Minor

This minor emphasizes the development of skills related to designing and creating books, incorporating both type and imagery. Instruction in image-making in multiples through printmaking processes, basic typesetting techniques, and introductory bookbinding methods are studied. Fine Arts-Printmaking majors may not declare a Book Arts minor.

FAPR 233 - Bookbinding Methods

A workshop class familiarizing the student with the characteristics and handling qualities of materials used in various book structures. Structures covered include pamphlet binding, multi-signature books, clamshell boxes, portfolios, accordion structures, and oriental binding. Emphasis is placed upon both the use of conservationally sound materials and the use of these structures as vehicles for the student's creative expression. Formerly PR 223

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors and minors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPR 234 - Book Arts: Structures

Historical book forms serve as models as well as a departure point for innovative new work. Students are made familiar with traditional binding techniques, encouraged to explore new applications and to experiment by combining images and text into unique book structures. Among the structures presented are signature binding, Japanese binding, accordion structure, pop-up structures, and tunnel books. May serve as a follow-up course for those who have completed PR233. Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors and minors. Formerly PR 224

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPR 304 - Book Arts: Concept and Structure

An opportunity to explore the integration of type and relief image in unique and editioned book structures. Hands-on experience in dealing with composition (metal) type and computer typesetting is on an intermediate level. Relief printing, photopolymer plates, color reduction printing, and related traditional and contemporary methods of multiple image making are pursued. Special emphasis on development of a personal visual language. Formerly PR 307

Prerequisites & Notes

Students must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits). Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors and minors; and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 434 - Book Production

This advanced course focuses on the development and production of a printed book or portfolio of works: design and formatting of a publication including the investigation of sequence, page design, and binding possibilities; hands-on experience in the preparation of images for press production, pre-press techniques; and assisting the Master Printer in the printing. All work is produced in the Borowsky Center for Publication Arts, the University's offset lithography facility. Students may choose to collaborate on projects or work independently. Formerly PR 425

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the College of Art and Design only. Student must have completed the first semester of their Sophomore year (45 credits). May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5-3 cr

Select one of the following two:

FAPR 201 - Relief/Monotype

Introduction to the graphic and expressive qualities of woodcut, linoleum, and collograph processes printed in monochrome and color. Monoprinting with direct drawing and painting on Plexiglass and metal plate are also explored. Formerly PR 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors. Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

or

FAPR 204 - Screenprint/Etching

The graphic qualities of expression in screenprinting and etching/intaglio are presented through historic and contemporary examples and demonstration of the methods, which convey ideas in these two media. Various stencil processes from direct-drawn to photographic and computer-generated are explored in screenprinting with water-based opaque and transparent inks. Handwork on the metal plate includes drawn drypoint, etching, and tonal processes. Emphasis is placed on the understanding of the qualities of these methods and the development of personal ideas. Formerly PR 204

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors. Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following two:

FAPR 323 - Intro to Offset Lithography

Students are offered a hands-on course that develops skills in image preparation and printing techniques using offset lithography. An emphasis is placed on personal imagery where both hand-drawn and photographic methods of image making are investigated. Formerly PR 326

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors and minors. Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 1.5 - 3 cr

or

FAPR 411 - Digital Printmaking

This course offers the students an opportunity for continued investigation within the various printmaking processes. Photoshop is introduced with an emphasis on using the computer as an imagemaking tool within the context of printmaking. The emphasis is on the integration of idea and process. Graduate students may register for this course under GRPR 633. Formerly PR 412

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors; Book Arts and Digital Fine Arts minors. Computer literacy required. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Book Arts/Printmaking - Master of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 60

The Book Arts/Printmaking program is individually tailored to each student's interests and experience, and encourages the development of new concepts, while offering proficiency in both traditional and contemporary processes. The core program of bookbinding and printmaking courses is augmented by investigations into related fields of study in studio arts and colloquia and seminars on art and the book. Courses in the first semester intersect, reflecting the integration of skills and concepts integral to book arts. Through both years, students are encouraged to work on their writing. The second year concentrates on the MFA Thesis Exhibition under the supervision of an advisory committee. Students frequently choose to use their elective credits for internships in professional laboratories and organizations and are welcome as interns in many prestigious conservation labs.

Year One Credits: 30

- Electives Credits: 1.5 cr

GRPR 601 - Colloquium: Text & Image

The focus is on the development of the student's sensitivity to language and verbal constructs and an understanding of the relation of text to image and structure. The course also supports the development of the student's creative writing, in particular in the context of artists' books. Formerly PR 600A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 603 - Colloquium: The Artist's Book

An introduction to the history of the artist's book and an investigation into the artist's book as a complex art form. Classes consist of discussion of readings and the examination of artists' books in the Special Collections of various libraries and cultural institutions.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 611 - Book Arts Studio: Color/Mark

Provides the student with a broad range of image-making approaches. Personal imagery is investigated through various printmaking and drawing techniques. Formerly PR 610A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate students in the College of Art and Design only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GRPR 616 - Book Arts Studio: Concept, Image, Type

Introduction to practical and conceptual concerns intrinsic to the production of books and prints. Emphasis is on both print processes, including hands-on experience with letterpress, lithography (plate and offset) and digital printmaking, and conceptual/production processes, including creating dummies and pre-press work. Conceptual explorations further the development of the student's visual language.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

GRPR 621 - Bookbinding

Basic book structures are explored with emphasis on sound conservation techniques and good craftsmanship. Formerly PR 623A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Book Arts majors only. Experience required – See Department for information.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 3 cr

GRAD 651 - University Seminar: Art and Society

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from all graduate programs examine theoretical issues relating to the place of art and design in society. Topics include the social role of the artist/designer, public policy and the arts, issues of post-modernism, and aesthetic and ethical implications of emerging arts communication technologies. (May be taken to satisfy Sociology/Anthropology corequisite for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 692

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 602 - Colloquium: History of the Book

Hands-on study of rare books and manuscripts from antiquity to the present, with discussions dealing with their structural, historical, and artistic significance. The class meets at the Library Company of Philadelphia, with field trips to local special collections. Formerly PR 600B

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 617 - Book Arts Studio: Projects

Building on what has been learned in the previous semester, students continue to develop their skills and techniques and explore their particular interests in the creation of several works.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRPR 611 Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

GRPR 622 - Bookbinding

Historic book structures serve as models and departure points for innovative bindings. Formerly PR 623B

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Book Arts majors only. Experience required – See Department for information.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

Year Two Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 3 cr

GRAD 650 - University Seminar: Structure and Metaphor

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from the several graduate programs examine theoretical issues of structure and metaphor in relation to art and design. Topics include cognition and perception, meaning and representation, and systems of organization and expression. (May be taken to satisfy Aesthetics and Art Criticism co-requisites for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 691

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 701 - Colloquium: Professional Practices

Professional practices and issues related to the fields of printmaking and book and publication arts are explored through discussions, lectures and field trips. Formerly PR 700A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 721 - Bookbinding

Continued investigation of the book structure at an advanced technical level. Individual attention to developing creative solutions to support book content starts in the first semester. Formerly PR 723A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRPR 622 Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 785 - Thesis Studio I

In conjunction with the faculty advisor, the MFA candidate develops an individual course of study and defines the projects, in preparation for the required Thesis Exhibition during the final semester.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: GRPR 617 Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 3 cr

GRAD 750 - University Seminar: Criticism

An interdisciplinary seminar in which advanced graduate students from various disciplines in the visual arts further examine the nature of image-making with particular attention to the theories and applications of criticism. Formerly GR 791

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate students in the College of Art and Design only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 702 - Colloquium: Professional Practices

Focuses on the completion of the student's professional portfolio. Formerly PR 700B.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRPR 701 Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 722 - Bookbinding

Through critiques and individual instruction, the second semester of this investigation into book structure is devoted to developing structures that support thesis work. Formerly PR 723B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRPR 721 Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRPR 786 - Thesis Studio II

The planning and execution of a mature body of work to be prepared for thesis exhibition at the end of the semester.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: GRPR 785 Open to graduate Book Arts majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

Crafts - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

The Crafts curriculum has been designed to give the student flexibility in his or her choice of media concentrations. Some students may enter the Crafts Department knowing the specific medium in which they wish to concentrate. Other students may elect to divide their media-specific coursework between two areas of potential concentration. Still others may want to pursue a mixed media approach to their Crafts education. All are possible, but careful attention must be paid to meeting departmental, college, and University requirements while pursuing personal interests.

Of the 42 credits required for a Crafts major, 18 of these credits are devoted to the core of Project Courses. The remaining 24 credits are to be taken elsewhere in the Crafts Department. However, it is important to note that 12 of those credits must be at the advanced (300-400) level.

Core Studio Projects Courses

Each semester all Crafts students take Projects, a core studio course. These courses provide aesthetic structure and involve discussion and investigation of broader Crafts issues, with critiques of the student's work. Students then have the freedom to choose from a variety of technique-based courses, which aid in developing that aesthetic. Emphasis is placed on the interdependency of all the arts, with particular attention given to the unique contribution of Crafts ideology and practice. As a corequisite for Projects, each student must be enrolled in at least one core media-specific course in a major area of concentration: ceramics, fibers, jewelry, metalsmithing, and wood/furniture. These corequisites must be at the appropriate 200 or 300 level. Glass is currently offered as a department elective.

Single Medium Concentration

Students entering the department knowing the specific medium in which they wish to concentrate from sophomore through senior year take one three-credit media-specific course in that concentration each semester of the three-year journey through the department. Four media-specific courses must be at the advanced level.

Dual Concentration

It is possible to have a dual concentration within the Crafts Department. If the student enters the sophomore year with an interest in two distinct media then, by taking the prerequisite of two courses at the 200 level early on, in the sophomore and junior years, the student can continue at the advanced level in these same two media during the junior and senior years. Two three-credit courses at the advanced level in each concentration will fulfill the 12-credit advanced-level requirement.

Multiple Media Concentration

It is possible to take courses during the sophomore and junior years in three or more media. However, this will require the greatest vigilance on the part of the student to meet all the requirements for graduation. Having sampled an array of introductory courses, the student must then take an additional introductory course in at least one medium in order to proceed to the advanced level. To meet the advanced level requirement as a multiple media student, it will be necessary to (a) take all 12 advanced credits in one medium or (b) use studio elective credits to take advanced-level courses in additional media.

CRFT 201 - Projects I

Students make art that deals with crafts issues and concepts. Individual project consultations are supplemented by lectures, visiting artists, and group critiques. As this course is content based, students use any/all crafts studios during in-class work time and open studio hours. (Students have access to crafts studios where they have completed or are currently taking a media-specific course.) Formerly CR 200A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 131

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. Enrollment in a Crafts media-specific course required.

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

CRFT 401 - Projects III

Student selects a topic and produces a body of work for the crafts Senior thesis exhibition. Part of this course is Senior Seminar, a forum for the discussion of ideas and issues through student participation, guest lecturers, and professional offerings. The modern craft aesthetic is examined in terms of late nineteenth- and twentieth-century ideas and issues.

Emphasis on the interdependency of all the arts with an eye to the unique contribution of crafts ideology and practice. Topical discussions encourage students to find contemporary relevancy and validity in an analysis of historical precedents. Other topics include: making an artist's presentation, resume preparation, writing an artist's statement, recordkeeping and taxes, grant writing, and career opportunities. Particular attention is paid to the style and survival techniques of contemporaries working in craft media. Formerly CR 400A

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Concentration on resolving conceptual and formal issues as they relate to individual exploration on the wheel. Problems encourage uniqueness and challenge abilities. Typical issues include usage and symbolic function, serial production, the table, and site-oriented applications, and medium- to large-scale use of materials. All problems stress practical as well as aesthetic resourcefulness with clay on the wheel. Senior Craft majors taking this course may choose to spend all or part of their time producing thesis work to supplement the thesis component of Crafts Projects III. Formerly CR 370A

Prerequisites: CRCM 211, CRCM 212

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRCM 312 - Advanced Throwing

Fibers

CRFB 211 - Introduction to Fibers: Mixed Media

An introduction to both traditional and experimental uses of materials and structural processes in the fabric media. Assignments focus on the exploration of two- and three-dimensional forms in preparation for versatile approaches to the fibers media. A range of off-loom mixed media techniques are covered. Formerly CR 221A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFB 212 - Introduction to Color and the Loom

Students explore the potential of two- and three-dimensional forms in preparation for versatile approaches to the fibers media. Loom, woven structures, tapestry, and woven color are covered. Formerly CR 221B

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFB 222 - Introduction to Constructed Surface

Through a series of developmental assignments, students are provided with a solid technical and conceptual base in the fabric media. Non-loom constructions, color, and multifiber dye techniques are covered. Formerly CR 222

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFB 311 - Advanced Fibers Mixed Media

Through a series of developmental assignments with a conceptual emphasis and by using acquired knowledge from previous semesters, students are encouraged to explore forms that reveal the inherent physical qualities and potential image-making possibilities of fabric. Loom-woven and mixed-media fabric techniques are used as appropriate, depending on the student's interest in the development of a diverse range of two-dimensional constructions, sculptural forms, costume, etc. Formerly CR 322A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: 6 credits from courses: CRFB 211, CRFB 212, CRFB 222
Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Metals and JewelryCRMT 211 - Introduction to Jewelry

An exploration of notions of jewelry and body adornment as a means of personal expression. Projects range from precious jewelry making to adornment that extends into performance. Basic goldsmithing skills are taught as essential, while three-dimensional sketching and experimentation in mixed media are encouraged. Successful integration of design, material, and process is the goal. Projects provide students with broad exposure to the many possibilities inherent in jewelry and ornament as related to the human form. Formerly CR 241A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 212 - Introduction to Jewelry

An exploration of notions of jewelry and body adornment as a means of personal expression. Projects range from precious jewelry making to adornment that extends into performance. Basic goldsmithing skills are taught as essential, while three-dimensional sketching and experimentation in mixed media are encouraged. Successful integration of design, material, and process is the goal. Projects provide students with broad exposure to the many possibilities inherent in jewelry and ornament as related to the human form. Formerly CR 241B

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 221 - Introduction to Metalsmithing

Metal is an extremely versatile material; though hard and durable, it is quite malleable and easily worked. This course covers direct working of metal. Sheet, wire, bar, and rod are given form by hammering, seaming, and bending, etc. The majority of work is done in bronze, brass and copper, though steel, stainless steel, aluminum, and precious metals may be used as well. Contemporary issues addressed include the object as sculpture, process as a source material, the importance of surface and detail, and functional objects made by artists. Formerly CR 242

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 311 - Advanced Jewelry/Metals

Builds upon a basic grounding in jewelry concepts and techniques. Lectures, technical demonstrations, and conceptual projects vary from year to year so that students retaking the course will not find it redundant. The goals of the course are to increase awareness and understanding of jewelry as a component of our culture, aid the student in the development of a personal aesthetic, and develop thinking and problem-solving abilities. More experienced students are encouraged to focus on one specialized area of the jewelry field. Senior Crafts majors taking this course may choose to spend all or part of their time producing thesis work to supplement the thesis component of Craft Projects III. Formerly CR 380A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: 6 credits from courses: CRMT 211, CRMT 212, CRMT 221

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

WoodCRWD 211 - Introduction to Woodworking

Introduction to basic woodworking skills and processes, including sharpening and setting up hand tools and machinery, theory of solid wood joinery, and construction. In addition to building technical skills, emphasis is on contemporary and historical furniture design issues. Formerly CR 261A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 212 - Introduction to Woodworking

Introduction to basic woodworking skills and processes, including sharpening and setting up hand tools and machinery, theory of solid wood joinery, and construction. In addition to building technical skills, emphasis is on contemporary and historical furniture design issues. Formerly CR 261B

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 221 - Introduction to Furniture

This course presents a series of design problems emphasizing exploration of ideas through drawing and model making. Historic and contemporary examples are studied. Fundamental joinery techniques are covered, but the emphasis is on design exploration, imagination, and inventiveness. Students provide their own materials and some hand tools. Formerly CR 285

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 311 - Advanced Wood

Covers tools, joinery, methods, and materials. Content progresses with increasing complexity, involving machining, hand tools, finishing, and surface treatments. Senior Crafts majors taking this course may choose to spend all or part of their time producing thesis work to supplement the thesis component of Crafts Projects III. Formerly CR 386

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: 6 credits from courses: CRWD 211, CRWD 212

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 321 - Advanced Furniture

Continuation of CRWD 223 (Introduction to Furniture) involving more complex design projects, combinations of objects, and advanced model making and finishing techniques. Emphasis on imagination, inventiveness, and depth of content. Senior Crafts majors taking this course may choose to spend all or part of their time producing thesis work to supplement the thesis component of Crafts Projects III. Formerly CR 385A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CRWD 221

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 322 - Advanced Furniture

Continuation of CRWD 223 (Introduction to Furniture) involving more complex design projects, combinations of objects, and advanced model making and finishing techniques. Emphasis on imagination, inventiveness, and depth of content. Senior Crafts majors taking this course may choose to spend all or part of their time producing thesis work to supplement the thesis component of Crafts Projects III. Formerly CR 385B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CRWD 221

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Note:

Electives must include at least nine studio credits outside of the Crafts offerings.

Additional Media Specific Course Offerings

Crafts

CRFT 224 - Art for the Body

This introductory mixed-media course focuses on the body as the site-specific locus for a variety of art forms. Looking at a range of cultural and historical examples, students gain an appreciation for the personal and social influences that underlie our conception of the human body and how we construct for it. Studio work in an array of media, with specific emphasis on the use of metal, paper, fabric, and leather. Technical information includes flat pattern making, piecing and sewing; forming and fabrication; mixed-media construction; and systems of attachment, linkage, and closure. Emphasis on the student's ability to generate unique solutions to the physical challenges imposed by the human body on the content of attire. Formerly CR 245

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFT 281 - 3-D Computer Modeling

An introduction to the use of 3-D modeling software for visualization, design, production, and presentation of Craft objects. Through tutorial exercises and individual projects, students become fluent in the use of this important tool. One piece of software (such as formZ, Rhino, etc.) that is both CAD accurate and affordable to individual artists is covered. As students gain proficiency, they apply the techniques to problems addressed in their major studio classes. Students taking the course for a second time explore the capabilities of the software in more depth and focus on intelligent sequencing of operations and using the tools in context. Formerly CRFT 381

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken four times for credit. Computer literacy required.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

CeramicsCRCM 220 - Ceramics

Through lecture and demonstration, students learn basic skills such as handbuilding, throwing, and press molding with an introduction to loading and firing kilns. Mixing clay, slips, and glazes is also being covered. Graduate students may register for this course under GRGR 660. Formerly CR 256

Prerequisites & Notes

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

CRCM 221 - Introduction to Molding & Casting

A course in modelmaking, moldmaking, and casting techniques using plaster and synthetic compounds. Emphasis is on developing proficiency in slip casting for use in the artist's studio and in industry for serial production. Formerly CR 251

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRCM 222 - Plaster Workshop

An introductory course in modelmaking, moldmaking, and casting techniques, using plaster and synthetic compounds. This course emphasizes the usefulness of these media to designers and artists. Formerly CR 252

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

CRCM 223 - Ceramic Technology

A lecture and laboratory course designed to investigate basic clay and glaze materials. Students gain an intuitive understanding of ceramic materials, their practical and aesthetic properties, and develop a series of personal glazes. The nature of clays and the relationship among clay bodies, slips, sigillatas, and glazes is also explored. Formerly CR 253

Prerequisites & Notes

May be taken four times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

CRCM 224 - Large Scale Handbuilding

The fundamentals of large-scale handbuilding in clay in two specific areas: a) building a three-dimensional form, using proper clay bodies, building interior support systems, building and drying methods for large work, and moving, loading, and firing techniques; b) covering large areas with smaller parts and exploring fitting and interlocking systems of wall relief or free-standing form. Problems are given with an emphasis on developing potential for personal expression and artistic invention. Formerly CR 255

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

Fibers

CRFB 221 - Fabric Resist & Embellishment

Extends students' basic color and drawing vocabulary through exposure to ancient techniques and tools of Indonesia, Japan, and Africa. Fabric dyeing and resist methods are addressed, including drawing and stamping with waxes, stitching and binding with threads, etc. Students acquire a broader sense of "mark-making," an understanding of the special color properties of dyes, and an ability to use non-Western traditional craft methods to create contemporary art fabric. Formerly CR 277

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFB 223 - Fabric Printing

Focuses on the fundamental principles of translating drawings and photographs into designs and images for screen-printed fabric, using a fine art approach. Exploration of myriad possibilities in creating fabric using silkscreen and fabric pigments. Formerly CR 278

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

CRFB 227 - Experimental Costume and Performance

The garment provides a tangible yet pliable boundary between the space of self and the space of the world. In this introductory fibers studio, students learn costume construction fundamentals (hand and machine sewing, millinery, flat pattern design, etc.) and explore the garment as a vehicle for personal expression. Students are encouraged to experiment with technique, and a variety of both traditional and unconventional materials are used. Concurrent with studio work, students are introduced to the cultural, political, social, historic, and aesthetic dimensions of costume as it relates to contemporary art. The semester concludes with a collaborative performance. Formerly CR 229

Prerequisites & Notes

May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFB 322 - Advanced Textile Design

This course uses the computer in the study of woven textile design. An introduction to fabric structures from simple, plain and rib weaves, through twills, satins, waffle weaves, double-cloth, composite structures, and color effects. Students learn the language of cloth through the incremental development of structures, first making notation of those structures by hand on point paper, and then using various computer software programs to develop a wide range of fabric structures. At least one structure is realized through weaving on a 32-harness handweaving computer loom. Formerly CR 329

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: 6 credits from courses: CRFB 211, CRFB 212, CRFB 222

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

Glass

CRGL 211 - Introduction to Glass Blowing

Through demonstrations, assignments, and tutoring by the instructor, students are guided toward mastery in off-hand blowing. Blowing of well-balanced functional and non-functional forms is emphasized. Topics covered include the use of color in glass, two- and three-dimensional surface treatment, the relationship between volume and skin of forms, blowing into molds, and working in a variety of scales. The aesthetics of contemporary and historical glass are investigated as they relate to the student's work. Formerly CR 231A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRGL 212 - Introduction to Glass Blowing

Through demonstrations, assignments, and tutoring by the instructor, students are guided toward mastery in off-hand blowing. Blowing of well-balanced functional and non-functional forms is emphasized. Topics covered include the use of color in glass, two- and three-dimensional surface treatment, the relationship between volume and skin of forms, blowing into molds, and working in a variety of scales. The aesthetics of contemporary and historical glass are investigated as they relate to the student's work. Formerly CR 231B

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRGL 221 - Stained Glass

Students work with transparent and opaque glass sheet to produce both two- and three-dimensional artwork. Techniques include glass cutting and grinding, use of coming and copper foil, soldering, enameling, sandblasting and carving, and kiln-firing. Typical projects include stained glass windows or panels, containers, and shallow bowls. Formerly CR 232

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRGL 311 - Advanced Glass

Glass is considered as an expressive medium, and development toward a personal style is encouraged. Students work with hot glass in advanced offhand work, blowing into molds, casting, and enameling, as well as advanced stained glass work and incorporation of blown and cast pieces into two- and three-dimensional structures. Formerly CR 331

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: 6 credits from courses: CRGL 211, CRGL 212, CRGL 221

Priority to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken four times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Metals and Jewelry

CRMT 223 - Jewelry Rendering and Design

Students explore two-dimensional pencil and gouache techniques effective in creating the illusion of finished pieces of jewelry. Emphasis is on the skill development necessary to communicate and evaluate ideas prior to making. Presentation and development of a portfolio are an integral part of the course. Formerly CR 243

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

CRMT 225 - Enameling

Enameling is the art of firing colored glass onto metal. The transparent, opaque, and opalescent enamel colors are layered to produce richness, detail, depth, and brilliance in this durable and painterly medium. Traditional techniques such as cloisonné, grisaille, Limoges, basse taille, plique-à-jour, and champlevé, as well as contemporary and experimental processes are explored. Once they have gained a facility with the medium, students produce jewelry or small jewel-like paintings. Formerly CR 249

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 226 - Introduction to Metal Casting

Wax working for jewelry and small-scale sculpture, rubber molding processes, and lost wax/centrifugal casting of bronze and (optional) sterling silver and karat golds. Extensive technical information for students who are design-oriented. Assignments allow projects in all formats (design, one-of-a-kind jewelry, fine art, etc.) and students are encouraged to use techniques innovatively and expressively. Students taking the course a second time choose one aspect of the course (wax carving, wax modeling, wax impressions, vulcanized rubber molding, etc.) and produce a small body of work investigating that aspect in depth. Procedures for sending out work to professional contract casters are also covered. Formerly CR 280

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 227 - Introduction to Electroforming

Electroforming is the process of electrically depositing (plating) metal onto a non-metallic surface or object. Metal may be built up on non-porous materials such as wax, plastic, Styrofoam, glass, stone, etc. Wax or foam may be removed from electroformed objects to leave a strong, lightweight, self-supporting metal shell. Students work in electroformed copper; assignments are structured to allow students to work in accustomed formats and/or combine electroforming with other materials or processes. Formerly CR 281

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 228 - Metal Furniture

This course questions our cultural assumptions about furniture. Are common furniture forms dictated by functional requirements or arbitrary choices that have become traditional? Metal (steel, aluminum, bronze) is used for its strength and versatility; other materials are combined with metal according to student ideas and interests. Techniques include bending/forming of rod, tube and plate, oxyacetylene welding, brazing, mechanical fasteners/tap and die, riveting, and light blacksmithing. Typical student projects include small tables, lamps, chairs, outdoor/public furnishings, and experimental forms. Formerly CR 282

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 229 - Small Scale Steelworking

This course covers light blacksmithing, thin-sheet welding, and other techniques suitable for working steel at tabletop size. Aluminum and other metals may also be used where appropriate. The focus is on the possibilities of metal for the contemporary craftsperson. Contemporary issues include the functional object, the decorative impulse, process as a source of inspiration, and the importance of surface detail. Formerly CR 283

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Wood

CRWD 221 - Introduction to Furniture

This course presents a series of design problems emphasizing exploration of ideas through drawing and model making. Historic and contemporary examples are studied. Fundamental joinery techniques are covered, but the emphasis is on design exploration, imagination, and inventiveness. Students provide their own materials and some hand tools. Formerly CR 285

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 224 - Low-Tech Furniture

Using materials gathered from both nature and the urban environment, students make chairs, tables and other functional objects. Inspired by the design inherent in natural materials, branches and twigs, artifacts, and found objects, the class conceives and executes a series of projects. Basic, non-technical construction methods and simple hand tools are stressed. Formerly CR 287

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Digital Fine Arts Concentration

This concentration is designed for students grounded in traditional two- and three-dimensional art and design principles who wish to incorporate digital tools and technology to create highly personalized artistic statements. While conceptually and procedurally digitally based, the Digital Fine Arts concentration provides for physical output in two-, three- and four-dimensional realms as well as combined formats. Working closely with advisors, the student selects 15 credits from categories I and II, with a six-credit minimum in each category.

Requirements for the Minor

I. Imaging, Interactivity, and Sound Options:

EMDI 210 - Digital Multimedia

The elements of digital multimedia production techniques address the integration and creation of digital media for websites and alternative delivery processes such as podcasting. This course involves hands-on production experience as well as perspective on developments in this rapidly growing field through the readings and lectures. Students create projects involving digital imagery, video and sound, and animation. The first half of the semester is dedicated to creating video pieces utilizing either digital video or animating still imagery. Creation of effective sound tracks will be an important part of this process. The second half of the semester is dedicated to creating a website and utilizing compressed digital video on the Web. Software to be utilized include Photo to Movie, iMovie, Amadeus Pro, Garageband, iDVD, and Dreamweaver. There is considerable emphasis on new utilizations of digital media such as podcasts and VODcasts (video on demand) and cell phone multimedia. Graduate students may register for this course under GREM 610. Formerly EM 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MAAN 231 - Introduction to Computer Animation

This introductory course develops the student's understanding of digital movement and imaging through animation exercises using a variety of 2D software programs on the PC platform. No previous computer experience is required. Formerly PF 216

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Animation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 311 - Digital Photography Workshop

Concentrates on the production of creative digital photography; students are encouraged to experiment with new tools and techniques. Film and print scanners, CD-ROM discs, and digital cameras are used to produce images that are critiqued on the basis of both technical proficiency and aesthetic accomplishment. Portfolios are printed on digital output machines and four-color offset. Frequent readings, lectures, and site visits expand the ongoing studio experience. Formerly PF 315

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MUSC 163 - Aural Concepts

For non-music majors. An introduction to the use of music and sound components of multimedia and their potential for enhancing communication. Recognizing the special background and needs of the non-music major student, the course examines the production of musical sound, basic notation and theory practices, and an in-depth overview of disparate musical styles illustrating the variety and depth of musical thought from around the world and its potential relationship to the visual image. Formerly MU 149A

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to majors in the School of Music. Priority enrollment to Multimedia majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 460 - Introduction to MIDI and Electronic Technology

A detailed "hands-on" examination of the use of computers in the present-day composition environment. The course includes the uses of a computer, the language of MIDI, sequencing, audio sampling, analog, digital, and other forms of synthesis, and a survey of currently available music software. Strategies and technology of scoring and synchronizing to the visual image is emphasized through a final project. No prior computer or synthesis experience is needed.

Formerly MU 415A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Music and Multimedia majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

II. Digital Expression and Output Alternatives:

FAPR 411 - Digital Printmaking

This course offers the students an opportunity for continued investigation within the various printmaking processes. Photoshop is introduced with an emphasis on using the computer as an imagemaking tool within the context of printmaking. The emphasis is on the integration of idea and process. Graduate students may register for this course under GRPR 633. Formerly PR 412

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors; Book Arts and Digital Fine Arts minors. Computer literacy required. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 434 - Book Production

This advanced course focuses on the development and production of a printed book or portfolio of works: design and formatting of a publication including the investigation of sequence, page design, and binding possibilities; hands-on experience in the preparation of images for press production, pre-press techniques; and assisting the Master Printer in the printing. All work is produced in the Borowsky Center for Publication Arts, the University's offset lithography facility. Students may choose to collaborate on projects or work independently. Formerly PR 425

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the College of Art and Design only. Student must have completed the first semester of their Sophomore year (45 credits). May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5-3 cr

MAFL 331 - Experimental Video

An intermediate-level course in digital audio and video production. In the context of screenings and readings drawn from the history of experimental media, students learn to use various digital and optical strategies to approach a variety of thematic issues. This course is a venue for the production of short, aesthetically energized works for a variety of screening environments, and encourages collaboration with Dance and Music majors. Formerly PF 322

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Figurative Illustration Minor

The focus of this minor is on enhancing skills and knowledge related to figurative drawing, painting and general image making. This is accomplished by working with the figure and the figure in space and through introduction to various media and picture making issues. Academic figure anatomy, old master and other traditional drawing and painting techniques are demonstrated and utilized. The minor is especially beneficial for students in Painting or Animation. Illustration majors may not declare a Figurative Illustration minor.

ILUS 201 - Pictorial Foundation

Introduction to drawing and painting skills as they relate to illustration. Objective visual perception, clarity in drawing, and technical facility are stressed. Students are exposed to visual communications, strategies, and design concepts through exposure to art history and the field of contemporary illustration. Formerly IL 200A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FNDP 111, FNDP 121

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 202 - Pictorial Foundation

Introduction to drawing and painting skills as they relate to illustration. Objective visual perception, clarity in drawing, and technical facility are stressed. Students are exposed to visual communications, strategies, and design concepts through exposure to art history and the field of contemporary illustration. Formerly IL 200B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: ILUS 201

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 211 - Figure Anatomy

Focus on the investigation and application of line, plane, mass, light and shade, shadow, perspective, anatomy, and proportion as they relate to figure drawing. Weekly sessions include a lecture, demonstrations from the skeleton, and drawing from life. Formerly IL 202A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 212 - Figure Anatomy

Focus on the investigation and application of line, plane, mass, light and shade, shadow, perspective, anatomy, and proportion as they relate to figure drawing. Weekly sessions include a lecture, demonstrations from the skeleton, and drawing from life. Formerly IL 202B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: ILUS 211

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 312 - Figure Utilization

Studies of the figure in narrative contexts are explored, as is work from single and grouped models, nude and costumed. Concentration is on developing compositions and concepts from different and often combined resources. Drawing and painting techniques are utilized. Formerly IL 303

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: ILUS 321

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Film/Animation - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Sophomore Year Credits: 33

Fall Credits: 18

WRIT 251 and WRIT 252 Narrative Cinema I and II are required of all Film/Animation majors as part of the total Liberal Arts distribution.

ILUS 285 - Drawing for Animators

Focuses on introducing and developing the skills and disciplines needed for good figurative animation drawing. The primary issues of anatomical figure drawing with a strong emphasis on the structure and solidity of the figure, good proportions, and specific movement and gesture as they relate to the model. Topics also covered: two-dimensional versus three-dimensional ways of translating form; how perspective and viewpoint are used with the figure and their effect on scale; exaggerated foreshortening techniques; diagrammatic and expressive line quality; facial expressions; hand and foot studies; capturing movement through gesture; and introduction to animal drawing for animation. Formerly IL 205

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Animation and Film/Animation majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Can be taken either fall or spring semester.

MAAN 201 - Introduction to Animation I

Through a series of drawn exercises concentrating on timing, movement, and weight, the student acquires an understanding of fundamental animation principles. Formerly PF 212A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111, FNDP 121 or MMDI 101

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Can be taken either fall or spring semester.

MAFL 201 - Introduction to Film I

A hands-on introduction to the principles and techniques of media production: shooting 16mm film and digital video, developing a sensitivity to the nuances of movement, understanding lighting and exposure, composition, and the logic of editing. We also survey the historical and aesthetic development of the medium in order to expand the students' sense of the possibilities of the medium. Formerly PF 210A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 201 - Introduction to Photography I

Introduction to basic concepts, processes, and techniques of black-and-white photography, including camera operation, exposure, darkroom procedures, lighting, and their controlled applications of these techniques. Emphasis is upon the normative standard of photographic rendering. Formerly PF 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite for all upper-level photography courses. Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts, Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Can be taken either fall or spring semester.

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

WRIT 251 and WRIT 252 Narrative Cinema I and II are required of all Film/Animation majors as part of the total Liberal Arts distribution.

MAAN 202 - Introduction to Animation II

Students are introduced to under-the-camera animation using varied mediums such as puppets, cut-outs, and painting-on-glass. Special attention is given to non-narrative approaches to animation. A final project is created using one or more of the techniques explored during the semester. Formerly PF 212B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 201 or MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 231 - Introduction to Computer Animation

This introductory course develops the student's understanding of digital movement and imaging through animation exercises using a variety of 2D software programs on the PC platform. No previous computer experience is required. Formerly PF 216

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Animation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Can be taken either in the fall or spring semester.

MAFL 202 - Introduction to Film/Digital Video

This course offers an introduction to the basic practices of digital video editing and further creative exploration of the art of moving images. Students perform timing, staging, and blocking exercises to develop a feel for direction, experiment with more advanced film strategies, learn to edit digital video, and investigate relationships between sound and image. A final project integrates these explorations creatively. Formerly PF 210B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 252 - Narrative Cinema II

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 252

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Junior Year Credits: 36Fall Credits: 18

- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr

MAAN 301 - Junior Animation Workshop I

The first half of this course is devoted to the creation of a short, client-based project. The second half involves an interdisciplinary group project aimed at refining students' knowledge of animation movement design. Formerly PF 312A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 202

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 301 - Junior Cinema Production I

First part of a year-long film and digital video production class emphasizing independent filmmaking techniques and concepts. Students explore cinematic ideas through structured and personal filmmaking assignments that emphasize keen visual thinking, story development, and an understanding of film form and film language. Students are taught professional lighting, 16mm sync sound camera technologies, editing and soundtrack strategies, and laboratory procedures. Students also view and analyze significant films. Formerly PF 310A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 311 - Sync-Sound for Narrative Film

Students in this course explore creative sound design in finished films with instruction and practice in the use of sound recording equipment, sound transfers, building and editing multiple synchronous sound tracks, and preparing for the sound mix. Students work in groups to create and complete a five-minute sync sound film that incorporates the concept of "sound design." Formerly PF 320

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

MAAN 232 - 2-D Computer Animation

Using both raster- and vector-based programs, students explore how to build 2D animation sequences in the computer and how to translate hand-drawn animation into digitally composited animated pieces. Traditional animation principles are expanded upon and reinforced using 2D computer graphics and editing programs. Digital imagery and sound are integrated in class assignments designed to explore a wide variety of 2D styles. Formerly PF 316

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 231 or MMDI 102

Priority enrollment to Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 331 - 3-D Computer Animation

Using industry-standard 3D computer software, students learn basic modeling, texturing, lighting, movement, and rendering techniques. This course prepares students for further 3D computer coursework and allow them to utilize 3D software in the development and creation of their Junior and Senior thesis work. Formerly PF 326

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 231 or MMDI 102

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Spring Credits: 18

- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr

MAAN 302 - Junior Animation Workshop II

This course focuses on the creation of a personal, 1.5 minute animated piece, starting from initial conception and ending with final output to digital of film media. Stages in the production cycle include storyboarding, animatics, animation, inking and painting, sound image editing, and final output. Formerly PF 312B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 301

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 341 - Moving Art: Animation Theory and Production

The aesthetics of animation design and the structural elements of frame-by-frame filmmaking have evolved over time. Analytical, procedural, and historical approaches are brought to bear in the study of animation principles and their development in cinematic history. Formerly PF 327

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 202

Open to Animation majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 302 - Junior Cinema Production II

Second part of a year-long film and digital video production class emphasizing independent filmmaking techniques and concepts. Students explore cinematic ideas through structured and personal filmmaking assignments that emphasize keen visual thinking, story development, and an understanding of film form and film language. Students are taught professional lighting, 16mm sync sound camera technologies, editing and soundtrack strategies, and laboratory procedures. Students also view and analyze significant films. Formerly PF 310B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 301

Open to Film/Digital Video majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 331 - Experimental Video

An intermediate-level course in digital audio and video production. In the context of screenings and readings drawn from the history of experimental media, students learn to use various digital and optical strategies to approach a variety of thematic issues. This course is a venue for the production of short, aesthetically energized works for a variety of screening environments, and encourages collaboration with Dance and Music majors. Formerly PF 322

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

- MAAN 401 - Sr. Animation Workshop I Credits: 3 cr

MAFL 401 - Senior Cinema Production I

First part of a year-long course in which students produce their own thesis film or video. The students are also introduced to contemporary professional practices including resume writing, applying to film festivals, readings contracts, dealing with copyrights, and financing and distributing independent films. Formerly PF 410A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 311 or MAFL 302

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

MACR 443 - Time: A Multidisciplinary Seminar

The concept of Time considered from a multidisciplinary perspective, drawing on readings in philosophy, literature, psychology, sociology, and film theory. Relevant works in film and video are screened. Students are responsible for a final term paper that interrelates two or more of the readings with one of the screened works. Formerly PF 424

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 302 or MAAN 302

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 220 - Writing for Film

A writing class introducing students to the basic elements of screenwriting. These include three act structure, creating a character, act design, and scene structure. Students complete a short screenplay by the end of the semester. Formerly WM 219

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr
- MAAN 402 - Sr. Animation Workshop II Credits: 3 cr

MACR 499 - Internship

Internship program in which the student, working closely with the Media Arts Department internship advisor, is placed in one of several professional situations. Placements include assisting in professional studios, practice in biomedical photography laboratories, and working for commercial and non-profit galleries, among others. Placements in film and animation are sponsored by local independent production houses and television stations, design firms, and free-lance artists; students of film may assist in location shooting, set production, editing, casting, scripting, and a myriad of other practical tasks. Formerly PF 499

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202, MAPH 202 or MAAN 202

Open to Media Arts majors only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 320 - Film Forum: Selected Topics

Concentrated study of a particular area of film, video, or animation. Courses deal with specific issues and have included: film theory; seminars in sound and installation; studies in Japanese media; the history of video art; and the history of animation. Formerly PF 324

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202 or MAAN 202

Open to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 402 - Senior Cinema Production II

Second part of a year-long course in which students produce their own film or video. The students are also introduced to contemporary professional practices including resume writing, applying to film festivals, readings contracts, dealing with copyrights, and financing and distributing independent films. Formerly PF 410B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 401

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors.

Liberal Arts Distribution

Note all Liberal Arts courses are 3 credits.

- Liberal Arts Electives Credits: 15 cr

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 9XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - 20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI course in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR*102 and LACR*210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Note:

Electives must include nine studio credits taken outside the Film/Animation offerings.

Film/Digital Video - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

The Filmmaking major provides students with a background in all phases of film and video production, including film cinematography, videography, film and video editing, and sound/image manipulation. As in still photography, filmmaking students acquire a strong background in criticism, theory, and history of media. All Film/Video majors pursue at least one practical internship as part of the degree requirements.

Foundation Year - Film/Digital Video Sequence - credits: 33

The Foundation Film/Digital Video Sequence is a track for self-declared Film and Digital Video majors. Foundation students are eligible to select any College of Art and Design major program regardless of the Foundation sequence they attend.

Fall Credits: 18

FNDP 111 - Drawing

Drawing is approached as a process by which the student examines and investigates the visual world. Line, mark, and shape are among the drawing elements emphasized in the first semester. Students observe the form and structure of various subjects while they improve their skills, strengthen their vision, and begin to define their drawing vocabulary. Graphite pencils and a range of appropriate papers are the most frequently used materials. Focus is on the challenges and rewards of developing perceptual skills. Formerly FP 110

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 151 - Two-Dimensional Design

This course introduces the fundamental language of the visual arts within the two-dimensional plane. The first semester defines and investigates the visual elements of point, line, shape, pattern, and value. These fundamental elements are analyzed as independent units and brought together supporting and animating one another in a variety of formats. The investigation of compositional forces, interactions of shape with format, historic origins, mathematical structures, and time-based and sequential concepts are explored. Perceptual skills are developed using a variety of traditional and digital media. Examination of principles of movement in two-dimensional space using animated imagery and digital animation software is incorporated. The discovery of the power of the underlying fundamentals and their application defines the more complex subject of this class. Formerly FNDP 121

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 161 - Three-Dimensional Design/Time Motion

An introduction to the fundamental principles of three-dimensional and time-based work. Concepts of space, movement, mass, volume, the qualities and properties of materials as well as kinetic works are explored using traditional and digital processes. As the semester progresses the construction of three-dimensional objects emphasizing serial and sequential concepts combines with the use of video for motion capture and other means of exploring fundamental time-based works. The course emphasis is on processes of thinking and planning, thoughtful articulation of form, principles of perception and an appreciation and refinement of acuity in regards to static and kinetic forms. Formerly FNDP 131.

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 171 - Time and Motion

Building on the concepts and sensibilities of FNDP 151 Two-Dimensional Design Principles and FNDP 161 Three-Dimensional Design/Time Motion, students undertake an expanded exploration of time-based art. Students develop works that explore mechanical and digital animation devices, kinetics, and the cinematic language. Projects that focus on the controlled movement of objects, the positioning of the viewer and the use of sound prepare the students for the development of increasingly complex narrative works. Students experiment with a variety of materials and media.

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

FNDP 112 - Drawing

Building on the sensibilities, skills, and information of FNDP 111, students refine their perceptual abilities, utilize a wider range of media, and develop additional drawing strategies. Students study complex natural and organic form, including the human figure in both line tone. Controlling proportion, building volume, engaging the illusion of space, while at the same time developing the desired quality of light and illumination are issues explored in this semester. Faculty bring skills, projects, and information developed in the two- and three-dimensional classes into the service of drawing. Formerly FP 111

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 152 - Two-Dimensional Design

This course builds on the projects and skills established in FNDP 151. The majority of FNDP 152 is devoted to the study of color. With color comes additional visual enrichment, light and luminosity, a specialized language and the necessity to mature manual and digital skills, and control new media and concepts. The major works of the semester are based in the use of digital media as well as acrylic paints that require skills of mixing and application. Color theories are discussed, projects requiring tinting, shading, and toning clarify these basic concepts and master works are studied. Ideas developed in the class are shared with the other Foundation courses and skills from 3D and Drawing are imported to support current 2D projects. As the semester progresses, representational and non-representational images are developed as students work to integrate past experience, refine their skills of observation and explore more complex principles of organization. Instructor permission required. Formerly FNDP 122

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 151

Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 162 - Three-Dimensional Design

Building on the skills, language, and sensibilities of FNDP 161, the second semester undertakes more complex projects. Some projects often involve the combining of several materials and require the assembly of multiple parts. The semester explores the challenges of scale and engages time and movement as ideas. The introduction of environmental works, setting in place new principles of three-dimensional organization, researching the order in nature and taking up the challenge of representation in three dimensions are some of the arenas in which students work. Faculty relate works and share principles with either the two dimensional, drawing, or time motion classes and attempt to harvest skills and sensibilities developed in those classes to inform of projects in Three-Dimensional Design. Formerly FNDP 132

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 161

Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 102 - Video: Strategies and Tactics

Building on the skills and concepts introduced in Time/Motion, (FNDP *161) this course introduces the student to the creative and expressive possibilities of film and video. The course surveys a variety of approaches to film from narrative to documentary to experimental, fosters more critical viewing habits, and provides the student with basic production skills in digital video and audio.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111 FNDP 151 FNDP 161 FNDP 171

Open to Foundation majors only.

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Sophomore Year Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

WRIT 251 and WRIT 252 Narrative Cinema I & II are required of all Film/Video majors.

CMMC 103 - Sound Communication

This introduction to the field of sound communication enables students to conceptualize the importance of sound in cultural life and prepares them in practical approaches to field recording and working with various types of sound. A survey of approaches to sound as a social communication through readings and a broad range of audio examples, including documentary, journalistic, theatrical, and experimental approaches. Training in digital and audio field and post-production equipment and complete practical field exercises and an intensive sound project. Formerly CM 120

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication and Film/Digital Video majors; and Narrative Video and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

MAFL 201 - Introduction to Film I

A hands-on introduction to the principles and techniques of media production: shooting 16mm film and digital video, developing a sensitivity to the nuances of movement, understanding lighting and exposure, composition, and the logic of editing. We also survey the historical and aesthetic development of the medium in order to expand the students' sense of the possibilities of the medium. Formerly PF 210A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 201 - Introduction to Photography I

Introduction to basic concepts, processes, and techniques of black-and-white photography, including camera operation, exposure, darkroom procedures, lighting, and their controlled applications of these techniques. Emphasis is upon the normative standard of photographic rendering. Formerly PF 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite for all upper-level photography courses. Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts, Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

WRIT 252 Narrative Cinema II can be counted as a studio elective or liberal arts course.

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

MAAN 202 - Introduction to Animation II

Students are introduced to under-the-camera animation using varied mediums such as puppets, cut-outs, and painting-on-glass. Special attention is given to non-narrative approaches to animation. A final project is created using one or more of the techniques explored during the semester. Formerly PF 212B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 201 or MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 202 - Introduction to Film/Digital Video

This course offers an introduction to the basic practices of digital video editing and further creative exploration of the art of moving images. Students perform timing, staging, and blocking exercises to develop a feel for direction, experiment with more advanced film strategies, learn to edit digital video, and investigate relationships between sound and image. A final project integrates these explorations creatively. Formerly PF 210B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 252 - Narrative Cinema II

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 252

MAFL 301 - Junior Cinema Production I

First part of a year-long film and digital video production class emphasizing independent filmmaking techniques and concepts. Students explore cinematic ideas through structured and personal filmmaking assignments that emphasize keen visual thinking, story development, and an understanding of film form and film language. Students are taught professional lighting, 16mm sync sound camera technologies, editing and soundtrack strategies, and laboratory procedures. Students also view and analyze significant films. Formerly PF 310A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 311 - Sync-Sound for Narrative Film

Students in this course explore creative sound design in finished films with instruction and practice in the use of sound recording equipment, sound transfers, building and editing multiple synchronous sound tracks, and preparing for the sound mix. Students work in groups to create and complete a five-minute sync sound film that incorporates the concept of "sound design." Formerly PF 320

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 220 - Writing for Film

A writing class introducing students to the basic elements of screenwriting. These include three act structure, creating a character, act design, and scene structure. Students complete a short screenplay by the end of the semester. Formerly WM 219

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 3 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

MAFL 302 - Junior Cinema Production II

Second part of a year-long film and digital video production class emphasizing independent filmmaking techniques and concepts. Students explore cinematic ideas through structured and personal filmmaking assignments that emphasize keen visual thinking, story development, and an understanding of film form and film language. Students are taught professional lighting, 16mm sync sound camera technologies, editing and soundtrack strategies, and laboratory procedures. Students also view and analyze significant films. Formerly PF 310B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 301

Open to Film/Digital Video majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 320 - Film Forum: Selected Topics

Concentrated study of a particular area of film, video, or animation. Courses deal with specific issues and have included: film theory; seminars in sound and installation; studies in Japanese media; the history of video art; and the history of animation. Formerly PF 324

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202 or MAAN 202

Open to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 331 - Experimental Video

An intermediate-level course in digital audio and video production. In the context of screenings and readings drawn from the history of experimental media, students learn to use various digital and optical strategies to approach a variety of thematic issues. This course is a venue for the production of short, aesthetically energized works for a variety of screening environments, and encourages collaboration with Dance and Music majors. Formerly PF 322

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Senior Year Credits: 30Fall Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 3 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

MACR 443 - Time: A Multidisciplinary Seminar

The concept of Time considered from a multidisciplinary perspective, drawing on readings in philosophy, literature, psychology, sociology, and film theory. Relevant works in film and video are screened. Students are responsible for a final term paper that interrelates two or more of the readings with one of the screened works. Formerly PF 424

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 302 or MAAN 302

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MACR 499 - Internship

Internship program in which the student, working closely with the Media Arts Department internship advisor, is placed in one of several professional situations. Placements include assisting in professional studios, practice in biomedical photography laboratories, and working for commercial and non-profit galleries, among others. Placements in film and animation are sponsored by local independent production houses and television stations, design firms, and free-lance artists; students of film may assist in location shooting, set production, editing, casting, scripting, and a myriad of other practical tasks. Formerly PF 499

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202, MAPH 202 or MAAN 202

Open to Media Arts majors only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 401 - Senior Cinema Production I

First part of a year-long course in which students produce their own thesis film or video. The students are also introduced to contemporary professional practices including resume writing, applying to film festivals, readings contracts, dealing with copyrights, and financing and distributing independent films. Formerly PF 410A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 311 or MAFL 302

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 6 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr

MAFL 402 - Senior Cinema Production II

Second part of a year-long course in which students produce their own film or video. The students are also introduced to contemporary professional practices including resume writing, applying to film festivals, readings contracts, dealing with copyrights, and financing and distributing independent films. Formerly PF 410B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 401

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Liberal Arts Distribution

Note all Liberal Arts courses are 3 credits.

- Liberal Arts Electives Credits: 15 cr

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Note:

Electives must include at least nine studio credits taken outside the Film/Digital Video offerings.

Film/Digital Video Minor

This minor provides training in film and video technology. Students work on their own as well as in teams with other students. Animation and Film/Digital Video majors may not declare a Film/Digital Video minor.

Requirements for the Minor

MAFL 201 - Introduction to Film I

A hands-on introduction to the principles and techniques of media production: shooting 16mm film and digital video, developing a sensitivity to the nuances of movement, understanding lighting and exposure, composition, and the logic of editing. We also survey the historical and aesthetic development of the medium in order to expand the students' sense of the possibilities of the medium. Formerly PF 210A

Foundation Program

The full-time freshman student is typically scheduled for 16.5 credits each semester, usually as follows:

Graphic Design - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

Graphic Design students and faculty are engaged in a collaborative process of exploring the "New" as it emerges. For graphic design, the New has meant specifically the transformation of media, which affects how messages are created and transmitted, and how the intersection of design, media, and culture are understood. Throughout the three years of major concentration, problems in graphic communication are combined with exploratory and experimental studies in drawing, color, photography, typography, and emerging technologies. The curriculum is supplemented by special lecture programs, workshops with invited design firms, and on-site studio seminars in selected design offices and studios, paper and printing plants, museums and libraries, and with film and computer graphic producers.

Fall Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 3 cr

GDES 201 - Design Systems

An intensive laboratory where the formal aspects of composition, organic and geometric form, color, symbolic drawing, craftsmanship, and the processes of conceptualizing are investigated. All of the assignments are founded on directed goals and playful investigation to train the student in the areas of selection, set theory, and visual logic. Formerly GD 213A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: Completion of Foundation or MMDI 101, MMDI 102
Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 203 - Letterform Design

The analysis and development of letterforms. The norms of weight, proportion, character width, and alphabetic relationships are developed perceptually, by hand. This course stresses the inherent optical relationships that exist in the construction of typefaces derived from the Latin alphabet. Formerly GD 210

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation or MMDI 101 MMDI 102
Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 221 - Descriptive Drawing

A freehand drawing course that teaches the student to consciously observe, analyze, understand, and represent the underlying structure and form of manmade and natural objects. Logical representation and problem-solving is emphasized. A visual vocabulary of line, shape, value, texture, and their spatial organization is developed so that drawing can be used as a method of research and invention. Formerly GD 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 1.5 cr

EMDI 201 - Electronic Media/Production I

Addresses the development of foundation computer skills in image scanning technology, desktop publishing, digital photographic technologies, and basic output procedures. Technical expertise and efficient working methodologies are applied to problems that are brought into the class from other design courses as well as from both individual and group-assigned projects. All software is standard to current graphic design industry practices. Graduate students may register for this course under GREM 601. Formerly EM 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Graphic Design majors and Typography minors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GDES 202 - Design Systems

A continuation of Design Systems GDES 201. Further investigation of the visual language of design, culminating in a basic communication problem. Formerly GD 213B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 201

Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 212 - Typography Fundamentals

The course addresses the basic formal language of typography and the application of typographic principles to frame basic communication messages. Typographic investigations are achieved by both manual and digital means. Formerly GD 212

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: Completion of Foundation or MMDI 101, MMDI 102

Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors and Typography minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 222 - Descriptive Drawing

A continuation of Descriptive Drawing GDES 221. A freehand, analytical drawing course that concentrates on organic form and objects from nature. Formal composition and visual vocabulary of line, shape, value, texture, and spatial organization are stressed. Drawing skills are developed to sketch and research visual concepts, as well as to use the medium for the invention of original images in upper-level courses. Formerly GD 211B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 221

Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

EMDI 202 - Electronic Media/Production II

An extension of EMDI 201. Addresses the development of advanced computer skills in image scanning, technology, desktop publishing, pre-press production, color, output technology, and digital photographic technologies. Special attention is given to comparative study of output technologies and the translation of the on-screen image to offset lithography. Technical expertise and efficient working methodologies are applied to problems that are brought into the class from other design courses as well as from both individual and group-assigned projects. All software is standard to current graphic design industry practices. Formerly EM 202

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: EMDI 201

Open to Graphic Design majors and Typography minors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GDES 301 - Communications Studio

Developing an understanding of visual relationships and how to use them to create visual impact and clarity while solving communications problems. Invention, intuition, and discovery are combined with logical thought and thorough preliminary research. Special attention is given to refining the student's perceptual abilities, hand skills, and the integration of various media. Coursework is completed using both traditional and computer technologies. Students must have working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator, basic image scanning, and basic Macintosh operation or be concurrently enrolled in EMDI 201. Formerly GD 311A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: EMDI 201

Open to Graphic Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 311 - Typographic Systems

This course investigates and defines the principles of typography in a communication context. Directed research based upon typographic norms addresses the issues of informational hierarchies achievable through visual form and structure as well as the editorial and expressive potentials of typography. Coursework is completed both using traditional and computer technologies. Students must have working knowledge of Adobe InDesign and basic Macintosh operation or be concurrently enrolled in EMDI 202. Working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator is preferred. Formerly GD 306A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: EMDI 201, GDES 212

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LAAH 854 - History of Communication Design

A survey of two-dimensional design in the West, with particular attention to developments in the twentieth century. Formerly HU 254

- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr

EMDI 203 - Digital Interactive Techniques

Addresses the development of computer skills in digital time-based software and cyberspace software. Special attention is given to interactivity and theories of informational architecture. Technical expertise and efficient working methodologies are applied to problems in both individual and group projects. All software is standard to current graphic design industry practices. Formerly EM 203

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: EMDI 202

Open to Graphic Design majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GDES 302 - Communications Studio

A continuation of GDES 301, concentrating on the development of color, sensitivity, perceptual abilities, and hand skills within a communications context. A working process that develops invention through logical thought and intuition is applied to communication problems. Coursework is completed using both traditional and computer technologies. Students must have working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator, basic image scanning, and basic Macintosh operation or be concurrently enrolled in EMDI 203. Formerly GD 311B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 301

Open to Graphic Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 312 - Typographic Systems

This course is an extension and continuation of Typographic Systems GDES 311. The course addresses the typographic principles of the grid, text typography, text hierarchies, and image integration, all within the context of a multipage format. Students must have working knowledge of Adobe InDesign, image scanning, and basic knowledge of Photoshop or be concurrently enrolled in Electronic Media/Production II EMDI 312 to gain admission to this course. Additional working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator is preferred. Formerly GD 306B

- Electives Credits: 1.5 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr

EMDI 204 - Advanced Digital Interactive Techniques

An intensive studio in the advanced development of authoring and scripting skills in digital time-based software and cyberspace software. Special attention is given to interactivity, theories of informational architecture, and interface design. Technical expertise and efficient working methodologies are applied to problems in both individual and group projects. All software is standard in current graphic design industry practice. Formerly EM 204

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: EMDI 203

Open to Graphic Design majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GDES 401 - Design Studio

A wide-ranging exploration of the connections between image and text, and symbolic and narrative imagery. These studies are supported by inquiries into semiotics, information theory, and research methodology. This course uses both traditional and computer technologies within a thorough research process. Preliminary research and definition of a self-generated degree project is undertaken by Graphic Design majors in this course. Students should have expertise in Adobe InDesign, Adobe Illustrator, and Adobe Photoshop. Formerly GD 411A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 302

Open to Graphic Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 403 - Problem Solving

Develops approaches to solving communications problems of diverse character and increasingly practical application. It assumes a high level of formal competence and places special emphasis on working within technical and time constraints by developing clear and concise thought patterns. This course uses both traditional and computer technologies within a thorough research process. Students should have expertise in Adobe InDesign, Adobe Illustrator, Adobe Photoshop, Macromedia Director, Macromedia Flash, and Macromedia Dreamweaver. Formerly GD 412A

GDES 402 - Design Studio: Senior Project

A self-generated degree project involving research, proposals, complete design formulation, and final presentation. Topics are reviewed by a panel of faculty in Graphic Design; and the students are reviewed by an outside critic midway through the preliminary stages of development. This course uses both traditional and computer technologies within a thorough research process. Students should have expertise in Adobe InDesign, Adobe Illustrator, and Adobe Photoshop. Formerly GD 411B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 401

Open to Graphic Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 404 - Problem Solving

A continuation of Problem Solving GDES 403. This course develops approaches to solving communications problems of broad scope and increasingly practical application. Students work within technical and time constraints while developing clear and concise thought patterns. The course assumes a high level of formal competence and places special emphasis on the development of unified visual and conceptual relationships across various formats and scale. Both traditional and computer technologies are used within a thorough research process. Students should have expertise in Adobe InDesign, Adobe Illustrator, Adobe Photoshop, Macromedia Director, Macromedia Flash, and Macromedia Dreamweaver. Formerly GD 412B

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 854 - History of Communication Design

A survey of two-dimensional design in the West, with particular attention to developments in the twentieth century. Formerly HU 254

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

Illustration - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

In order to prepare for a career in this competitive field, The University of the Arts Illustration student develops skills that encompass both traditional and experimental media: from drawing and painting to photography, graphic design, three-dimensional processes, and emerging opportunities in digital image-making. Students may concentrate on a traditional, digital, or design-oriented illustration curriculum. These skills are nurtured within a stimulating cultural climate provided by the resources of the outstanding faculty, nationally recognized curriculum, visiting artists, a gallery exhibition program, the University, and the city at large. Each student progresses from general competencies to a personal viewpoint, clarified career goals, a professional attitude, and a finished portfolio.

Fall Credits: 15

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

ILUS 201 - Pictorial Foundation

Introduction to drawing and painting skills as they relate to illustration. Objective visual perception, clarity in drawing, and technical facility are stressed. Students are exposed to visual communications, strategies, and design concepts through exposure to art history and the field of contemporary illustration. Formerly IL 200A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FNDP 111, FNDP 121

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 211 - Figure Anatomy

Focus on the investigation and application of line, plane, mass, light and shade, shadow, perspective, anatomy, and proportion as they relate to figure drawing. Weekly sessions include a lecture, demonstrations from the skeleton, and drawing from life. Formerly IL 202A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 220 - Typography

Beginning studies in the form, use, nomenclature, and history of typography. Individual letters, word formations, text arrangements, and the application of type to simple communication exercises. Use of Macintosh computer for generating type and industry-accepted software is used. Formerly IL 204

Prerequisites & Notes

Industrial Design - Bachelor of Science

Program Total Credits: 126

After initial coursework to introduce basic design, communication, and collaboration processes, including computer-aided design and model-making, Industrial Design students develop and apply theory, skill, and knowledge to functional design problems, many brought into the studio by industry. Visiting designers also bring knowledge of current design, manufacturing, and professional practices into studio and lecture courses, while visits to industry provide opportunities for direct observation and firsthand knowledge of design and manufacturing processes. Based on this foundation of skill, experience, and information, emphasis in the final semesters shifts to the responsibility for integration of the total design process by the individual student, who works directly with a client/sponsor on a thesis project prior to graduation. During the final semester, the instructional focus shifts to career planning, portfolio preparation, and the development of information-gathering and business communication skills to better prepare the student to enter the profession.

Sophomore Year Credits: 30

IDES 201 - Studio 1: Projects Studio

A conceptual and practical understanding of design and three-dimensional problem-solving processes. This studio is taught in a collaborative manner, with two instructors conducting projects individually or as a team in order to provide focused instruction and integrated experiences covering a wide range of subjects including the tools, processes, and languages of design and model making. Emphasis is on the development of three-dimensional model making skills, problem solving and creative thinking and their application to problems of design. Formerly ID 200A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation

Open to Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

IDES 221 - Studio 2: Techniques

This studio assists the student to acquire essential two-dimensional representational skills to support the process of design, including production and presentation. It is taught in a collaborative manner, with the instructors conducting projects individually or as a team in order to provide focused instruction and integrated experiences over a wide range of subjects, including the tools, processes, and languages of conceptual drawing, rendering, and detailing using both the computer and traditional media as means to assist design and control production. Principles of technical specification and machine control are introduced as are concepts such as rapid photocopying, computer-integrated manufacturing, parts reduction through integration, and other techniques for efficient production. Students learn to apply these techniques to design problems addressed in IDES 201: Projects Studio. Formerly ID 220A

IDES 231 - Design Issues Seminar

This course is designed to assist the student to develop an understanding of the major issues for design in modern society. Discussions range from issues such as the ecological responsibility of designers to the contributions of individual designers and design organizations throughout the history of the discipline. Assignments include research and demonstration projects that explore ideas and illuminate ethical, practical, and moral issues with which designers should be concerned. Students prepare information and present their views on issues through written, oral, and visual means. Formerly ID 290

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 3 cr

IDES 202 - Studio 1: Projects Studio

A conceptual and practical understanding of design and three-dimensional problem-solving processes. This studio is taught in a collaborative manner, with two instructors conducting projects individually or as a team in order to provide focused instruction and integrated experiences covering a wide range of subjects including the tools, processes, and languages of design and model making. Emphasis is on the development of three-dimensional model making skills, problem solving and creative thinking and their application to problems of design. Formerly ID 200B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: IDES 201

Open to Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

IDES 222 - Studio 2: Techniques

This studio assists the student to acquire essential two-dimensional representational skills to support the process of design, including production and presentation. It is taught in a collaborative manner, with the instructors conducting projects individually or as a team in order to provide focused instruction and integrated experiences over a wide range of subjects, including the tools, processes, and languages of conceptual drawing, rendering, and detailing using both the computer and traditional media as means to assist design and control production. Principles of technical specification and machine control are introduced as are concepts such as rapid photocopying, computer-integrated manufacturing, parts reduction through integration, and other techniques for efficient production. Students learn to apply these techniques to design problems addressed in IDES 201: Projects Studio. Formerly ID 220B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: IDES 221 Corequisite: IDES 202

Open to Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

IDES 232 - Materials & Processes Seminar

A writing-intensive course introducing the student to the nature of materials used in industrial products and the various processes by which they are formed. Films, lectures, and field trips familiarize students with wood, metal, and plastic materials as well as processes such as injection molding, laser cutting, and stereolithography. Emphasis is placed on the study of material characteristics and the appropriate use of forming methods. Introduction to technical information, specification writing, and professional communications. Graduate students may register for this course under GRID 614. Formerly ID 214

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation

Open to Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Junior Year Credits: 33

Fall Credits: 18

- Electives Credits: 3 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr

IDES 301 - Studio 3: Projects Studio

Following a year of basic design process, methods, and vocabulary introduction, the Junior Studio sequence focuses on solving more advanced design process and project opportunities through applied integration with Human Factors, Design Semantics, and Design Communication skills. The first semester offers more advanced design projects exploring user-centered design and creative exploration of industrial materials usage. The second semester continues with a focus on collaboration with various community groups and/or industry-sponsored projects. Formerly ID 300A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: IDES 202, IDES 222, IDES 231 Corequisites: IDES 321, IDES 331, IDES 332

Open to Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

IDES 321 - Studio 4: Techniques

Assists the student in developing graphic communication skills using computational media and applying these skills to both two- and three-dimensional images and presentations. The student is taught to conceptualize, develop, detail, present, and communicate design ideas through graphic design, computer imaging, three-dimensional computer modeling, basic animation, and interactive design presentation. The first semester focuses on integrating graphic software and the development of printed presentations. The second semester focuses on the development of interactive digital presentations. Formerly ID 320A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: IDES 202, IDES 222, IDES 231 Corequisite: IDES 301

Open to Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

IDES 332 - Design Semantics Seminar

This seminar addresses design as a languaging process of social interaction. Semantic principles and design vocabulary are introduced through lectures, weekly readings, discussions, and exercises. Students work on individual as well as team-based projects to increase their competence in translating these ideas, concepts, and principles into design practices, applying replicable design methods towards proposing particular products whose meanings matter and whose use is dominated by facets of human understanding. Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

IDES 331 - Human Factors Seminar

The object of this research-intensive course is to develop an ability to apply technology effectively to meet human needs through the study of human engineering principles for the design of products and equipment. Human anatomy, anthropometrics and motion, and strength of body components are considered as are sensory systems, human perception, and sensitivities. Lectures are complemented by laboratory experiments designed to teach students methods of testing and evaluating their own product design concepts in human terms. Concepts of scientific writing and reporting are demonstrated through the documentation of coursework. Formerly ID 326

IDES 401 - Studio 5: Projects Studio

These studio courses focus on decisive and responsible positions in formulating new design directions. Building upon past learning, projects sharpen fundamental skills of sketching (2D & 3D), design drawing, computer modeling, prototyping and conceptual diagramming. Students are encouraged through critical discourse and research on historical and contemporary material of cultural shifts to formulate their own ideology. Project proposals forward questions such as social context, ergonomics, and ecological consequences. Students are expected to identify local stakeholders (industry, users, designers, etc.) and ask them to be topic advisors as appropriate. First semester projects are dedicated to three fast-paced, highly theoretical, predefined topics. The next semester is devoted to further development of one of these projects. This final semester-long project works toward project closure and pragmatic articulation, ready to be shown both inside and outside an academic context. Formerly ID 400A

Prerequisites & Notes

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

IDES 421 - Studio 6: Professional Communication

Refines the students' written, verbal, and visual presentation skills and assists them in developing communication materials for their senior theses and industry-sponsored projects. Intensive group critique of individual presentations prepared outside of class. Students develop self-promotion, presentation, and correspondence materials utilizing service bureaus and contemporary technologies such as digital files, fax, and the World Wide Web to prepare and transmit this information. Formerly ID 420A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: IDES 302, IDES 322, IDES 331, IDES 332 Corequisite: IDES 401

Open to Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

IDES 431 - Design Theory Seminar

In this industrial design seminar, students investigate design philosophies, issues, and pedagogy, from a historic as well as contemporary international design context. Students study various definitions of design, explore design theories and issues, and consider theoretical relationships with other applied arts. Formerly ID 490A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: IDES 302, IDES 322, IDES 331, IDES 332 Corequisites: IDES 401, IDES 421, IDES 432

- Liberal Arts Electives Credits: 15 cr

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 851 - History of Industrial Design

A survey of industrial design in the West, paying particular attention to developments in the twentieth century. Formerly HU 251

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Priority enrollment to Industrial Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 9XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - 20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI course in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR*102 and LACR*210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Note:

Electives must include nine studio credits taken outside the Industrial Design offerings.

Recommended Electives:

While none of the following is required for graduation, they are recommended by the department:

CRCM 221 - Introduction to Molding & Casting

A course in modelmaking, moldmaking, and casting techniques using plaster and synthetic compounds. Emphasis is on developing proficiency in slip casting for use in the artist's studio and in industry for serial production. Formerly CR 251

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRCM 222 - Plaster Workshop

An introductory course in modelmaking, moldmaking, and casting techniques, using plaster and synthetic compounds. This course emphasizes the usefulness of these media to designers and artists. Formerly CR 252

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

EMDI 110 - Computer Concepts

A conceptual and hands-on course that introduces the student to the foundations of digital processes in the arts. Experiences in this course include basic spreadsheet usage, database search techniques, digital photography including RAW file processing, scanning, image processing, composting, and basic page layout techniques. The course includes an introduction to professional online services such as LexisNexis, as well as advanced search strategies using the Web. Software usage includes Microsoft Office suite, and the Adobe Creative Suite (Illustrator, Photoshop and InDesign). Students are given assignments in each of the software environments as well as supplemental weekly readings. No prior computer experience is required. Formerly EM 110

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

EMDI 210 - Digital Multimedia

The elements of digital multimedia production techniques address the integration and creation of digital media for websites and alternative delivery processes such as podcasting. This course involves hands-on production experience as well as perspective on developments in this rapidly growing field through the readings and lectures. Students create projects involving digital imagery, video and sound, and animation. The first half of the semester is dedicated to creating video pieces utilizing either digital video or animating still imagery. Creation of effective sound tracks will be an important part of this process. The second half of the semester is dedicated to creating a website and utilizing compressed digital video on the Web. Software to be utilized include Photo to Movie, iMovie, Amadeus Pro, Garageband, iDVD, and Dreamweaver. There is considerable emphasis on new utilizations of digital media such as podcasts and VODcasts (video on demand) and cell phone multimedia. Graduate students may register for this course under GREM 610. Formerly EM 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

IDES 101 - Freshman I.D.

This course introduces first-year students to the issues surrounding the profession and highlights its importance in informing culture and shaping the way we live. Students are exposed to the fundamental skills required to support the process of concept ideation, design development, and presentation of products and furniture. These fundamentals are introduced through in-class exercises, lectures by visiting professionals, and direct involvement in relevant activities within the Industrial Design Department itself. Formerly ID 113

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Foundation majors. Student must NOT have completed the second semester of their Sophomore year (45 credits).

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

IDES 371 - Architectonics

An elective course intended as a multidisciplinary forum for the investigation, appreciation, and design of architectural space, structures, and systems. Using in-class exercises as a laboratory for creative and collaborative exchange, students learn alternative design processes, design vocabulary, user-centered experience and design. This course develops concepts and analytical studies of objects/spaces through various 2D and 3D drawing/modeling techniques and culminates in an actual built/altered environment. Graduate students may register for this course under GRID 624. Formerly ID 312

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LAAH 974 - Topics in Design

A seminar in the history of design. Each semester the course is taught, a different aspect of design history is studied. Individual designers under consideration have been Wright, Le Corbusier, and Aalto; other topics have been particular design histories: crafts history, graphic design history, industrial design history; and particular styles of design: The Arts and Crafts movement, Art Nouveau, Bauhaus, de Stijl and Constructivism, Art Deco, and Post-Modernism. Formerly HU 452

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MAPH 281 - Portfolio Documentation

The use of photography to create a portfolio of artwork, exhibitions, and installations is necessary for artists in all visual media. Students learn how to photograph two- and three-dimensional artwork in a studio setting and on location. Instruction addresses a wide range of issues including: artificial and natural lighting, film-based and digital camera operation, image processing techniques, and output options. By participating in lectures, demonstrations, field trips and shooting assignments, students acquire the skills necessary to create a coherent visual portfolio of their work. Formerly PF 203

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 112 or FNDP 152

Not open to Photography majors. Not recommended for Foundation students. May be taken 3 times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 425 - Special Projects in Multimedia

This seminar is designed to give students direct contact with their soon-to-be peers in the various multimedia industries. The multimedia industries that may be covered include but are not limited to: fine art, interface design, installation art, game design, and electronic music. Timely and relevant issues concerning the craft, thought, and professional expectations of a multimedia artist/designer are the content of this course. Topics related to the multimedia industries in general and the instructor's specific industry experience are discussed. Readings, discussion, and a practical presentation or project make up the body of this course. Formerly MM 472

Prerequisites & Notes

Students must have completed the second semester of their Sophomore year (60 credits). May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Industrial Design - Master of Industrial Design - Fall 2008

Program Total Credits: 60

Two-year, 60-Credit Curriculum

The two-year, 60-credit curriculum (for students holding a bachelor's degree in an art or design field or equivalent) consists of studio, methods, and seminar courses. The curriculum is project-based, which means that each semester, course content is integrated around studio-based projects.

Because design is a collaborative profession, most studio projects will be team-based. During the first and third semesters of study, first-year students will work with second-year students with an MID industry partner in a shared studio. Semester two is more individually oriented. The final semester of the two-year program is devoted to a master's thesis in which the candidate will work more independently with a group of internal faculty and/or outside professionals to develop a thesis project that must advance the candidate's chosen field of study.

Three-year, 78-Credit Curriculum

The three-year, 78-credit curriculum (for students from disciplines other than art and design) provides a prerequisite year of basic design skills, concepts, and competencies with six credits of graduate coursework that will prepare students to enter the two-year MID program.

Like the program itself, the faculty represents a wide range of approaches to the practice of design. This means that students have access to currently practicing design professionals with backgrounds in fields ranging from architecture, graphic design, cultural anthropology, and psychology, to industrial systems, and environmental design. The Industrial Design Department thus offers a unique core faculty group who share a common philosophy and commitment to the design process.

GRAD 650 - University Seminar: Structure and Metaphor

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from the several graduate programs examine theoretical issues of structure and metaphor in relation to art and design. Topics include cognition and perception, meaning and representation, and systems of organization and expression. (May be taken to satisfy Aesthetics and Art Criticism co-requisites for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 691

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRID 603 - Design Studio I

The major multidisciplinary studio where design ideology, process, development, and production are emphasized through a collaboration with one of MID's strategic industry partners. Project teams will combine first and second year students. First year students will be introduced to the MID design culture and second year students will have the opportunity to further improve their abilities to apply the design process while acting in a leadership role. Issues discussed and studied are: learning and design process informed by applied design research, communicated through clearly designed information, and driven by collaborative design development. The design process considers above issued in the formulation of a design program; conceptual abstract studies; physical and material investigations; simulated and physical representation; and the application of manufacturing. Specific design skill sets covered in GRID 604 Design Methods I, complement this studio's projects.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GRID 604

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs.

GRID 604 - Design Methods I

As a complement to the studio course (GRID 603), this course helps to develop the skills and methods required to realize successful design projects. Put into practice, these "tools" enable and support a design process that is increasingly shared with other disciplines, facilitates collective learning, and produces actionable strategies for change.

Special emphasis is placed on participant field research, system mapping, the development of design-orientated scenarios and the ability to communicate design thinking and concepts in a clear and compelling way. Content of the coursework comes directly from the studio projects.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GRID 603

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs.

GRID 611 - Design Seminar: Concepts and Contexts

A seminar devoted to examining the shift in cultural, technological, material, and professional landscapes that a graduate design candidate must navigate. Through readings, presentations, and discussions, students explore how these evolved contexts are changing the nature of design practice and thinking. Special emphasis is placed on developing key concepts and ideas that inform the work that the students undertake throughout their program. The seminar works in parallel with the studio course; topics and themes covered in the seminar are germane to the studio projects. Formerly ID 600

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Elective Credits: 3 cr

GRAD 651 - University Seminar: Art and Society

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from all graduate programs examine theoretical issues relating to the place of art and design in society. Topics include the social role of the artist/designer, public policy and the arts, issues of post-modernism, and aesthetic and ethical implications of emerging arts communication technologies. (May be taken to satisfy Sociology/Anthropology corequisite for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 692

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRID 605 - Design Studio II

This design studio offers the opportunity to launch individual or group design projects that are not connected to the on-going industry partnerships. Projects are framed through critical issues and connected to the on-going industry partnerships. Projects are framed through critical issues and take into consideration personal interests of the individual student. The primary goal of this course is to increasingly strengthen the student's ability to engage and advance critical issues through demonstrating and testing design concepts that can lead to products, systems and/or services. Students will be able to gauge their personal strengths and weaknesses, and orient/position themselves for the subsequent summer internship.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GRID 606 Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs.

GRID 606 - Design Methods II

As a complement to the Design Studio II course (GRID 605), this course builds on the introduction to the design process, its tools and methods, to further develop the skills and methods in GRID 604 in the previous semester. The course further develops field research methods and principles (e.g. Universal Design, Human Factors) and refines mapping, modeling and presentation techniques. This course also supports students' portfolio development and self-promotion in order to secure an appropriate internship for the summer.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GRID 605

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs.

Year Two Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 18

- Elective Credits: 3 cr

GRID 703 - Advanced Design Studio

The major multidisciplinary studio where design ideology, process, development, and production are emphasized through a collaboration with one of MID's strategic industry partners. Project teams will combine first and second year students. First year students will be introduced to the MID design culture and second year students will have the opportunity to further improve their abilities to apply the design process while acting in a leadership role. Issues discussed and studied are: learning and design process informed by applied design research, communicated through clearly designed information, and driven by collaborative design development. The design process considers above issues in the formulation of a design program; conceptual abstract studies; physical and material investigations; simulated and physical representation; and the application of manufacturing. Specific design skill sets covered in GRID 604, Design Methods I, complement this studio's projects.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GRID 704

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr

GRID 704 - Advanced Design Methods

Building on the design methods classes offered during the first year, the laboratory offers a series of tutorials in order to round out students' particular skill sets. This course will further support professional networking through development of student's portfolio websites and other outreach projects.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GRID 703

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GRID 720 - ID Seminar: Professional Development

A professional seminar that addresses the individual career interests of each degree candidate especially as they relate to the student's thesis project. The product of this course is the formulation of a career plan and objectives tailored to each candidate, and the further development of a portfolio, resume, and other documentation targeted toward the practical application of the candidate's knowledge and skill.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRID 703

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs.

GRID 795 - Design Internship

A supervised practicum in a cooperating business, consultancy or design firm. The internship represents full-time employment under the mentorship of a professional; it provides practical on-site experience in which the intern is integrated into the professional staff, assuming professional-level responsibilities and experience. A University Professor also observes, advises, and assesses the student during the course of the internship.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 12

GRID 712 - Design Entrepreneurship

This course will develop the tools that take ideas from inception to business plan, to put their ideas into idioms that make sense to industry, and to create the viable means for connecting new product and service development to sustainable outcomes. This course will explore new business incubation; micro business practices, emerging models of design consultancies, and, practices of innovation in a global economy.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Master of Industrial Design Majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs.

GRID 721 - Masters Thesis Project

A tutorial providing the opportunity for individual candidates to shape and present the outcome of their programs of study in a manner that directly reflects their career objectives. Projects may be carried out independently, under industry sponsorship, or as part of a research project, based on a plan produced and approved through the thesis director.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRID 703

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

GRID 722 - Masters Thesis Documentation

A tutorial providing the opportunity for individual candidates to develop and present their thesis in a manner that directly reflects their career objectives. The thesis project and document must exhibit an in-depth exploration of an approved topic, which addresses an area of importance to the Industrial Design field and contributes to the body of knowledge pertaining to that area. It may be carried out under industry sponsorship, as a part of a research project, or be independently based.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRID 703

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Note:

In addition to required courses, students take elective courses that enable them to pursue their specific interest, as well as overcome deficiencies in their design preparation. In certain cases, particularly for applicants from non-design undergraduate programs, it is necessary to complete specific courses in industrial design. These courses are selected from appropriate undergraduate courses and may not apply towards degree requirements.

Master of Fine Arts Low Residency Program in Ceramics, Painting, or Sculpture

Program Total Credits: 60

These studio-based Master of Fine Arts degree programs are intended to broaden and advance the conceptual, critical, historical, and practical knowledge needed to sustain a contemporary studio. The programs have been designed to meet the needs of artists holding BFA or BA degrees who are interested in pursuing an MFA in either Ceramics, Painting, or Sculpture within a time frame that accommodates their employment or academic year schedule.

Departing from the traditional semester format, students enter this three-year program in summer and complete the major portion of their work during three annual eight-week summer residencies of intensive, individually focused studio experience. In addition to exploration in the major, students pursue interdisciplinary investigations in studio topics common to each discipline and address contemporary critical issues and methodology in University graduate seminars. During the fall and spring semesters, students complete independent studios, writing and research projects, and independent thesis preparations. Regional students maintain contact with studio faculty and present studio work at specific intervals throughout the off-campus semester and at final critiques held at the end of the fall and spring semesters. Non-regional students meet with assigned studio mentors in their geographic region for concurrent periodic and final critiques of in-progress and completed work. Off-campus writing and research projects are completed via mail or email communication with seminar faculty. A final thesis review and exhibition is held following completion of the third summer.

Summer Year I, Credits: 12

GRFA 613 - Graduate Drawing

Advanced studio develops and expands the student's visual language and skills while challenging their conceptual approach to drawing by examining and applying the use of materials and methods having historic and cultural origins. Formerly FA 611

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the Summer MFA program only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

- GRXX 611- Major Studio in Ceramics, Painting, or Sculpture Credits: 6 cr

Select one course from the following two:

GRAD 650 - University Seminar: Structure and Metaphor

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from the several graduate programs examine theoretical issues of structure and metaphor in relation to art and design. Topics include cognition and perception, meaning and representation, and systems of organization and expression. (May be taken to satisfy Aesthetics and Art Criticism co-requisites for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 691

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRAD 651 - University Seminar: Art and Society

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from all graduate programs examine theoretical issues relating to the place of art and design in society. Topics include the social role of the artist/designer, public policy and the arts, issues of post-modernism, and aesthetic and ethical implications of emerging arts communication technologies. (May be taken to satisfy Sociology/Anthropology corequisite for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 692

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Fall Year I, Credits 4.5

GRFA 611 - Independent Studio I

Intended to assist students in establishing independent production in their major discipline while acquiring the ability to integrate studio production with the demands of off-campus life. At the conclusion of Summer I and subsequently, Winter Critique I, the student and faculty mentor agree on a plan of work to be pursued during the off-campus semester, which is a continuation of work begun in the previous semester. The students are required to propose a direction for their investigations and have access to off-campus studio space in which to carry out the proposal. Enrollment in the Independent Studio requires a commitment of 150 hours, equivalent to 10 hours of studio activity per week during the 15-week off-campus semester. The studio mentor meets with the student five times during the semester at three-week intervals, reviewing the student's progress for a 1/2 hour session. The first meeting may take place at the mentor's studio. The last meeting is the final critique of the semester, which takes place at the Winter Critique held at the University. Formerly FA 691

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRCR 611, GRPT 611 or GRSC 611 Corequisite: GRFA 621

Open to majors in the Summer MFA program only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 10 hrs

GRFA 621 - Independent Writing Project I

The Independent Writing Project is a corequisite of the Independent Studio I and II, and is intended to inform the student's ongoing Independent Studio investigations undertaken during the fall and spring off-campus semesters. The student proposes an area of research intended as a continued examination of topics introduced during the previous summer seminars, Structure and Metaphor or Art and Society. The student is encouraged to explore through writing the range of issues emanating from seminar reading and discussion and the relationship of these external influences to the development of themes and directions being explored in the studio work. GRFA 781 - Thesis Writing Project I

The Thesis Writing Project is a corequisite of Thesis Preparation I and II, and takes place during the fall and spring off-campus semesters. Research for the Thesis Writing Project is intended to inform the student's second-year Independent Studio activity, which focuses on identifying and developing potential directions for the thesis exhibition and written thesis. The student is expected to consider issues raised during the previous summer's seminar that are particularly relevant to the more focused direction of their studio work. The student independently formulates a proposal and bibliography for a formal paper to be based upon the more developed direction of their work. The range of issues considered for further investigation may include aesthetic, conceptual, technical, or visual culture issues as well as the relationship of the major work to other disciplines. Formerly FA 781

Following the successful completion of Summer II and the MFA Candidacy Review, the student is declared a candidate by the graduate faculty and may begin independently producing a body of work intended for eventual presentation in a thesis exhibition following the successful completion of Summer III. In consultation with the studio mentor, the student submits Thesis Preparation Plan I, identifying and describing a direction of investigation to be undertaken during the fall semester. The student is expected to identify specific issues to be addressed: intended focus of the work, considerations of technique, materials, scale, location, etc. The student must propose a personal timetable for accomplishing the thesis and identify the sources that will be used in preparation for the exhibition. Enrollment in Thesis Preparation I and II requires a commitment of 150 hours, equivalent to 10 hours of studio activity per week during the 15-week off-campus semester. Formerly FA 793

GRAD 750 - University Seminar: Criticism

An interdisciplinary seminar in which advanced graduate students from various disciplines in the visual arts further examine the nature of image-making with particular attention to the theories and applications of criticism. Formerly GR 791

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate students in the College of Art and Design only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRFA 740 - Professional Practices

This course is designed to familiarize students with methods, practices, and professional standards in preparation for the Thesis Exhibition and eventual entry into the visual arts professions. Formerly FA 612

GRFA 785 - MFA Thesis Exhibition

The MFA degree certifies that the artist has attained a high level of competence and independent judgment in the discipline and is qualified to stand with his/her mentors as a master artist. The thesis exhibition and accompanying written statement are intended to serve as a demonstration of this mastery. During the final semester, criticism-based research is undertaken as a continuation of the summer seminar in Criticism and is intended to assist the MFA candidate in completing the written component of the thesis requirements. Formerly FA 795

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRCR 711, GRPT 711 or GRSC 711

Ceramics, Painting, or Sculpture Electives

Recommended electives include but are not limited to:

AEDU 602 - History of Ideas in Art and Museum Education

Seminar on major issues and trends in the history of art and museum education, with an emphasis on child-centered and content-centered theories and the theoretical antecedents of Discipline-Based Art Education, the Visual Culture movement, and standards-based education. Formerly AE 602

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Art Education and Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRFA 614 - Studio Topics

This course brings together students from each of the major disciplines to explore studio issues common to all visual arts. Formerly FA 610

GRLA 631 - American Art Since 1945

(See course description under LAAH 831.) In order to receive graduate credit, graduate students are expected to exceed undergraduate course expectations by applying the skills and competencies outlined in the syllabus to graduate-level concepts that typically relate to their major program of study. In this regard, graduate students taking this graduate elective are required to meet with the instructor prior to the start of class to determine and outline the nature of the requirements to be met. Formerly HU 648

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 831 - American Art Since 1945

In 1945, World War II ended and the focus of modern art shifted from Paris to New York City. The course begins with Abstract Expressionism; studies other major American styles, such as pop art and minimalism; and concludes with post-modernist development such as performance and decoration by artists. Graduate students may register for this course under GRLA 631. Formerly HU 448A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 832 - European Art Since 1945

Art since World War II has been dominated by the New York market and by the issue of abstraction; in Europe, however, artists continued to use the human figure as a vehicle for social and ethical concerns, and, more recently, their engagement has become a model for younger artists in both Europe and America. The course will look at crafts and book arts as well as fine arts; it will also make use of plays and films. Formerly HU 448B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 970 - Major Artists

The course concentrates on a single artist or a group of related artists. Among the artists who have come under this intense investigation have been Donatello, Michelangelo, Rembrandt, and Picasso. The course has been designed to give students an in-depth knowledge of one artist's life and art or the artists of a single school. Formerly HU 456

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Multidisciplinary Fine Arts - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

This multidisciplinary option is for the student interested in working across media and who is interested in research, cultural studies, and exploratory models of art making. This major involves 18 credits in a core of multidisciplinary classes and 15 credits in a discipline emphasis which supplies depth of studio experience. The discipline emphasis can be chosen from one of the program areas in Fine Arts, Crafts, or Media Arts.

The core multidisciplinary classes will begin in the spring term of the sophomore year and will involve class research and studio. Junior year will consist of a class addressing issues of cultural relevance with lectures by experts in their respective fields combined with studio work that responds to the presentations. There will also be a core class on contemporary issues in art during the junior year. Senior year will be more individualized study leading toward a senior thesis exhibition.

Foundation Year Credits: 33

Foundation students are eligible to select any College of Art and Design major program regardless of the Foundation sequence they attend.

FOUNDATION

Fall Credits: 16.5

Students entering the Foundation program through midyear admission (spring semester) will enroll in these courses for the spring semester, and then take their second Foundation semester during the Summer Foundation semester, May/June.

- Elective Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FNDP 111 - Drawing

Drawing is approached as a process by which the student examines and investigates the visual world. Line, mark, and shape are among the drawing elements emphasized in the first semester. Students observe the form and structure of various subjects while they improve their skills, strengthen their vision, and begin to define their drawing vocabulary. Graphite pencils and a range of appropriate papers are the most frequently used materials. Focus is on the challenges and rewards of developing perceptual skills. Formerly FP 110

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 151 - Two-Dimensional Design

This course introduces the fundamental language of the visual arts within the two-dimensional plane. The first semester defines and investigates the visual elements of point, line, shape, pattern, and value. These fundamental elements are analyzed as independent units and brought together supporting and animating one another in a variety of formats. The investigation of compositional forces, interactions of shape with format, historic origins, mathematical structures, and time-based and sequential concepts are explored. Perceptual skills are developed using a variety of traditional and digital media. Examination of principles of movement in two-dimensional space using animated imagery and digital animation software is incorporated. The discovery of the power of the underlying fundamentals and their application defines the more complex subject of this class. Formerly FNDP 121

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 161 - Three-Dimensional Design/Time Motion

An introduction to the fundamental principles of three-dimensional and time-based work. Concepts of space, movement, mass, volume, the qualities and properties of materials as well as kinetic works are explored using traditional and digital processes. As the semester progresses the construction of three-dimensional objects emphasizing serial and sequential concepts combines with the use of video for motion capture and other means of exploring fundamental time-based works. The course emphasis is on processes of thinking and planning, thoughtful articulation of form, principles of perception and an appreciation and refinement of acuity in regards to static and kinetic forms. Formerly FNDP 131.

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 16.5

- Elective Credits: 1.5 cr

Select three courses from the following four:

FNDP 112 - Drawing

Building on the sensibilities, skills, and information of FNDP 111, students refine their perceptual abilities, utilize a wider range of media, and develop additional drawing strategies. Students study complex natural and organic form, including the human figure in both line tone. Controlling proportion, building volume, engaging the illusion of space, while at the same time developing the desired quality of light and illumination are issues explored in this semester. Faculty bring skills, projects, and information developed in the two- and three-dimensional classes into the service of drawing. Formerly FP 111

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Prerequisite: FNDP 111
Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 152 - Two-Dimensional Design

This course builds on the projects and skills established in FNDP 151. The majority of FNDP 152 is devoted to the study of color. With color comes additional visual enrichment, light and luminosity, a specialized language and the necessity to mature manual and digital skills, and control new media and concepts. The major works of the semester are based in the use of digital media as well as acrylic paints that require skills of mixing and application. Color theories are discussed, projects requiring tinting, shading, and toning clarify these basic concepts and master works are studied. Ideas developed in the class are shared with the other Foundation courses and skills from 3D and Drawing are imported to support current 2D projects. As the semester progresses, representational and non-representational images are developed as students work to integrate past experience, refine their skills of observation and explore more complex principles of organization. Instructor permission required. Formerly FNDP 122

Prerequisite: FNDP 151

Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 162 - Three-Dimensional Design

Building on the skills, language, and sensibilities of FNDP 161, the second semester undertakes more complex projects. Some projects often involve the combining of several materials and require the assembly of multiple parts. The semester explores the challenges of scale and engages time and movement as ideas. The introduction of environmental works, setting in place new principles of three-dimensional organization, researching the order in nature and taking up the challenge of representation in three dimensions are some of the arenas in which students work. Faculty relate works and share principles with either the two dimensional, drawing, or time motion classes and attempt to harvest skills and sensibilities developed in those classes to inform of projects in Three-Dimensional Design. Formerly FNDP 132

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 161

Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 171 - Time and Motion

Building on the concepts and sensibilities of FNDP 151 Two-Dimensional Design Principles and FNDP 161 Three-Dimensional Design/Time Motion, students undertake an expanded exploration of time-based art. Students develop works that explore mechanical and digital animation devices, kinetics, and the cinematic language. Projects that focus on the controlled movement of objects, the positioning of the viewer and the use of sound prepare the students for the development of increasingly complex narrative works. Students experiment with a variety of materials and media.

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Fall Credits: 16.5

Students entering the Foundation program through midyear admission (spring semester) will enroll in these courses for the spring semester, and then take their second Foundation semester during the Summer Foundation semester, May/June.

FNDP 161 - Three-Dimensional Design/Time Motion

An introduction to the fundamental principles of three-dimensional and time-based work. Concepts of space, movement, mass, volume, the qualities and properties of materials as well as kinetic works are explored using traditional and digital processes. As the semester progresses the construction of three-dimensional objects emphasizing serial and sequential concepts combines with the use of video for motion capture and other means of exploring fundamental time-based works. The course emphasis is on processes of thinking and planning, thoughtful articulation of form, principles of perception and an appreciation and refinement of acuity in regards to static and kinetic forms. Formerly FNDP 131.

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Fall Credits: 16.5

Students entering the Foundation program through midyear admission (spring semester) will enroll in these courses for the spring semester and then take their second Foundation semester during the Summer Foundation semester, May/June.

- Elective Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

Fall Credits: 16.5

Students entering the Foundation program through midyear admission (Spring semester) will enroll in these courses for the spring semester and then take their second Foundation semester during the Summer Foundation semester, May/June.

Select one from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

EMDI 210 - Digital Multimedia

The elements of digital multimedia production techniques address the integration and creation of digital media for websites and alternative delivery processes such as podcasting. This course involves hands-on production experience as well as perspective on developments in this rapidly growing field through the readings and lectures. Students create projects involving digital imagery, video and sound, and animation. The first half of the semester is dedicated to creating video pieces utilizing either digital video or animating still imagery. Creation of effective sound tracks will be an important part of this process. The second half of the semester is dedicated to creating a website and utilizing compressed digital video on the Web. Software to be utilized include Photo to Movie, iMovie, Amadeus Pro, Garageband, iDVD, and Dreamweaver. There is considerable emphasis on new utilizations of digital media such as podcasts and VODcasts (video on demand) and cell phone multimedia. Graduate students may register for this course under GREM 610. Formerly EM 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

FACR 215 - Subjects/Formats

This is a required studio course that explores Subject/Format issues that cross over between the traditional fine arts disciplines. Students in the Painting/Drawing, Sculpture, Printmaking and Multidiscipline tracks will work from a common syllabus and develop artworks within the traditional framework of their studio base. Three projects will be assigned over the course of the semester. Each project assignment will be limited by a specified subject matter and a specified format. Each of the three project periods will conclude with a group critique. This course is sequentially linked to FACR 216 Research Practices. Course begins Spring 2009.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: Research Practices

Open to Fine Arts, Media Arts and Crafts majors within the College of Art and Design. Priority enrollment to Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FACR 216 - Research Practices

This course is designed to develop traditional and creative research strategies necessary for contemporary art practice. Students learn to find and use information that can both generate and enhance their ideas. This kind of "information Literacy" enriches the content factor in the form/content equation essential to artworks. Using numerous resources for collecting material, research will cover historical, cultural, social, and political contexts for art ideas. Various methods will be explored for recording, classifying and representing information, such as writing, mapping, diagramming, drawing, and other notational systems. This course is directly linked to the development of studio projects outlined in FAPR 215 Subjects/Formats.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: FAPR 215

Open to Fine Arts, Media Arts and Crafts majors in the College of Art and Design. Priority enrollment for Multidisciplinary Fine Arts Majors.

FAMD 301 - Contemporary Issues

This seminar addresses select theories and critical ideas multidiscipline artists should know. Issues include traditional investigations of aesthetics, the history of art movements like Modernism and Post-Modernism, as well as media and visual popular culture. Connections will be made between ideas, theories, and practices that show up in the work of relevant 20th century artists and in all media including: space/time media formats such as performance, collaborations, installation arts, sound and video, etc. Emphasis is on how philosophy, art history, art criticism, and cultural studies can be used by the artist to understand the contemporary climate, not only in the art work at large, but also in the personal world of the individual artist. The goal is the illumination of connections between artists and the ideas and artistic approaches of the modern era with emphasis on the last few decades.

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority to Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 141 - Collaboration and Spontaneity

Through a series of exercises, class discussions, and readings, students explore what it means to work as part of a team. Students learn to develop environments in which the creative process is encouraged to unfold. The basic assumptions that affect the formation of collaborative groups, such as personal responsibility, authority relations, leadership issues, individual differences, competition, the development of norms, and the generation and uses of power, are experienced, explicated, and examined. Students work within this collaborative environment to explore the connections between spontaneous verbal and nonverbal communication. Formerly MM 150

FACR 401 - Senior Fine Arts Seminar

The artist's role in historic and contemporary contexts. Issues surrounding the various purposes of art and how culture deals with artists are explored through discussion with visiting artists, alumni, and faculty. Students work toward the acquisition of a professional profile in resume, artist statement, and slide preparation. Discussion of gallery practices and portfolio presentations cultivate an awareness of professionalism and career opportunities in the fields of painting, printmaking, and sculpture. Formerly FA 460

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FAPR 301, FAPT 302 or FASC 302

Open to Fine Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAMD 401 - Thesis

An open studio oriented toward helping the development of individual initiative where concentration in multidisciplinary studies can be developed to fruition on an advanced level. This course utilizes the previous instruction and investigation in multidisciplinary studies. Topical discussions encourage students to find relevancy and validity in an analysis of historical precedents and contemporary culture. An emphasis is placed on the development of ideas and content in the individual student's work, which is supported by a series of individual and group critiques by faculty and visiting artists. This course offers the student the opportunity to develop a body of work in preparation for portfolio and exhibition presentation. The student is expected to participate in group exhibition as well as a solo exhibition and to present a professional portfolio of work.

FASC 401 - Sculpture III

Terms like site-specific, monumental, genre, narrative, emblematic, environmental, etc., reflect the cluster of types of sculptural imagery. This studio-criticism course is concerned with the ideational and technical issues raised by various types of sculptural imagery that are assigned in turn. The relationship that sculptures have with the context they exist in and the purpose they serve is stressed. Formerly SC 401

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FASC 302

Open to Sculpture majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Discipline Emphasis: Fine Arts PrintmakingFAPR 201 - Relief/Monotype

Introduction to the graphic and expressive qualities of woodcut, linoleum, and collograph processes printed in monochrome and color. Monoprinting with direct drawing and painting on Plexiglass and metal plate are also explored. Formerly PR 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors. Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 204 - Screenprint/Etching

The graphic qualities of expression in screenprinting and etching/intaglio are presented through historic and contemporary examples and demonstration of the methods, which convey ideas in these two media. Various stencil processes from direct-drawn to photographic and computer-generated are explored in screenprinting with water-based opaque and transparent inks. Handwork on the metal plate includes drawn drypoint, etching, and tonal processes. Emphasis is placed on the understanding of the qualities of these methods and the development of personal ideas. FAPR 304 - Book Arts: Concept and Structure

An opportunity to explore the integration of type and relief image in unique and editioned book structures. Hands-on experience in dealing with composition (metal) type and computer typesetting is on an intermediate level. Relief printing, photopolymer plates, color reduction printing, and related traditional and contemporary methods of multiple image making are pursued. Special emphasis on development of a personal visual language. Formerly PR 307

Prerequisites & Notes

Students must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits). Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors and minors; and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 305 - Lithography

All of the basic techniques of drawing, imagemaking and printing skills that are necessary to produce hand-pulled lithographs from stones and plates are taught. An emphasis is placed on visual expression and development of ideas through group discussions and critiques. Formerly PR 300

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FAPR 201 and FAPR 204

Priority enrollment to Printmaking and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 401 - Advanced Workshop

Students continue to develop their ideas, images, and technique while establishing their direction and personal original expression. The workshop atmosphere permits a comfortable handling of all procedures and printmaking processes. Students are encouraged to be involved with adjacent expressive means such as drawing, painting, sculpture, photography, and crafts in combination with printmaking. Formerly PR 400

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FAPR 305

Open to Printmaking and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Discipline Emphasis: Media Arts Photography

MAPH 201 - Introduction to Photography I

Introduction to basic concepts, processes, and techniques of black-and-white photography, including camera operation, exposure, darkroom procedures, lighting, and their controlled applications of these techniques. Emphasis is upon the normative standard of photographic rendering. Formerly PF 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite for all upper-level photography courses. Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts, Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 202 - Introduction to Photography II

While consolidating the student's control of the medium, this course introduces the student to a departure from normative photographic rendering, techniques, and modes of expression and form. Strong emphasis on manipulation of materials, including traditional photographic methods as well as an introduction to computer manipulation. Formerly PF 211B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 282, MAPH 201 or MAPH 221

Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts and Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 301 - Junior Photography Workshop

Exploration of photographic imagery through a series of problems aimed at personal vision and creative growth. Formerly PF 311A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202

Open to Photo and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors; Photo and Photo Studio minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 311 - Digital Photography Workshop

Concentrates on the production of creative digital photography; students are encouraged to experiment with new tools and techniques. Film and print scanners, CD-ROM discs, and digital cameras are used to produce images that are critiqued on the basis of both technical proficiency and aesthetic accomplishment. Portfolios are printed on digital output machines and four-color offset. Frequent readings, lectures, and site visits expand the ongoing studio experience. Formerly PF 315

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202

MAPH 282 - Photography for Illustrators

This course introduces Illustration majors to the fundamental techniques used in black-and-white photography, including camera operation, developing, and printing, as well as photographic digital imaging. Emphasis is placed on film selection and lighting for both the studio and environmental shooting. The fundamentals of Photoshop are employed for digital image manipulation. Lectures and projects are designed to provide the tools necessary for illustrators who wish to use photography in their work. Formerly PF 209

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Photography majors. Priority enrollment to Illustration and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Photo minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Discipline Emphasis: Media Arts Film

MAFL 201 - Introduction to Film I

A hands-on introduction to the principles and techniques of media production: shooting 16mm film and digital video, developing a sensitivity to the nuances of movement, understanding lighting and exposure, composition, and the logic of editing. We also survey the historical and aesthetic development of the medium in order to expand the students' sense of the possibilities of the medium. Formerly PF 210A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 202 - Introduction to Film/Digital Video

This course offers an introduction to the basic practices of digital video editing and further creative exploration of the art of moving images. Students perform timing, staging, and blocking exercises to develop a feel for direction, experiment with more advanced film strategies, learn to edit digital video, and investigate relationships between sound and image. A final project integrates these explorations creatively. Formerly PF 210B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 301 - Junior Cinema Production I

First part of a year-long film and digital video production class emphasizing independent filmmaking techniques and concepts. Students explore cinematic ideas through structured and personal filmmaking assignments that emphasize keen visual thinking, story development, and an understanding of film form and film language. Students are taught professional lighting, 16mm sync sound camera technologies, editing and soundtrack strategies, and laboratory procedures. Students also view and analyze significant films. Formerly PF 310A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 331 - Experimental Video

An intermediate-level course in digital audio and video production. In the context of screenings and readings drawn from the history of experimental media, students learn to use various digital and optical strategies to approach a variety of thematic issues. This course is a venue for the production of short, aesthetically energized works for a variety of screening environments, and encourages collaboration with Dance and Music majors. Formerly PF 322

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following three:

MACR 443 - Time: A Multidisciplinary Seminar

The concept of Time considered from a multidisciplinary perspective, drawing on readings in philosophy, literature, psychology, sociology, and film theory. Relevant works in film and video are screened. Students are responsible for a final term paper that interrelates two or more of the readings with one of the screened works. Formerly PF 424

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 302 or MAAN 302

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 311 - Sync-Sound for Narrative Film

Students in this course explore creative sound design in finished films with instruction and practice in the use of sound recording equipment, sound transfers, building and editing multiple synchronous sound tracks, and preparing for the sound mix. Students work in groups to create and complete a five-minute sync sound film that incorporates the concept of "sound design." Formerly PF 320

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 320 - Film Forum: Selected Topics

Concentrated study of a particular area of film, video, or animation. Courses deal with specific issues and have included: film theory; seminars in sound and installation; studies in Japanese media; the history of video art; and the history of animation. Formerly PF 324

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202 or MAAN 202

Open to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Discipline Emphasis: Media Arts Animation

MAAN 201 - Introduction to Animation I

Through a series of drawn exercises concentrating on timing, movement, and weight, the student acquires an understanding of fundamental animation principles. Formerly PF 212A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111, FNDP 121 or MMDI 101

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 202 - Introduction to Animation II

Students are introduced to under-the-camera animation using varied mediums such as puppets, cut-outs, and painting-on-glass. Special attention is given to non-narrative approaches to animation. A final project is created using one or more of the techniques explored during the semester. Formerly PF 212B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 201 or MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 301 - Junior Animation Workshop I

The first half of this course is devoted to the creation of a short, client-based project. The second half involves an interdisciplinary group project aimed at refining students' knowledge of animation movement design. Formerly PF

312A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 202

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 302 - Junior Animation Workshop II

This course focuses on the creation of a personal, 1.5 minute animated piece, starting from initial conception and ending with final output to digital of film media. Stages in the production cycle include storyboarding, animatics, animation, inking and painting, sound image editing, and final output. Formerly PF 312B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 301

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following two:

MAAN 232 - 2-D Computer Animation

Using both raster- and vector-based programs, students explore how to build 2D animation sequences in the computer and how to translate hand-drawn animation into digitally composited animated pieces. Traditional animation principles are expanded upon and reinforced using 2D computer graphics and editing programs. Digital imagery and sound are integrated in class assignments designed to explore a wide variety of 2D styles. Formerly PF 316

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 231 or MMDI 102

Priority enrollment to Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 331 - 3-D Computer Animation

Using industry-standard 3D computer software, students learn basic modeling, texturing, lighting, movement, and rendering techniques. This course prepares students for further 3D computer coursework and allow them to utilize 3D software in the development and creation of their Junior and Senior thesis work. Formerly PF 326

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 231 or MMDI 102

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Discipline Emphasis: Crafts Ceramics

CRCM 211 - Introduction to Throwing

Beginning studio work using the throwing process and related glazing and firing techniques. Problems are given with an emphasis on developing each student's potential for personal expression and artistic invention. Formerly CR 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs
(take twice)

CRCM 213 - Introduction to Handbuilding

Beginning studio work with clay using the handbuilding processes of slab, coil pinch, and pressing form molds, plus related glazing and firing techniques. Problems given emphasize developing each student's potential for personal expression and artistic invention. Formerly CR 212A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit..

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs
(take twice)

CRCM 221 - Introduction to Molding & Casting

A course in modelmaking, moldmaking, and casting techniques using plaster and synthetic compounds. Emphasis is on developing proficiency in slip casting for use in the artist's studio and in industry for serial production. Formerly CR 251

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Discipline Emphasis: Crafts Fibers

CRFB 211 - Introduction to Fibers: Mixed Media

An introduction to both traditional and experimental uses of materials and structural processes in the fabric media. Assignments focus on the exploration of two- and three-dimensional forms in preparation for versatile approaches to the fibers media. A range of off-loom mixed media techniques are covered. Formerly CR 221A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFB 212 - Introduction to Color and the Loom

Students explore the potential of two- and three-dimensional forms in preparation for versatile approaches to the fibers media. Loom, woven structures, tapestry, and woven color are covered. Formerly CR 221B

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFB 221 - Fabric Resist & Embellishment

Extends students' basic color and drawing vocabulary through exposure to ancient techniques and tools of Indonesia, Japan, and Africa. Fabric dyeing and resist methods are addressed, including drawing and stamping with waxes, stitching and binding with threads, etc. Students acquire a broader sense of "mark-making," an understanding of the special color properties of dyes, and an ability to use non-Western traditional craft methods to create contemporary art fabric. Formerly CR 277

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFB 222 - Introduction to Constructed Surface

Through a series of developmental assignments, students are provided with a solid technical and conceptual base in the fabric media. Non-loom constructions, color, and multifiber dye techniques are covered. Formerly CR 222

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFB 223 - Fabric Printing

Focuses on the fundamental principles of translating drawings and photographs into designs and images for screen-printed fabric, using a fine art approach. Exploration of myriad possibilities in creating fabric using silkscreen and fabric pigments. Formerly CR 278

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

CRFB 227 - Experimental Costume and Performance

The garment provides a tangible yet pliable boundary between the space of self and the space of the world. In this introductory fibers studio, students learn costume construction fundamentals (hand and machine sewing, millinery, flat pattern design, etc.) and explore the garment as a vehicle for personal expression. Students are encouraged to experiment with technique, and a variety of both traditional and unconventional materials are used. Concurrent with studio work, students are introduced to the cultural, political, social, historic, and aesthetic dimensions of costume as it relates to contemporary art. The semester concludes with a collaborative performance. Formerly CR 229

Prerequisites & Notes

May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Discipline Emphasis: Crafts Wood

CRWD 211 - Introduction to Woodworking

Introduction to basic woodworking skills and processes, including sharpening and setting up hand tools and machinery, theory of solid wood joinery, and construction. In addition to building technical skills, emphasis is on contemporary and historical furniture design issues. Formerly CR 261A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 221 - Introduction to Furniture

This course presents a series of design problems emphasizing exploration of ideas through drawing and model making. Historic and contemporary examples are studied. Fundamental joinery techniques are covered, but the emphasis is on design exploration, imagination, and inventiveness. Students provide their own materials and some hand tools. Formerly CR 285

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 223 - Wood Carving

An introductory course focused on the development of technical skills. A survey of historical and contemporary precedents exposes the student to the potential wood carving has as a vehicle for artistic expression. The class covers the selection, use, and sharpening of tools, materials and choice of woods, lamination and joinery used for carving, finishing techniques, and letter carving. Students provide their own carving tools. Formerly CR 286

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

CRWD 224 - Low-Tech Furniture

Using materials gathered from both nature and the urban environment, students make chairs, tables and other functional objects. Inspired by the design inherent in natural materials, branches and twigs, artifacts, and found objects, the class conceives and executes a series of projects. Basic, non-technical construction methods and simple hand tools are stressed. Formerly CR 287

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 311 - Advanced Wood

Covers tools, joinery, methods, and materials. Content progresses with increasing complexity, involving machining, hand tools, finishing, and surface treatments. Senior Crafts majors taking this course may choose to spend all or part of their time producing thesis work to supplement the thesis component of Crafts Projects III. Formerly CR 386

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: 6 credits from courses: CRWD 211, CRWD 212

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Or take one of the Wood courses above a second time.

Discipline Emphasis: Crafts Metals

CRMT 211 - Introduction to Jewelry

An exploration of notions of jewelry and body adornment as a means of personal expression. Projects range from precious jewelry making to adornment that extends into performance. Basic goldsmithing skills are taught as essential, while three-dimensional sketching and experimentation in mixed media are encouraged. Successful integration of design, material, and process is the goal. Projects provide students with broad exposure to the many possibilities inherent in jewelry and ornament as related to the human form. Formerly CR 241A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 221 - Introduction to Metalsmithing

Metal is an extremely versatile material; though hard and durable, it is quite malleable and easily worked. This course covers direct working of metal. Sheet, wire, bar, and rod are given form by hammering, seaming, and bending, etc. The majority of work is done in bronze, brass and copper, though steel, stainless steel, aluminum, and precious metals may be used as well. Contemporary issues addressed include the object as sculpture, process as a source material, the importance of surface and detail, and functional objects made by artists. Formerly CR 242

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 226 - Introduction to Metal Casting

Wax working for jewelry and small-scale sculpture, rubber molding processes, and lost wax/centrifugal casting of bronze and (optional) sterling silver and karat golds. Extensive technical information for students who are design-oriented. Assignments allow projects in all formats (design, one-of-a-kind jewelry, fine art, etc.) and students are encouraged to use techniques innovatively and expressively. Students taking the course a second time choose one aspect of the course (wax carving, wax modeling, wax impressions, vulcanized rubber molding, etc.) and produce a small body of work investigating that aspect in depth. Procedures for sending out work to professional contract casters are also covered. Formerly CR 280

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select two of the following courses (not offered every semester):

CRMT 225 - Enameling

Enameling is the art of firing colored glass onto metal. The transparent, opaque, and opalescent enamel colors are layered to produce richness, detail, depth, and brilliance in this durable and painterly medium. Traditional techniques such as cloisonné, grisaille, Limoges, basse taille, plique-à-jour, and champlevé, as well as contemporary and experimental processes are explored. Once they have gained a facility with the medium, students produce jewelry or small jewel-like paintings. Formerly CR 249

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 227 - Introduction to Electroforming

Electroforming is the process of electrically depositing (plating) metal onto a non-metallic surface or object. Metal may be built up on non-porous materials such as wax, plastic, Styrofoam, glass, stone, etc. Wax or foam may be removed from electroformed objects to leave a strong, lightweight, self-supporting metal shell. Students work in electroformed copper; assignments are structured to allow students to work in accustomed formats and/or combine electroforming with other materials or processes. Formerly CR 281

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 228 - Metal Furniture

This course questions our cultural assumptions about furniture. Are common furniture forms dictated by functional requirements or arbitrary choices that have become traditional? Metal (steel, aluminum, bronze) is used for its strength and versatility; other materials are combined with metal according to student ideas and interests. Techniques include bending/forming of rod, tube and plate, oxyacetylene welding, brazing, mechanical fasteners/tap and die, riveting, and light blacksmithing. Typical student projects include small tables, lamps, chairs, outdoor/public furnishings, and experimental forms. Formerly CR 282

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 229 - Small Scale Steelworking

This course covers light blacksmithing, thin-sheet welding, and other techniques suitable for working steel at tabletop size. Aluminum and other metals may also be used where appropriate. The focus is on the possibilities of metal for the contemporary craftsman. Contemporary issues include the functional object, the decorative impulse, process as a source of inspiration, and the importance of surface detail. Formerly CR 283

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Discipline Emphasis: Crafts Glass

CRGL 211 - Introduction to Glass Blowing

Through demonstrations, assignments, and tutoring by the instructor, students are guided toward mastery in off-hand blowing. Blowing of well-balanced functional and non-functional forms is emphasized. Topics covered include the use of color in glass, two- and three-dimensional surface treatment, the relationship between volume and skin of forms, blowing into molds, and working in a variety of scales. The aesthetics of contemporary and historical glass are investigated as they relate to the student's work. Formerly CR 231A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs
(take twice)

CRGL 221 - Stained Glass

Students work with transparent and opaque glass sheet to produce both two- and three-dimensional artwork. Techniques include glass cutting and grinding, use of coming and copper foil, soldering, enameling, sandblasting and carving, and kiln-firing. Typical projects include stained glass windows or panels, containers, and shallow bowls. Formerly CR 232

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRGL 311 - Advanced Glass

Glass is considered as an expressive medium, and development toward a personal style is encouraged. Students work with hot glass in advanced offhand work, blowing into molds, casting, and enameling, as well as advanced stained glass work and incorporation of blown and cast pieces into two- and three-dimensional structures. Formerly CR 331

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: 6 credits from courses: CRGL 211, CRGL 212, CRGL 221

Priority to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken four times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs
(take twice)

Multidisciplinary Menu Courses

Multidisciplinary Menu Courses are all of the 200 level course listed in the Discipline Emphasis area above.

Museum Communication - Master of Arts

Program Total Credits: 45

Full-time Museum Communication students undertake a three-semester course of study and a six-week (120 hours) internship. Organized within the traditional academic semester framework, students participate in lectures, seminars, workshops, and study visits to museums, historic sites, galleries, and government cultural agencies. Courses welcome visiting scholars and museum professionals to give lectures and hold discussions groups on aspects of museum practice. The Department of Electronic Media and the College of Media and Communication contribute to graduate students' education through interdepartmental coursework, workshops, seminars, and interdisciplinary special projects. Students conclude their degree program through the submission of a written thesis and thesis defense.

GREM 601 - Electronic Media/Production I

Addresses the development of foundation computer skills in image scanning technology, desktop publishing, digital photographic technologies, and basic output procedures. Technical expertise and efficient working methodologies are applied to problems brought into the class from other design courses as well as from both individual and group-assigned projects. All software is standard to current graphic design industry practices. Meets with EMDI 201. In order to receive graduate credit, graduate students are expected to exceed undergraduate course expectations by applying the skills and competencies outlined in the syllabus to graduate-level concepts that typically relate to their major program of study. In this regard, graduate students taking this graduate elective are required to meet with the instructor prior to the start of class to determine and outline the nature of the requirements to be met. Formerly EM 601

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 600 - Museology

Introduction to the social and cultural theory underlying museum practice. The museum is studied as a dynamic institution. Its structure and functions are examined in the context of political, economic, and social change. A seminar/lecture course, students study the writings of the founders of modern museum theory focusing on the development of museums and their service to the public, learning as a central focus of contemporary museums, and the shift from private to public support and responsibility for museums. Formerly MS 600

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs. Priority enrollment to Museum Studies.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 601 - Museum Seminar: The Museum Society

Lecture/seminar course exploring the history, organization, and operation of the museum as a cultural/educational institution, an economic entity, and a management enterprise. Visiting lecturers bring a wide range of knowledge and practices from their respective institutions and consultancies to provide the student with insight into the differences between museums of different types, sizes, and missions. The course provides students with an overall understanding of the museum as an institution and an introduction to the many roles played by museum professionals. Offered in the evening. Formerly MS 501

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 603 - The Museum Audience

Lecture into practice course focusing on the visitor experience through museum communications and learning. Designed to identify the characteristics of the museum visitor, the ways in which visitors experience museum exhibitions, cognitive and affective behavior, the relationship of museum exhibitions and educational programming, and the impact of institutions and visitor studies on the planning and design of institutions, museum exhibitions, and environments. Formerly MS 508

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 614 - Museum Graphics

Writing, design, and production of museum graphic components. Graphic Design is defined as any visual information communicated through word and image. Formerly MS 620A

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GREM 601

Open to Museum Studies majors only. Computer literacy required.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 780 - Thesis Research

Examines the principle approaches to research. The nature of appropriate research methods for selected thesis topics; the approaches and benefits of various methodologies; and the steps in research design. Students identify a research problem, design a study, collect and analyze data, compile, interpret and report results. Formerly MS 740

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15.0

- Elective Credits: 3 cr

GRAD 651 - University Seminar: Art and Society

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from all graduate programs examine theoretical issues relating to the place of art and design in society. Topics include the social role of the artist/designer, public policy and the arts, issues of post-modernism, and aesthetic and ethical implications of emerging arts communication technologies. (May be taken to satisfy Sociology/Anthropology corequisite for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 692

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 692 - Graduate Museum Project: Museum Communication

A culminating research project concerning museum studies, management, and exhibition. The project is completed in one semester and includes the study of research in the field. A team project with the Museum Exhibition Planning and Design, and Museum Education programs, and an individual project related to the student's main area of interest within the museum communication profession.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 702 - Issues in Museums Seminar

Presents and discusses current political and social issues, which may unexpectedly, sometimes problematically, affect museum practice, particularly in the public areas of exhibition, programming, and publications. Recent examples would include controversial exhibits, legal, gender, race, cultural, and religious issues impacting museums; and the public right to participate in the museum experience as an active contributor. Museum scholars, specialists, and university faculty offer in-depth examination of current topics. Students complete projects designed to develop professional ability to deal with emerging debates in the museum profession and the knowledge of the impact of politics and the mass culture on museum policies and practices. Formerly MS 601

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 601 or MSEM 600

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 783 - Thesis Development: Communication

Independent research and design in an area supporting the student's career objectives and interests.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MSEM 780 Open to Museum Communication majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Year Two Credits: 15.0

MSEM 796 - Museum Internship: Museum Communication

A supervised practicum in a cooperating museum, gallery, or communication firm. The internship represents full-time employment equivalency under the mentorship of a professional. Provides practical on-site experience, in which the intern is integrated into the professional staff, assuming professional-level responsibilities and experience.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Fall Credits: 12.0

- Elective Credits: 3 cr

GRAD 650 - University Seminar: Structure and Metaphor

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from the several graduate programs examine theoretical issues of structure and metaphor in relation to art and design. Topics include cognition and perception, meaning and representation, and systems of organization and expression. (May be taken to satisfy Aesthetics and Art Criticism co-requisites for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 691

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 641 - Museum Governance: Legal Issues, Ethics, and Museums

Legal status of the museum and its obligations to the public, governance, staffing, and policy-making as a nonprofit organization. Establishing collections policies, laws, regulations, conventions, and codes that affect acquisitions, deaccessions, loans, and collections care. The case study method is used to examine the issues, the law, and the decisions that affect today's museums. State, federal, and international legislation, common law, and the applications of administrative law in museums are examined. Examines the complex relations of museums and museum professionals with trustees, collectors, donors, dealers, outside interest groups, and artists. Formerly MS 602

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 601 or MSEM 600

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 784 - Thesis: Communication

Independent research and design in an area supporting the student's career objectives and interests.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 783

Open to Museum Communication majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Note:

Three credit hours of electives may be outside Museum Communication.

Museum Education - Master of Arts

Program Total Credits: 45

The Master of Arts in Museum Education is a concentrated program focused on the development and implementation of appropriate pedagogical practices and critical/interpretive skills for communicating to the public about culture and the arts. Coursework comprises three distinct areas: a broad education core addressing theory and methods, concentration in museum studies and practices, and a professional core including research and an internship with a cooperating museum.

Year One Credits: 30Fall Credits: 15*AEDU 501 - Creative and Cognitive Development

This course is designed to develop skills in recognizing the developmental stages of children, adolescents, and adults according to the theories of Jean Piaget, Lawrence Kohlberg, Viktor Lowenfeld, and Erick Erickson. In addition, the course explores the learning theories of Jerome Bruner, B.F. Skinner, Howard Gardner, Madeline Hunter, and Bernice McCarthy toward understanding individual differences in creative and cognitive development and learning styles. Formerly AE 550

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GREM 601

Open to Museum Studies majors only. Computer literacy required.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 630 - Museum Education Practicum

This course is designed to develop the practiced insight and skills needed as a professional in a museum environment working with all age groups. It provides opportunities for preliminary observations and experience with professional museum educators and directors led by a professor who conducts the seminar in conjunction with the museum visits and guest speakers. Through this process students develop dynamic teaching techniques that explore and interpret information, concepts, and cultural values that a museum collection communicates. Hands-on techniques and experiences with curriculum development and methodology help students prepare for their research and internship. Formerly MS 510

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Museum Education majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

MSEM 621 - Media for Museum Communication

Computer literacy, familiarity with Macintosh operating system required. A laboratory/workshop course on utilization of appropriate technological media, with emphasis on the creation of visitor interaction. Formerly MS 622

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 614 or GREM 610

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 631 - Educational Programming for Museums

Prepares museum educators for the development of educational programs and plans for diverse types of museums and alternative learning sites. Exposes students to current issues and trends in museum education such as interdisciplinary and integrated learning, and issues of diversity. Methods of interpreting works of art, artifacts, and collections are studied. Extensive, "theory into practice" component provides students with the opportunity to apply theory to actual permanent collection and temporary exhibition projects at area museums. Formerly MS 615

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MSEM 603, MSEM 630

Priority enrollment to Museum Education majors. Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 690 - Graduate Museum Project

A culminating research project concerning museum studies, management, and education. The project is completed in one semester and includes the study of research in the field, a team project with the Museum Exhibition Planning and Design, and Museum Communication programs, and an individual project related to the student's main area of interest within the museum education profession. This course provides preparatory research for the culminating museum internship. Formerly MS 648

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Education majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 695 - Museum Internship: Museum Education

Taken in a cooperating museum, the internship represents full-time employment equivalency under the mentorship of a professional museum educator. It is intended to provide practical on-site experience in which the intern is integrated into the museum staff, assuming professional-level responsibilities and experience. A University professor also observes, advises, and assesses the student during the internship. Formerly MS 658

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Education majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 - 6 cr

or an elective from the list of possible electives below.

MSEM 780 - Thesis Research

Examines the principle approaches to research. The nature of appropriate research methods for selected thesis topics; the approaches and benefits of various methodologies; and the steps in research design. Students identify a research problem, design a study, collect and analyze data, compile, interpret and report results. Formerly MS 740

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Summer

Note: Students may elect to take one of their internships during the summer at no additional charge.

MSEM 695 - Museum Internship: Museum Education

Taken in a cooperating museum, the internship represents full-time employment equivalency under the mentorship of a professional museum educator. It is intended to provide practical on-site experience in which the intern is integrated into the museum staff, assuming professional-level responsibilities and experience. A University professor also observes, advises, and assesses the student during the internship. Formerly MS 658

Possible Electives

AEDU 531 - Multicultural Learning-Arts

The artistic expressions of Africa, Asia, the Americas, the Near and Middle East, and related societies are examined for their aesthetic and contextual meanings. Cross-cultural contributions to world art history are recognized through the study of characteristic styles and techniques, dynastic periods of art and artists, as well as the relationship of art to varied systems of belief. Formerly AE 531

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 602 - History of Ideas in Art and Museum Education

Seminar on major issues and trends in the history of art and museum education, with an emphasis on child-centered and content-centered theories and the theoretical antecedents of Discipline-Based Art Education, the Visual Culture movement, and standards-based education. Formerly AE 602

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Art Education and Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 621 - Educational Media A: Teaching and Learning Online

This online course provides students with the knowledge, skills, and strategies to successfully integrate educational media into the teaching and learning of K-12 art. Areas of study include theoretical and conceptual basis for educational technology, instructional practices and strategies, approaches to integrating technology into the curriculum, training and development of technology skills, such as computer graphics, Web page design, and electronic presentations; and issues and problems related to technology use in education. Formerly AE 507

Prerequisites & Notes

Computer literacy required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 601 - Museum Seminar: The Museum Society

Lecture/seminar course exploring the history, organization, and operation of the museum as a cultural/educational institution, an economic entity, and a management enterprise. Visiting lecturers bring a wide range of knowledge and practices from their respective institutions and consultancies to provide the student with insight into the differences between museums of different types, sizes, and missions. The course provides students with an overall understanding of the museum as an institution and an introduction to the many roles played by museum professionals. Offered in the evening. Formerly MS 501

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 602 - Museum Seminar: The Exhibition and Educational Programming

Lecture/seminar course exploring the philosophy and history of museum exhibitions and the development of the museum exhibition discipline. Visiting lecturers bring a wide range of knowledge and practices from their respective professional disciplines and provide insight into museum exhibition practice. Provides students with an overall understanding of the role exhibitions can and do play in public institutions. Offered in the evening. Formerly MS 502

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 641 - Museum Governance: Legal Issues, Ethics, and Museums

Legal status of the museum and its obligations to the public, governance, staffing, and policy-making as a nonprofit organization. Establishing collections policies, laws, regulations, conventions, and codes that affect acquisitions, deaccessions, loans, and collections care. The case study method is used to examine the issues, the law, and the decisions that affect today's museums. State, federal, and international legislation, common law, and the applications of administrative law in museums are examined. Examines the complex relations of museums and museum professionals with trustees, collectors, donors, dealers, outside interest groups, and artists. Formerly MS 602

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 601 or MSEM 600

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 642 - Development, Fundraising, and Grantsmanship

An introduction to the development process as it relates to fundraising and, more specifically, grants writing. This course addresses the changing nature of funding for museums today, and sources of funds. In a lecture/workshop setting, students learn current techniques for formulating institutional funding requests under the guidance of an instructor and visiting experts in the museum field. Students acquire professional knowledge of museum practices in development and revenue generation; skills in developing a strategic fundraising plan and preliminary case statement plan, and carrying out its elements for specific institutions and for specific funding objectives. Formerly MS 650

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 644 - Video, Film and Technology for Museum Interpretation

Students become familiar with important historical, philosophical, and site-based interpretive uses for media in museum settings through a practicum that includes analysis of media (video, film, and technology) in transferring knowledge and information in the museum environment. Relates to the artistic, historical, and content techniques of a variety of moving image and multimedia approaches. Research, planning, supervision, outsourcing, and execution of media pieces for museum environments are explored. Computer literacy is expected. Formerly MS 619

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs. Computer literacy required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 646 - Publications, Public Relations, and Marketing

Organizational principles and practices as they relate to the processes of public relations and museum communication (primarily print media). Topics include public relations, interpretive and informational publications, advertising, identity, audience development, and marketing. Addresses the use and creation of publications, marketing plans, institution and exhibition-based public relations, the creation of effective identity programs, and audience development through membership and outreach programs. In a workshop setting, students learn to create effective publications and print media, and discuss Web-based communication. Students work under the guidance of a university professor and visiting experts in the museum field. Formerly MS 621

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 614

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 702 - Issues in Museums Seminar

Presents and discusses current political and social issues, which may unexpectedly, sometimes problematically, affect museum practice, particularly in the public areas of exhibition, programming, and publications. Recent examples would include controversial exhibits, legal, gender, race, cultural, and religious issues impacting museums; and the public right to participate in the museum experience as an active contributor. Museum scholars, specialists, and university faculty offer in-depth examination of current topics. Students complete projects designed to develop professional ability to deal with emerging debates in the museum profession and the knowledge of the impact of politics and the mass culture on museum policies and practices. Formerly MS 601

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 601 or MSEM 600

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

- Liberal Arts - A variety of courses taken for graduate credit.

Museum Exhibition Planning and Design - Master of Fine ArtsProgram Total Credits: 60

Representatives of cooperating museums and the University faculty offer a curriculum for Museum Exhibition Planning and Design that addresses the conceptualization, research, organization, design, and production of museum exhibits and educational presentations, utilizing a variety of techniques and media. It also explores exhibit programming, evaluation, and management methods applicable in a wide range of museum situations. Visiting experts teach many aspects of museum presentation, education, and management, and students make formal visits to design departments, production shops, galleries, exhibits, and programs in numerous museums, service providers, and consultancies in Philadelphia, the Mid-Atlantic Region, Washington, D.C., and New York. Students undertake a thesis project and a supervised museum internship related to their career interests during the second year of the program.

Year One Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

- Elective Credits: 3 cr

MSEM 601 - Museum Seminar: The Museum Society

Lecture/seminar course exploring the history, organization, and operation of the museum as a cultural/educational institution, an economic entity, and a management enterprise. Visiting lecturers bring a wide range of knowledge and practices from their respective institutions and consultancies to provide the student with insight into the differences between museums of different types, sizes, and missions. The course provides students with an overall understanding of the museum as an institution and an introduction to the many roles played by museum professionals. Offered in the evening. Formerly MS 501

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 610 - Museum Exhibition Design Studio

The primary vehicle for exploring and developing museum exhibition planning, design, project organization, and presentation skills/techniques. This studio focuses on the foundations of museum exhibition development and design: space planning, color, light, informal education, communication, content, interaction, and crafting experiences. Formerly MS 610A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

MSEM 614 - Museum Graphics

Writing, design, and production of museum graphic components. Graphic Design is defined as any visual information communicated through word and image. Formerly MS 620A

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GREM 601

Open to Museum Studies majors only. Computer literacy required.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 616 - Exhibition Materials and Methods

This course gives students an in-depth acquaintance with exhibit fabrication/construction processes, techniques, methods and materials, how to research and specify appropriate materials, and how to use those materials in the best way. Formerly MS 623A

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: MSEM 610

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

GRAD 651 - University Seminar: Art and Society

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from all graduate programs examine theoretical issues relating to the place of art and design in society. Topics include the social role of the artist/designer, public policy and the arts, issues of post-modernism, and aesthetic and ethical implications of emerging arts communication technologies. (May be taken to satisfy Sociology/Anthropology corequisite for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 692

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 602 - Museum Seminar: The Exhibition and Educational Programming

Lecture/seminar course exploring the philosophy and history of museum exhibitions and the development of the museum exhibition discipline. Visiting lecturers bring a wide range of knowledge and practices from their respective professional disciplines and provide insight into museum exhibition practice. Provides students with an overall understanding of the role exhibitions can and do play in public institutions. Offered in the evening. Formerly MS 502

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 611 - Museum Exhibition Design Studio

The primary vehicle for exploring and developing museum exhibition planning, design, project organization, and presentation skills/ techniques. This studio focuses on the foundations of museum exhibition development and design: space planning, color, light, informal education, communication, content, interaction, and crafting experiences, with the addition of project management, model making, and group dynamics. Formerly MS 610B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 610

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

MSEM 615 - Museum Lighting

A lecture/demonstration/workshop course dealing with the manipulation of light and color in the built environment, specifically museums. Formerly MS 620B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 616

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 617 - Exhibition Materials and Methods

Demonstration/studio course directed at the problems of exhibit production, organization of drawings and packages, clear communication to suppliers of materials and services, and the use of Mac-based CAD (computer aided design), specifically Vectorworks. Formerly MS 623B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 616

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

Year Two Credits: 30

Summer Credits: 3

MSEM 795 - Museum Internship

A supervised practicum in a cooperating museum, gallery, or design firm. The internship represents full-time employment equivalency under the mentorship of a professional. Provides practical on-site experience, in which the intern is integrated into the professional staff, assuming professional-level responsibilities and experience. Formerly MS 759

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 1.5 - 3 cr, 1.5 to 3 hrs

Students with at least six months of direct exhibition-related experience in a museum, equivalent institution, or a museum consultancy may substitute one three-hour elective for the internship requirement.

Fall Credits: 15

GRAD 650 - University Seminar: Structure and Metaphor

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from the several graduate programs examine theoretical issues of structure and metaphor in relation to art and design. Topics include cognition and perception, meaning and representation, and systems of organization and expression. (May be taken to satisfy Aesthetics and Art Criticism co-requisites for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 691

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 603 - The Museum Audience

Lecture into practice course focusing on the visitor experience through museum communications and learning. Designed to identify the characteristics of the museum visitor, the ways in which visitors experience museum exhibitions, cognitive and affective behavior, the relationship of museum exhibitions and educational programming, and the impact of institutions and visitor studies on the planning and design of institutions, museum exhibitions, and environments. Formerly MS 508

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 711 - Museum Exhibition Design Studio

The primary vehicle for exploring and developing museum exhibition planning, design, project organization, project management, and presentation skills/techniques. This course focuses on the exhibition in its tangible/ physical form, taking concept into reality. Documentation, construction documents, schedules, budgets, and specifications are the deliverables. Formerly MS 710

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MSEM 601, MSEM 611

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

MSEM 781 - Thesis Development: Museum Exhibition Planning and Design

Independent research and design in an area supporting the student's career objectives and interests. Formerly MS 749A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 611 or MSEM 780

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 12

- Elective Credits: 3 cr

GRAD 750 - University Seminar: Criticism

An interdisciplinary seminar in which advanced graduate students from various disciplines in the visual arts further examine the nature of image-making with particular attention to the theories and applications of criticism. Formerly GR 791

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate students in the College of Art and Design only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 621 - Media for Museum Communication

Computer literacy, familiarity with Macintosh operating system required. A laboratory/workshop course on utilization of appropriate technological media, with emphasis on the creation of visitor interaction. Formerly MS 622

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 614 or GREM 610

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 782 - Thesis Development: Museum Exhibition Planning and Design

Independent research and design in an area supporting the student's career objectives and interests. Formerly MS 749B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 781

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Narrative Video Minor - CAD

The minor in Narrative Video explores digital video as a medium for storytelling. It introduces students to various aspects of video production, including scriptwriting, storyboarding, editing, sound design, directing, and producing. Students develop their skills as they advance from scene exercises through a short film to a final year-long project. This minor is open to all UArts majors, except those in Film/ Digital Video. As this minor is co-hosted by the College of Media and Communications, CMAC students should refer to the CMAC section of this catalog for additional regulations regarding this minor.

CMMC 311 - Narrative Video Production Workshop

An opportunity to develop an understanding of and experience in producing narrative-based video projects. Students begin by reading essays and articles, screening scenes from films and television shows, and reviewing technical language and concepts. They learn to translate script ideas into production proposals, making clear how story ideas, characters, action, and point of view will be rendered in sound and image. Working both on their own projects and as team members, they plan production specifics and shoot/record and edit short narrative pieces in their medium and style of choice. Students present stages of production work, from planning to script to rushes to stages of edited material. Formerly CM 295

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: CMMC 101 or CMMC 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Narrative Video minors. Repeatable for credit

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 401 - Senior Cinema Production I

First part of a year-long course in which students produce their own thesis film or video. The students are also introduced to contemporary professional practices including resume writing, applying to film festivals, readings contracts, dealing with copyrights, and financing and distributing independent films. Formerly PF 410A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 311 or MAFL 302

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 402 - Senior Cinema Production II

Second part of a year-long course in which students produce their own film or video. The students are also introduced to contemporary professional practices including resume writing, applying to film festivals, readings contracts, dealing with copyrights, and financing and distributing independent films. Formerly PF 410B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 401

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 220 - Writing for Film

A writing class introducing students to the basic elements of screenwriting. These include three act structure, creating a character, act design, and scene structure. Students complete a short screenplay by the end of the semester. Formerly WM 219

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

Select one of the following:

CMMC 103 - Sound Communication

This introduction to the field of sound communication enables students to conceptualize the importance of sound in cultural life and prepares them in practical approaches to field recording and working with various types of sound. A survey of approaches to sound as a social communication through readings and a broad range of audio examples, including documentary, journalistic, theatrical, and experimental approaches. Training in digital and audio field and post-production equipment and complete practical field exercises and an intensive sound project. Formerly CM 120

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication and Film/Digital Video majors; and Narrative Video and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

MAFL 311 - Sync-Sound for Narrative Film

Students in this course explore creative sound design in finished films with instruction and practice in the use of sound recording equipment, sound transfers, building and editing multiple synchronous sound tracks, and preparing for the sound mix. Students work in groups to create and complete a five-minute sync sound film that incorporates the concept of "sound design." Formerly PF 320

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Painting/Drawing - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

Courses in the Painting/Drawing program evolve from the study of basic working methods and concepts to the refinements of personal vision and aesthetic judgment. In the final semester of the senior year, each student is required to complete a thesis project, which is presented in the combined form of a written paper and a solo exhibition. This project is open to the University community and is reviewed by a collegiate panel comprised of UArts professors from both the studio and liberal art disciplines.

Sophomore Year Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

FAPT 201 - Sophomore Painting

Studio work introduces the student to the domain of painting through projects that cover not only the basic elements of form, color, and technique, but also the fundamental conceptual challenges unique to painting. Students are exposed to the origins and purposes of painting and the range of possibilities offered by both traditional and contemporary approaches. Formerly PT 202A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FNDP 111, FNDP 121

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPT 211 - Drawing: Form and Space

An introduction to the issues of drawing, including perception, analysis, invention, and experimentation. A variety of thematic ideas, structural possibilities, and imaginative interpretations are explored. Students are exposed to a wide spectrum of precedents in the history of drawing and are encouraged to enlarge their working definitions of how form and space can be effectively expressed. Formerly FA 222

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 151, FNDP 161

Open to Fine Arts majors only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Choose one course from the following three:

Painting/Drawing Majors must take one sculpture course and one printmaking course. These will be counted as electives outside of the Painting/Drawing offerings.

FAPR 201 - Relief/Monotype

Introduction to the graphic and expressive qualities of woodcut, linoleum, and collograph processes printed in monochrome and color. Monoprinting with direct drawing and painting on Plexiglass and metal plate are also explored. Formerly PR 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors. Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 204 - Screenprint/Etching

The graphic qualities of expression in screenprinting and etching/intaglio are presented through historic and contemporary examples and demonstration of the methods, which convey ideas in these two media. Various stencil processes from direct-drawn to photographic and computer-generated are explored in screenprinting with water-based opaque and transparent inks. Handwork on the metal plate includes drawn drypoint, etching, and tonal processes. Emphasis is placed on the understanding of the qualities of these methods and the development of personal ideas. Formerly PR 204

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors. Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 201 - Sculpture I

Emphasizes the fundamental and formal aspects of sculpture. Projects are assigned to help the student experience and understand the unique expressive values of mass, space, plane, line, balance, rhythm, scale, movement, and time transformation. This course also serves to introduce the student to a variety of materials and techniques. Assigned projects, group critiques and slide lectures. Formerly SC 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

FACR 215 - Subjects/Formats

This is a required studio course that explores Subject/Format issues that cross over between the traditional fine arts disciplines. Students in the Painting/Drawing, Sculpture, Printmaking and Multidiscipline tracks will work from a common syllabus and develop artworks within the traditional framework of their studio base. Three projects will be assigned over the course of the semester. Each project assignment will be limited by a specified subject matter and a specified format. Each of the three project periods will conclude with a group critique. This course is sequentially linked to FACR 216 Research Practices. Course begins Spring 2009.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: Research Practices

Open to Fine Arts, Media Arts and Crafts majors within the College of Art and Design. Priority enrollment to Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FACR 216 - Research Practices

This course is designed to develop traditional and creative research strategies necessary for contemporary art practice. Students learn to find and use information that can both generate and enhance their ideas. This kind of "information Literacy" enriches the content factor in the form/content equation essential to artworks. Using numerous resources for collecting material, research will cover historical, cultural, social, and political contexts for art ideas. Various methods will be explored for recording, classifying and representing information, such as writing, mapping, diagramming, drawing, and other notational systems. This course is directly linked to the development of studio projects outlined in FAPR 215 Subjects/Formats.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: FAPR 215

Open to Fine Arts, Media Arts and Crafts majors in the College of Art and Design. Priority enrollment for Multidisciplinary Fine Arts Majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPT 202 - Sophomore Painting

A continuation of the practices and purposes of FAPT 201. Formerly PT 202B

Prerequisites & Notes

FAPT 301 - Junior Painting

A continuation of FAPT 301. Formerly PT 302A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FAPT 201, FAPT 202

Priority enrollment to Painting/Drawing and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts major.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPT 303 - Color Studies

Studio group projects and independent projects consider the purposes and effects of color organization, color perception, and color theory. Color is approached as emotive, symbolic, descriptive, and structural. Formerly PT 340

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FAPT 202

Priority enrollment to Painting majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPT 306 - Junior Seminar

A discussion format aimed at investigating and understanding the content of, the motivations for, and the influences on contemporary painting. Emphasis is on exploring the theories, questions, and issues that create the intellectual content for contemporary artists. Students are given reading assignments as preparation for the seminar dialogue. Selected texts include artists' documents, critical writings, and classic essays covering such areas as aesthetic principles, political and cultural realities, and psychological perspectives. Class sessions emphasize group discussions based on viewing slides, PowerPoint presentations and other appropriate visual material, reading assignments, and various written and oral forms of student presentations. Formerly PT 360

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FAPT 202 Open to Painting/Drawing majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPT 307 - Junior Drawing

This course will be a continuation of information and experiences encountered in FAPT 211: Drawing Form and Space and the introduction of more sophisticated concepts in pictorial art. Drawing will be considered as a preparatory form-making act in the painting process and as expression in its own right.

Prerequisites & Notes

FACR 401 - Senior Fine Arts Seminar

The artist's role in historic and contemporary contexts. Issues surrounding the various purposes of art and how culture deals with artists are explored through discussion with visiting artists, alumni, and faculty. Students work toward the acquisition of a professional profile in resume, artist statement, and slide preparation. Discussion of gallery practices and portfolio presentations cultivate an awareness of professionalism and career opportunities in the fields of painting, printmaking, and sculpture. Formerly FA 460

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FAPR 301, FAPT 302 or FASC 302

Open to Fine Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPT 401 - Senior Painting

Critical commentary centers on four areas of concern: 1. The character of the work – its formal properties, its physical properties, aspects of intelligibility. 2. Intention – the investigation of motives and choices. 3. Context – ways that a work relates to a larger body of work, both generic and stylistic. 4. Quality – approaches to questions of value. There are individual critiques each week and periodic group critiques, sometimes involving the participation of a visiting artist. Formerly PT 402A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FAPT 302

Open to Painting/Drawing majors only.

Credits: 3 or 4.5 cr; 6 or 9 hrs

FAPT 403 - Drawing References

Advanced drawing projects focus on the relation between a given work and its references and resources. Emphasis is on understanding the nature of references or resource material and the manner in which references or resources influence the outcome of a work. This studio/critique course aims at enhancing students' ability to connect their personal and subjective interests to the larger context of nature, history, and culture. Formerly FA 425

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

Photography - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

This major prepares students for a wide range of careers in photography by providing a solid grounding in traditional photography and digital imaging. In the sophomore year, students receive in-depth training in craft and ideas fundamental to photographic imaging. Technical exercises emphasize electronic imaging as well as traditional black-and-white and color processes. The curriculum covers both descriptive photography and more experimental manipulated image-making.

During the junior year, students consider photographic forms beyond the traditional print, such as the photographic book, non-silver processes, and installation work. Large-format photography and studio practice with its control of artificial lighting are also part of the junior curriculum. In both the junior and senior years, students may pursue the study of specialized interests on an elective basis, including illustration and editorial photography, photojournalism, environmental portraiture, creative portfolio development, advanced digital imaging, and professional practice.

The senior year is primarily devoted to the production of an independent body of work of the student's own choosing and direction. The senior thesis provides the opportunity to begin the process of self-definition as photographer and artist. A required junior-level course in photographic criticism, coupled with required classes in the history of photography, exemplifies the strong emphasis that the department places on critical thinking and self-expression in words as well as through photographs.

Fall Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 3 cr

MAFL 201 - Introduction to Film I

A hands-on introduction to the principles and techniques of media production: shooting 16mm film and digital video, developing a sensitivity to the nuances of movement, understanding lighting and exposure, composition, and the logic of editing. We also survey the historical and aesthetic development of the medium in order to expand the students' sense of the possibilities of the medium. Formerly PF 210A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Can be taken either in the fall or spring semester.

MAPH 201 - Introduction to Photography I

Introduction to basic concepts, processes, and techniques of black-and-white photography, including camera operation, exposure, darkroom procedures, lighting, and their controlled applications of these techniques. Emphasis is upon the normative standard of photographic rendering. Formerly PF 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite for all upper-level photography courses. Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts, Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LAAH 855 - History of Photography

An introduction to the significant photographers and their work in the history of the medium, including technical developments and their impact, the major visual and aesthetic trends in the development of photography and their relationship to art in general, and the larger social context in which photography has developed. Formerly HU 255

Prerequisites & Notes

Exploration of photographic imagery through a series of problems aimed at personal vision and creative growth. Formerly PF 311A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202

Open to Photo and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors; Photo and Photo Studio minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 303 - Basic Photography Studio I

Familiarizes the student with the tools, techniques, and language of studio photography. Entails extensive use of the 4" x 5" view camera. Deals with black-and-white materials, sheet film exposure, hand processing, printing large-format negatives, and digital capture and output. Formerly PF 313A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202 or GDES 331

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 311 - Digital Photography Workshop

Concentrates on the production of creative digital photography; students are encouraged to experiment with new tools and techniques. Film and print scanners, CD-ROM discs, and digital cameras are used to produce images that are critiqued on the basis of both technical proficiency and aesthetic accomplishment. Portfolios are printed on digital output machines and four-color offset. Frequent readings, lectures, and site visits expand the ongoing studio experience. Formerly PF 315

Electives must include nine studio credits taken outside the Photography offerings.

Photo Elective

May be selected from one of the following:

MACR 499 - Internship

Internship program in which the student, working closely with the Media Arts Department internship advisor, is placed in one of several professional situations. Placements include assisting in professional studios, practice in biomedical photography laboratories, and working for commercial and non-profit galleries, among others. Placements in film and animation are sponsored by local independent production houses and television stations, design firms, and free-lance artists; students of film may assist in location shooting, set production, editing, casting, scripting, and a myriad of other practical tasks. Formerly PF 499

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202, MAPH 202 or MAAN 202

Open to Media Arts majors only. May be taken twice for credit.

MAPH 312 - Advanced Digital Photo Workshop

The study of advanced photo imaging techniques. Through a series of problem-solving assignments, students are expected to develop strong digital shooting, scanning, color management, and printing skills as well as competency in advanced Photoshop techniques. A final portfolio of a series of creative images is a course requirement. Formerly PF 333

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 311

Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Photo and Studio Photo minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MAPH 320 - Selected Topics in Photography

Study of one or more various media, methods, or problems in still photography to be offered according to the instructor's interests and students' requests. Topics include: portraiture, documentary photography, digital imaging, color manipulation, photographic illustration, and photo-based mixed media. Formerly PF 323

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 201

Open to Photo majors; Photo and Studio Photo minors only. May be taken four times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MAPH 321 - Surface Altered Photographs

A concentration on the fundamental ideas and techniques for altering the surface of photographic prints, the emphasis is on one-of-a-kind prints, mixed media, and nontraditional materials. Techniques and materials covered include: traditional hand-coloring (oil paint, watercolor, acrylic, pastel, pencil, liquid dyes), toning and bleaching, graphic arts film, Polaroid transfer, photocopier transfer lifts, liquid emulsion, tin-types, and the preparation and painting of digital prints. Assignments, a research paper, slide lectures, and critiques center on creative possibilities, technical proficiency, and the development of increasingly more personalized visual and photographic statements. Formerly PF 334

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 322 - Photojournalism

This course covers basic photojournalism with a focus on the picture story. Choice of subject depends on the students' individual style of photography and their point of view. The class is built on an intensive shooting schedule emphasizing photographic composition, regular feedback, and the use of appropriate equipment. The class covers selecting story ideas, picture editing, writing captions and preparing text blocks to accompany photographs, and business aspects of the field such as how and where to sell or publish work. Formerly PF 335

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 323 - Fashion and Editorial Portrait Photography

This course explores the real world of fashion and editorial photography. Students learn to present both themselves and their work professionally. They visit professional studios and, on occasion, collaborate with art directors. They learn to interpret and execute assignments dealing with deadlines and other restrictions posed by commissions. Photographers, art directors, and studio assistants are invited into the class. Emphasis is placed on expanding and maintaining personal vision in a commercially oriented context. Formerly PF 336

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 301 or MAPH 303

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 460 - Professional Practices

Study of the practice of professional photography, with attention to various career opportunities, portfolio presentation, business practices, professional ethics, photographic law, intellectual property in the age of digital duplication and personal objectives. A variety of professional guests visit the course. Formerly PF 413

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 301 or MAPH 303

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Photography Minor

The Photography minor stresses a fine-art approach to photography. It provides the basics of black-and-white as well as color photography and digital imaging. The emphasis is placed on gaining experience in a wide range of pictorial photographic applications. Once a student has mastered basic photographic technique, materials and processes that are used to manipulate photographic imagery are explored. Creativity and personal expression are emphasized in all of these courses. Photography majors may not declare a Photography minor.

Requirements for the Minor

MAPH 202 - Introduction to Photography II

While consolidating the student's control of the medium, this course introduces the student to a departure from normative photographic rendering, techniques, and modes of expression and form. Strong emphasis on manipulation of materials, including traditional photographic methods as well as an introduction to computer manipulation. Formerly PF 211B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 282, MAPH 201 or MAPH 221

Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts and Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 211 - Color Concepts

Introduction to methods of color shooting and printing, leading to an exploration of the technical and creative possibilities of color in photography. Processes covered include negative and transparency films, filtration, chemical printing, and digital color controls with Photoshop. Formerly PF 217

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Photography majors; Photo and Photo Studio minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. Not open to Foundation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 301 - Junior Photography Workshop

Exploration of photographic imagery through a series of problems aimed at personal vision and creative growth. Formerly PF 311A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202

Open to Photo and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors; Photo and Photo Studio minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 311 - Digital Photography Workshop

Concentrates on the production of creative digital photography; students are encouraged to experiment with new tools and techniques. Film and print scanners, CD-ROM discs, and digital cameras are used to produce images that are critiqued on the basis of both technical proficiency and aesthetic accomplishment. Portfolios are printed on digital output machines and four-color offset. Frequent readings, lectures, and site visits expand the ongoing studio experience. Formerly PF 315

Select one of the following two:

MAPH 201 - Introduction to Photography I

Introduction to basic concepts, processes, and techniques of black-and-white photography, including camera operation, exposure, darkroom procedures, lighting, and their controlled applications of these techniques. Emphasis is upon the normative standard of photographic rendering. Formerly PF 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite for all upper-level photography courses. Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts, Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 282 - Photography for Illustrators

This course introduces Illustration majors to the fundamental techniques used in black-and-white photography, including camera operation, developing, and printing, as well as photographic digital imaging. Emphasis is placed on film selection and lighting for both the studio and environmental shooting. The fundamentals of Photoshop are employed for digital image manipulation. Lectures and projects are designed to provide the tools necessary for illustrators who wish to use photography in their work. Formerly PF 209

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Photography majors. Priority enrollment to Illustration and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Photo minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Post-Baccalaureate Certificate in Crafts

Crafts Studio Certificate Program

A Post-Baccalaureate Portfolio Development Program

The University's 30-credit certificate program offers an intensely focused education in crafts. The program is designed for those students with bachelor's degrees who wish to become proficient artists in one or more of the following areas: ceramics, fibers, jewelry, metalsmithing, or wood. Courses dealing with technique, philosophy, and contemporary issues are aimed to develop an individual's portfolio for further graduate study or a career as an independent studio artist or design professional.

The Crafts Studio Program offers the studio component of the University's undergraduate crafts program in a focused one-and-one-half or two-year period. Students accepted to the program take a minimum of six credits to a maximum of 12 credits per semester.

Certificate students must take a minimum of nine media-specific credits at the 300 level. The prerequisite for 300-level courses is two 200-level courses in that same medium. However, if an applicant's portfolio indicates enough experience in a particular medium, 200-level prerequisites may be waived at the time of acceptance. See the preceding section for a listing of media-specific courses.

Certificate students benefit from taking courses with degree candidates in a quality undergraduate program. In addition to technically oriented, media-specific courses, students take core courses involving design/theory issues, criticism, and professional/career practices.

Admission is by portfolio and interview. Students with little or no formal art training will be required to take Foundation courses. The program advisor (in consultation with the student) will set the number of required prerequisites. These credits must be taken in addition to the 30 required credits and can be completed in advance of or concurrently with the certificate program.

Professional Semester

AEDU 503 - The Art of Teaching

Teacher preparation and knowledge of instructional techniques will be addressed, including professional image, teachers' rights and responsibilities, and aspects of group process. The course explores cultural and family factors that influence learning expectations conveyed by teachers and peer behavior and techniques of instruction and creativity. A retrospective analysis of each student's individual education experience and perceptions of teaching is explored through interactive simulation of classroom situations and teaching styles. May be taken during either the summer or spring semester. Formerly AE 552

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: AEDU 541

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 561 - Student Teaching: Elementary

An intensive, elementary-level field experience built around a seven-week student teaching internship, under the guidance and supervision of a highly qualified art teacher/mentor. It is intended to provide practical experience in which the intern assumes professional-level responsibilities and experiences in teaching art at the elementary level. A University supervisor observes, advises, facilitates the relationship between the mentor and intern, and assesses the student during the internship. AEDU 561 is taken concurrently with AEDU 565. (If students elect to take AEDU 561 one semester and AEDU 562 another semester, AEDU 565 must be taken both semesters.) Formerly AE 660

AEDU 562 - Student Teaching: Secondary

An intensive, secondary-level field experience built around a seven-week student teaching internship, under the guidance and supervision of a highly qualified art teacher/mentor. It is intended to provide practical experience in which the intern assumes professional-level responsibilities and experiences in teaching art at the elementary level. A University supervisor observes, advises, facilitates the relationship between the mentor and intern, and assesses the student during the internship. AEDU 562 is taken concurrently with AEDU 565. (If students elect to take AEDU 562 one semester and AEDU 561 another semester, AEDU 565 must be taken both semesters.) Formerly AE 662

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 533, AEDU 541, AEDU 542, AEDU 560 Corequisite: AEDU 565

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 4 cr, hrs vary (7 weeks)

AEDU 565 - Student Teaching Seminar: Elementary/Secondary

Discussion and analysis of: field experiences; special workshops; Literacy: Reading and Writing Across the Curriculum: Professional Teaching Portfolios; One-Year Curriculums for an Elementary and a Secondary Grade. Continuing development and refinement of skills in reflective practice is emphasized as well as the needs of special learners. AEDU 565 is taken concurrently with AEDU 561 and AEDU 562. (If students elect to take AEDU 561 and AEDU 562 over two semesters, AEDU 565 Student Teaching Seminar must be taken both semesters.) Formerly AE 661

Printmaking/Book Arts - Bachelor of Fine ArtsProgram Total Credits: 123

The Printmaking major bases its instructional program on the development and realization of visual ideas through multiple image-making processes. The primary objectives are to develop conceptual abilities and technical proficiencies, leading the student to acquire personal imagery and professional competence in printmaking media.

Sophomore Year Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

FAPR 201 - Relief/Monotype

Introduction to the graphic and expressive qualities of woodcut, linoleum, and collograph processes printed in monochrome and color. Monoprinting with direct drawing and painting on Plexiglass and metal plate are also explored. Formerly PR 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors. Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 205 - Concepts/Works on Paper

Offers an opportunity for idea development, visual perception, and the organization of experience into compositions. Primary emphasis is on developing visual expression, skill in using various materials, and growth of critical evaluative abilities through group discussions and critiques. Contour drawing, collage, Xerox transfer and other experimental drawing and printing techniques are explored. Students are encouraged to combine media. Formerly FA 205

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Open to Fine Arts majors only. Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

Printmaking majors take one sculpture course and one painting course, during the sophomore year.

FAPT 201 - Sophomore Painting

Studio work introduces the student to the domain of painting through projects that cover not only the basic elements of form, color, and technique, but also the fundamental conceptual challenges unique to painting. Students are exposed to the origins and purposes of painting and the range of possibilities offered by both traditional and contemporary approaches. Formerly PT 202A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FNDP 111, FNDP 121

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 201 - Sculpture I

Emphasizes the fundamental and formal aspects of sculpture. Projects are assigned to help the student experience and understand the unique expressive values of mass, space, plane, line, balance, rhythm, scale, movement, and time transformation. This course also serves to introduce the student to a variety of materials and techniques. Assigned projects, group critiques and slide lectures. Formerly SC 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

FACR 215 - Subjects/Formats

This is a required studio course that explores Subject/Format issues that cross over between the traditional fine arts disciplines. Students in the Painting/Drawing, Sculpture, Printmaking and Multidiscipline tracks will work from a common syllabus and develop artworks within the traditional framework of their studio base. Three projects will be assigned over the course of the semester. Each project assignment will be limited by a specified subject matter and a specified format. Each of the three project periods will conclude with a group critique. This course is sequentially linked to FACR 216 Research Practices. Course begins Spring 2009.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: Research Practices

Open to Fine Arts, Media Arts and Crafts majors within the College of Art and Design. Priority enrollment to Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FACR 216 - Research Practices

This course is designed to develop traditional and creative research strategies necessary for contemporary art practice. Students learn to find and use information that can both generate and enhance their ideas. This kind of "information Literacy" enriches the content factor in the form/content equation essential to artworks. Using numerous resources for collecting material, research will cover historical, cultural, social, and political contexts for art ideas. Various methods will be explored for recording, classifying and representing information, such as writing, mapping, diagramming, drawing, and other notational systems. This course is directly linked to the development of studio projects outlined in FAPR 215 Subjects/Formats.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: FAPR 215

Open to Fine Arts, Media Arts and Crafts majors in the College of Art and Design. Priority enrollment for Multidisciplinary Fine Arts Majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPR 204 - Screenprint/Etching

The graphic qualities of expression in screenprinting and etching/intaglio are presented through historic and contemporary examples and demonstration of the methods, which convey ideas in these two media. Various stencil processes from direct-drawn to photographic and computer-generated are explored in screenprinting with water-based opaque and transparent inks. Handwork on the metal plate includes drawn drypoint, etching, and tonal processes. Emphasis is placed on the understanding of the qualities of these methods and the development of personal ideas. Formerly PR 204

Prerequisites & Notes

FAPR 301 - Attitudes and Strategies: Printmaking

The first semester of this course concentrates on general issues of contemporary artists' practices; the second semester continues with a focus on the printmaker's world. The student creates prints, exploring a variety of printmaking methods. Drawings to clarify the direction that a possible later series of prints might take are another expectation as well as completed drawing projects. Students should take at least one area of printmaking and develop technical skills beyond elementary proficiency. All three mediums: relief, intaglio, and lithography are to be used in making prints this semester. Formerly PR 333

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FACR 301

Open to Printmaking majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 303 - Print Study Seminar I

Students meet at the Philadelphia Museum of Art in the Print Study room to discuss and study original prints and rare books from the museum collection. Masters of the 15th through the 18th centuries are introduced and researched. Various print processes that parallel the material covered in the course will be researched in the printmaking studios. Formerly PR 306A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Printmaking majors only. Student must have completed the first semester of their Sophomore year (45 credits).

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPR 305 - Lithography

All of the basic techniques of drawing, imagemaking and printing skills that are necessary to produce hand-pulled lithographs from stones and plates are taught. An emphasis is placed on visual expression and development of ideas through group discussions and critiques. Formerly PR 300

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FAPR 201 and FAPR 204

Priority enrollment to Printmaking and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Spring Credits: 16.5

- Electives Credits: 3 cr

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FACR 301

Open to Printmaking majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 304 - Book Arts: Concept and Structure

An opportunity to explore the integration of type and relief image in unique and editioned book structures. Hands-on experience in dealing with composition (metal) type and computer typesetting is on an intermediate level. Relief printing, photopolymer plates, color reduction printing, and related traditional and contemporary methods of multiple image making are pursued. Special emphasis on development of a personal visual language. Formerly PR 307

Prerequisites & Notes

Students must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits). Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors and minors; and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 403 - Print Study Seminar II

The historical and conceptual context of prints, portfolios and book arts of the 19th and 20th centuries are studied at the Philadelphia Museum of Art. Written and printed expression of the ideas and processes involved are integrated into this course of study. Formerly PR 406

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Printmaking majors only. Students must have completed the first semester of their Sophomore year (45 credits).

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

Senior Year Credits: 27

Fall Credits: 13.5

- Electives Credits: 6 cr

FAPR 302 - Printmaking Workshop

An investigation into the combination of previously studied printmaking media including, but not confined to: relief, intaglio, screenprinting, lithography and photo & digital imaging. Students are encouraged to investigate unorthodox uses of materials and techniques through the creation of two-dimensional and three-dimensional work. Formerly PR 301

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FAPR 201, FAPR 204

Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPR 401 - Advanced Workshop

Students continue to develop their ideas, images, and technique while establishing their direction and personal original expression. The workshop atmosphere permits a comfortable handling of all procedures and printmaking processes. Students are encouraged to be involved with adjacent expressive means such as drawing, painting, sculpture, photography, and crafts in combination with printmaking. Formerly PR 400

Spring Credits: 13.5

- Electives Credits: 6 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

FACR 401 - Senior Fine Arts Seminar

The artist's role in historic and contemporary contexts. Issues surrounding the various purposes of art and how culture deals with artists are explored through discussion with visiting artists, alumni, and faculty. Students work toward the acquisition of a professional profile in resume, artist statement, and slide preparation. Discussion of gallery practices and portfolio presentations cultivate an awareness of professionalism and career opportunities in the fields of painting, printmaking, and sculpture. Formerly FA 460

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FAPR 301, FAPT 302 or FASC 302

Open to Fine Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPR 402 - Thesis Workshop

Offers the student the opportunity to develop a body of work in preparation for portfolio and exhibition presentation. An emphasis is placed on the development of ideas and content in the individual student's work, which is supported by a series of individual and group critiques by faculty and visiting artists. The student is expected to participate in group exhibitions as well as a solo exhibition and to present a professional portfolio of work. Formerly PR 420

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FAPR 201, FAPR 204, FAPR 305

Open to Printmaking majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

FASC 300 - Junior Sculpture

This course is designed to help each student begin to understand his own aesthetic proclivities and to place these within an art historical context. The emotional, intellectual, philosophical, and historical implications of various movements in art history are explored in order to begin to understand their relationship to the personal artistic development of each student within the history of Sculpture. An emphasis is placed on the development of ideas and content in the individual student's work, which is supported by a series of individual and group critiques by faculty and visiting artists. Weekly class meetings will include slide talks related to current assignments, films, discussions, and field trips to exhibitions around the Philadelphia area. This will be followed by personal conferences with the instructor.

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Sculpture and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts Majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 440 - Sculpture Since 1945

Lectures, discussions, projects concerning various artists, movements, concepts, philosophies, and critical theories influencing contemporary art with an emphasis on sculpture. Focus on the currents since 1945. Formerly SC 251

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 1.5 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

FACR 401 - Senior Fine Arts Seminar

The artist's role in historic and contemporary contexts. Issues surrounding the various purposes of art and how culture deals with artists are explored through discussion with visiting artists, alumni, and faculty. Students work toward the acquisition of a professional profile in resume, artist statement, and slide preparation. Discussion of gallery practices and portfolio presentations cultivate an awareness of professionalism and career opportunities in the fields of painting, printmaking, and sculpture. Formerly FA 460

Prerequisites & Notes

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 9XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - 20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI course in the junior and/or senior years.

Sculpture Electives

Choose from:

FASC 211 - Structure of the Figure

Anatomic and morphological analysis of male and female bodies for artists through a three-dimensional constructional method. Proportions, anatomic structure, surface topology, morphological variation, and the body in movement are covered. Directed toward two-dimensional artists as well as sculptors. The means by which the body's salient features can be recognized from any viewpoint in any pose is stressed. Formerly SC 260A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 212 - Structure of the Figure

Anatomic and morphological analysis of male and female bodies for artists through a three-dimensional constructional method. Proportions, anatomic structure, surface topology, morphological variation, and the body in movement are covered. Directed toward two-dimensional artists as well as sculptors. The means by which the body's salient features can be recognized from any viewpoint in any pose is stressed. Formerly SC 260B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 221 - Introduction to Sculpture Projects

An open studio oriented toward helping the development of individual initiative. Stress on how ideas are transformed into sculptural statements through aesthetic reasoning and the internal logic of a sculpture's color, material, and physical construction. Formerly SC 241

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 222 - Introduction to Sculpture Projects

An open studio oriented toward helping the development of individual initiative. Stress on how ideas are transformed into sculptural statements through aesthetic reasoning and the internal logic of a sculpture's color, material, and physical construction. Formerly SC 242

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 231 - Molding and Casting

Covers processes and techniques utilizing plaster, rubber, plastics, clays, and wax for making hard and flexible molds and for casting sculpture in durable materials. Provides a thorough foundation in foundry practices, including wax preparation, investing, pouring bronze or aluminum, chasing, finishing, and patinating finished metal casts. Formerly SC 220A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation or FNDP 104

Priority enrollment to Sculpture majors. May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FASC 232 - Molding and Casting

Covers processes and techniques utilizing plaster, rubber, plastics, clays, and wax for making hard and flexible molds and for casting sculpture in durable materials. Provides a thorough foundation in foundry practices, including wax preparation, investing, pouring bronze or aluminum, chasing, finishing, and patinating finished metal casts. Formerly SC 220B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation or FNDP 104

Priority enrollment to Sculpture majors. May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FASC 331 - Carving

Introduces the student to carving, one of the basic methods of forming sculpture. Students learn to prepare, maintain, and use the tools of the carver. They are introduced to the characteristics of suitable carving materials. Emphasis is placed on the exploration of the formal and expressive potentials of carved sculpture. Formerly SC 321

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Sculpture majors. May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FASC 363 - Medallion Sculpture

The Medallion Arts have a long history beginning with monetary coins in the ancient world, developing through Renaissance medals into a vital and international art form that now includes small free-standing sculpture. The link between all of these is not only size, but the need for the work to have a specific communicative function, while at the same time exploring the contemporary sculptural issues. This is a studio course with a lecture component to give the student a history of the discipline. Projects are designed to challenge the student conceptually and to introduce forms and techniques such as bas relief, carving, mold making casting and fabricating, all on a small scale. There will be annual opportunities to exhibit the finished sculpture internationally.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FASC 364 - Installation and Performance

This course explores the concepts and practice of installation and performance art and their development during the past century. Four primary aspects of Installation are explored: the multisensory immersive environment; the site-specific work – work responsive to the history, usage, or natural aspects of a particular site or location; interactivity or installations in which the audience is encouraged to participate; and the performance art ranging from theatrical situations through the private acts of the artist that explore particular behavioral, experiential, or social issues and is documented through photos, videos, etc. The history of installation and performance work is discussed through a series of lectures and video presentations that examine the art historical, social, cultural, and psychological concerns from which these art forms are derived. Students are expected to be resourceful and inventive when realizing their work.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: Completion of Foundation or MMDI 101, MMDI 102

May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 411 - Advanced Figure Modeling

For students seriously involved with the figure, this course provides an atelier to continue figure modeling on increasingly advanced levels and a context to help formulate a personal figurative sculptural idiom. Works are sculptured at various scales, including life size, and independent projects are undertaken in consultation with the faculty. Critiques involving the meaning and sculptural significance of the works are an integral part of the ongoing class activity. Formerly SC 431

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FASC 203, FASC 211 or FASC 212

Priority enrollment to Sculpture majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 412 - Advanced Figure Modeling

For students seriously involved with the figure, this course provides an atelier to continue figure modeling on increasingly advanced levels and a context to help formulate a personal figurative sculptural idiom. Works are sculptured at various scales, including life size, and independent projects are undertaken in consultation with the faculty. Critiques involving the meaning and sculptural significance of the works are an integral part of the ongoing class activity. Formerly SC 432

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FASC 203, FASC 211 or FASC 212

Priority enrollment to Sculpture majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 413 - Projects in Figure Modeling

Allows the student to move beyond modeling the figure as an academic study. Exploration using the figure in expressive contexts is emphasized. Formerly SC 433

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FASC 203, FASC 211 or FASC 212

Priority enrollment to Sculpture majors. May be taken four times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 421 - Advanced Projects

Provides a studio context where maturing self-initiated areas of concentration in sculpture can be developed to fruition on an advanced level. Whatever the direction, a critical emphasis is placed through both open and devised assignments on how materials and forms compatible to personal statements are found. Graduate students may register for this course under GRSC 621. Formerly SC 441

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FASC 221 or FASC 222

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 422 - Advanced Projects

Provides a studio context where maturing self-initiated areas of concentration in sculpture can be developed to fruition on an advanced level. Whatever the direction, a critical emphasis is placed through both open and devised assignments on how materials and forms compatible to personal statements are found. Graduate students may register for this course under GRSC 621. Formerly SC 442

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FASC 221 or FASC 222

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 433 - Metals

Forming metal sculpture has contributed much to the history of sculpture, particularly in the present, where the idiom has become as familiar as carving and modeling. Concurrently offering both basic and advanced technical instruction in welding and forging, using both ferrous and non-ferrous metals, this course is concerned with both the technical and aesthetic aspects of metal sculpture. Formerly SC 421

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Sculpture majors. May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

Note:

Electives must include at least nine studio credits outside the Sculpture offerings.

Studio Photography Minor

This minor is designed to give the student mastery of the full range of camera formats from a 35mm small format up to a 4x5 studio view camera. Technical training covers electronic strobe and tungsten studio lighting, as well as color transparency film and conventional black-and-white, and color photographic print materials and techniques. Advanced-level classes concentrate on design and creative approaches to staged and directed shooting. Photography majors may not declare a Studio Photography minor.

Requirements for the Minor

MAPH 211 - Color Concepts

Introduction to methods of color shooting and printing, leading to an exploration of the technical and creative possibilities of color in photography. Processes covered include negative and transparency films, filtration, chemical printing, and digital color controls with Photoshop. Formerly PF 217

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Photography majors; Photo and Photo Studio minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. Not open to Foundation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 303 - Basic Photography Studio I

Familiarizes the student with the tools, techniques, and language of studio photography. Entails extensive use of the 4" x 5" view camera. Deals with black-and-white materials, sheet film exposure, hand processing, printing large-format negatives, and digital capture and output. Formerly PF 313A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202 or GDES 331

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 304 - Basic Photography Studio II

Continuation of MAPH 303. This course furthers the students' familiarization with the tools, techniques, and language of studio photography and entails extensive use of the 4" x 5" view camera. This semester covers the introduction of color transparency films and strobe lighting, digital capture and output. Formerly PF 313B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 303

Open to Photo majors; Photo and Studio Photo minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following two:

MAPH 201 - Introduction to Photography I

Introduction to basic concepts, processes, and techniques of black-and-white photography, including camera operation, exposure, darkroom procedures, lighting, and their controlled applications of these techniques. Emphasis is upon the normative standard of photographic rendering. Formerly PF 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite for all upper-level photography courses. Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts, Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 282 - Photography for Illustrators

This course introduces Illustration majors to the fundamental techniques used in black-and-white photography, including camera operation, developing, and printing, as well as photographic digital imaging. Emphasis is placed on film selection and lighting for both the studio and environmental shooting. The fundamentals of Photoshop are employed for digital image manipulation. Lectures and projects are designed to provide the tools necessary for illustrators who wish to use photography in their work. Formerly PF 209

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Photography majors. Priority enrollment to Illustration and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Photo minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following three:

GDES 331 - Photographics I

Develops a designer's methodology and viewpoint to achieve both structure and meaning in photography, and as a way to extend the range of how objects and nature can be seen and translated using photographic processes. Students use both traditional photography and digital software to create hybrid photographic images. Formerly GD 310A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 202 - Introduction to Photography II

While consolidating the student's control of the medium, this course introduces the student to a departure from normative photographic rendering, techniques, and modes of expression and form. Strong emphasis on manipulation of materials, including traditional photographic methods as well as an introduction to computer manipulation. Formerly PF 211B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 282, MAPH 201 or MAPH 221

Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts and Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 311 - Digital Photography Workshop

Concentrates on the production of creative digital photography; students are encouraged to experiment with new tools and techniques. Film and print scanners, CD-ROM discs, and digital cameras are used to produce images that are critiqued on the basis of both technical proficiency and aesthetic accomplishment. Portfolios are printed on digital output machines and four-color offset. Frequent readings, lectures, and site visits expand the ongoing studio experience. Formerly PF 315

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202

Open to Photo and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors; Photo and Photo Studio minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Typography Minor

The student learns the basic visual grammar of typography, incorporating this knowledge into information-based interpretations. Intermediate studies are concerned with the informational and editorial uses of typography, as well as multi-page formats. The advanced level develops a sophisticated expertise in solving complex messages through typographic expression. Graphic Design majors may not declare a Typography minor.

Requirements for the Minor

It is recommended that EMDI 201 and GDES 311 be taken concurrently, when possible.

It is recommended that EMDI 202 and GDES 312 be taken concurrently, when possible.

EMDI 201 - Electronic Media/Production I

Addresses the development of foundation computer skills in image scanning technology, desktop publishing, digital photographic technologies, and basic output procedures. Technical expertise and efficient working methodologies are applied to problems that are brought into the class from other design courses as well as from both individual and group-assigned projects. All software is standard to current graphic design industry practices. Graduate students may register for this course under GREM 601. Formerly EM 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Graphic Design majors and Typography minors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

EMDI 202 - Electronic Media/Production II

An extension of EMDI 201. Addresses the development of advanced computer skills in image scanning, technology, desktop publishing, pre-press production, color, output technology, and digital photographic technologies. Special attention is given to comparative study of output technologies and the translation of the on-screen image to offset lithography. Technical expertise and efficient working methodologies are applied to problems that are brought into the class from other design courses as well as from both individual and group-assigned projects. All software is standard to current graphic design industry practices. Formerly EM 202

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: EMDI 201

Open to Graphic Design majors and Typography minors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GDES 212 - Typography Fundamentals

The course addresses the basic formal language of typography and the application of typographic principles to frame basic communication messages. Typographic investigations are achieved by both manual and digital means. Formerly GD 212

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: Completion of Foundation or MMDI 101, MMDI 102

Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors and Typography minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 311 - Typographic Systems

This course investigates and defines the principles of typography in a communication context. Directed research based upon typographic norms addresses the issues of informational hierarchies achievable through visual form and structure as well as the editorial and expressive potentials of typography. Coursework is completed both using traditional and computer technologies. Students must have working knowledge of Adobe InDesign and basic Macintosh operation or be concurrently enrolled in EMDI 202. Working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator is preferred. Formerly GD 306A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: EMDI 201, GDES 212

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 312 - Typographic Systems

This course is an extension and continuation of Typographic Systems GDES 311. The course addresses the typographic principles of the grid, text typography, text hierarchies, and image integration, all within the context of a multipage format. Students must have working knowledge of Adobe InDesign, image scanning, and basic knowledge of Photoshop or be concurrently enrolled in Electronic Media/Production II EMDI 312 to gain admission to this course. Additional working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator is preferred. Formerly GD 306B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: GDES 311, EMDI 202

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 411 - Advanced Typography

This elective course addresses typography as a primary vehicle to communicate information and as a support to images. Assignments range from informational design to expressive, content-based problems, to intuitive investigations and formal experiments. Although traditional methods of conceptualizing are used within a thorough visual process, extensive computer work is involved. Students should have expertise in Adobe InDesign, Adobe Illustrator, and Adobe Photoshop. Formerly GD 426

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 312

Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors and Typography minors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Visual Arts - Master of Arts in Teaching

Program Total Credits: 42

The Master of Arts in Teaching in Visual Arts is a professional degree program incorporating preparation for the Pennsylvania Instructional I Certificate to teach Art K-12, including a student teaching practicum. Additional coursework includes the history, theory, and practice of art education. Depending on the completeness of the student's background, the MAT Program provides a flexible mix of professional education, advanced studio, and liberal arts study in a 42-credit program that may be completed in three full semesters (if prerequisites have been met) or three semesters and one summer.

Visual Arts - Master of Arts in Teaching Credits: 42

Fall Credits: 15

AEDU 509 is required of all students who do not pass the Art Education Department Writing Proficiency Exam with a score of 80 percent or higher. It must be taken and passed in the first semester of full-time enrollment, and it does not fulfill any credit requirements for the MAT program. Those who score below 70 percent on the Professional Writing Proficiency Exam after completing the Professional Writing course may not continue in the MAT program.

- Graduate Elective Credits: 3 cr

AEDU 501 - Creative and Cognitive Development

This course is designed to develop skills in recognizing the developmental stages of children, adolescents, and adults according to the theories of Jean Piaget, Lawrence Kohlberg, Viktor Lowenfeld, and Erick Erickson. In addition, the course explores the learning theories of Jerome Bruner, B.F. Skinner, Howard Gardner, Madeline Hunter, and Bernice McCarthy toward understanding individual differences in creative and cognitive development and learning styles. Formerly AE 550

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

May be taken during either the summer or fall semester

AEDU 509 - Professional Writing Intensive

This course is required for students entering all art education programs (pre-certification, MAT, MA, MA+EM) who have not passed the Art Education Department writing proficiency exam. It addresses the use of effective and cogent written communication for the teacher, artist, and administrator to classes, groups, or clients. Formerly AE 599

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

AEDU 533 - Art and Inclusionary Education

This course is designed to provide the full scope of methodologies, techniques and innovative strategies needed to teach special education students effectively. Using the arts as a means for adapting to diverse learning methods, the K-12 classroom is regarded as a dynamic setting for inclusionary learning. The impact of special needs art education is further realized through direct school and community engagement; programs and national as well as local organizations are made available to assist in developing field placements. Arranged field placement opportunities include a broad range of community resources. Formerly AE 533

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs field work (8 weeks)

This course has a required field placement, and may be taken in either fall or spring semester.

AEDU 541 - Program Design & Methods: Elementary

Through review of current literature, lectures, discussion, field observation, and miniteaching, students explore various educational philosophies and develop and implement effective classroom curricula based on prevailing theories of learning and child development. Topics include management issues; interdisciplinary content and teaching of art; evaluation and assessment of teaching and learning; and the integration of digital technology. Formerly AE 547

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: AEDU 201

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs; 3 hrs field work (8 weeks)

This course has a required field placement, and may be taken in either fall or spring semester.

AEDU 606 - Research in Education: Methods and Trends

A graduate education seminar on principal approaches to research for art and museum education. The course examines types of research, applications and recent studies for their methodologies and findings, grant writing, and assessment techniques. Formerly AE 606

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Art Education and Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Graduate Elective Credits: 3 cr
- Art Education Technology Elective (AEDU 635, 621 or 622) 3 cr

AEDU 542 - Program Design & Methods: Secondary

Students in this course will explore current educational “best practices” in the field of secondary art education. Focus areas for learning will include curriculum development, lesson planning, classroom leadership, collaborative learning, student assessment, learning environments, materials ordering, and time budgeting. Class structure includes weekly outside reading assignments, group discussions, methods demonstrations, studio production activities, reflective writing, and field observation. Formerly AE 548

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 541 or AEDU 560

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs; 8 hrs field work

These courses have a required field placement, and may be taken in either the fall or spring semester

AEDU 560 - Saturday Practicum

Students are involved in various aspects of the Saturday Arts Lab. They observe classroom instruction, plan and teach lessons, and exhibit student work under the supervision of cooperating master teachers and through the instruction of a professor in the seminar portion of the course. Formerly AE 559

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs field work (10 weeks)

These courses have a required field placement, and may be taken in either the fall or spring semester

AEDU 602 - History of Ideas in Art and Museum Education

Seminar on major issues and trends in the history of art and museum education, with an emphasis on child-centered and content-centered theories and the theoretical antecedents of Discipline-Based Art Education, the Visual Culture movement, and standards-based education. Formerly AE 602

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Art Education and Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

May be taken during either the summer or spring semester

PRAXIS

The Instructional I PRAXIS tests must be successfully completed by the end of the first full-time semester.

Fall Credits: 12

AEDU 503 - The Art of Teaching

Teacher preparation and knowledge of instructional techniques will be addressed, including professional image, teachers' rights and responsibilities, and aspects of group process. The course explores cultural and family factors that influence learning expectations conveyed by teachers and peer behavior and techniques of instruction and creativity. A retrospective analysis of each student's individual education experience and perceptions of teaching is explored through interactive simulation of classroom situations and teaching styles. May be taken during either the summer or spring semester. Formerly AE 552

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: AEDU 541

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 561 - Student Teaching: Elementary

An intensive, elementary-level field experience built around a seven-week student teaching internship, under the guidance and supervision of a highly qualified art teacher/mentor. It is intended to provide practical experience in which the intern assumes professional-level responsibilities and experiences in teaching art at the elementary level. A University supervisor observes, advises, facilitates the relationship between the mentor and intern, and assesses the student during the internship. AEDU 561 is taken concurrently with AEDU 565. (If students elect to take AEDU 561 one semester and AEDU 562 another semester, AEDU 565 must be taken both semesters.) Formerly AE 660

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 533, AEDU 541, AEDU 542, AEDU 560 Corequisite: AEDU 565

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 4 cr, hrs vary (7 weeks)

The two field placements may be taken over two semesters. If this option is elected, the full 15-week seminar that accompanies the field placement must be taken in both semesters.

AEDU 562 - Student Teaching: Secondary

An intensive, secondary-level field experience built around a seven-week student teaching internship, under the guidance and supervision of a highly qualified art teacher/mentor. It is intended to provide practical experience in which the intern assumes professional-level responsibilities and experiences in teaching art at the elementary level. A University supervisor observes, advises, facilitates the relationship between the mentor and intern, and assesses the student during the internship. AEDU 562 is taken concurrently with AEDU 565. (If students elect to take AEDU 562 one semester and AEDU 561 another semester, AEDU 565 must be taken both semesters.) Formerly AE 662

The College of Media and Communication offers three degree programs as well as 12 minors. The Department of Communication offers a Bachelor of Science in Communication with nine applications areas - advertising, documentary video, game design, media studies, narrative video, professional writing, screenwriting, Webcasting, and Web design. The Department of Multimedia offers a Bachelor of Fine Arts in Multimedia and a minor in Information

Architecture. The Department of Writing for Film and Television offers a Bachelor of Fine Arts in Writing for Film and Television . In addition to these three degree programs, the college also has a freshman program, the Discovery Year , open to students who have not yet declared a major.

The College of Media and Communication (CMAC) has the approval of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to grant Bachelor of Fine Arts (BFA) and Bachelor of Science (BS) degrees as part of The University of the Arts.

The newest of the University's three colleges, CMAC provides a crossroads where students interested in performing and visual arts, writing and narrative, new media, new technology, and interactivity learn the skills required to integrate traditional and new media. In small classes, students work together in an extremely close and supportive atmosphere while also being able to shape an education that reflects their own goals and interests.

Programs of Study

CMAC is dedicated to the integration of art, technology, and communication. The College's programs are characterized by a commitment to text – how we describe the world to others – and to the use of appropriate technologies to reach audiences. In addition, they are designed to show students the power of collaboration, how it is able to integrate individual expertise and imagination into a larger vision.

A distinctive aspect of the programs in the College is their cross-disciplinary nature. Specialized courses that are unique and essential to the field are augmented by major courses drawn from programs throughout the University, and students are encouraged to explore the University's vast artistic and academic array of course offerings by taking electives or participating in minor courses of study.

To develop a common experience for all CMAC students as well as a broad perspective of the major themes that influence contemporary media and communication, the College requires all students to take a common core of three courses – Storytelling , Media Industries , and Collaboration and Spontaneity. Through this core, majors learn the power of media to shape stories, the nature of the media marketplace, and the rich potential of collaboration. Because these courses are required of all CMAC majors, it promotes exchange of ideas, skills, and experiences across the College.

The programs offered in the College are:

- BS in Communication
- BFA in Multimedia
- BFA in Writing for Film and Television

Each program is designed as a rigorous sequential course of study, balancing major requirements with electives and a 42-credit liberal arts core. As a result, each program promotes an education that is broad and deep, as well as being practical and richly theoretical. Students graduate knowing how to express ideas using a diverse set of media as well as having learned to understand what they are making and why.

To extend their education, CMAC students may also develop specialized competencies by taking minors in a number of new areas:

- Advertising
- Documentary Video
- Entrepreneurship
- E-Music
- E-Publishing
- Game Design
- Information Architecture

- Multimedia
- Narrative Video
- Web Design
- Web Design and Development
- Web Drama

These minors have been designed to complement the College's majors and have been developed with an eye both to new forms of creative expression and new careers that have emerged as a result of the Internet and the growth of new media.

CMAC Opportunities

The faculty, programs of study, and facilities of the College all support a broad range of interests – from building commercial Websites to creating multimedia fine art; from creating strategic ad campaigns to writing news for the Internet, to writing scripts for motion pictures and television programs. The College also offers opportunities outside the classroom to explore and create – from Webzines, to Web-based radio, to Web television.

There are a number of clubs and publications – student run – that provide students with a variety of opportunities to express themselves, make their ideas public, create new audiences, and experiment with the media.

- UArtsRadio, powered by CMAC, is an evolving, student-run online streaming-audio vehicle. Located in the College, the UArtsRadio Studio features a dedicated server and state-of-the-art equipment. Although housed in the College, UArtsRadio involves students throughout the University.
- UArtsVideo, also powered by CMAC, and like UArtsRadio, is student-run and offers opportunities to students from throughout the University to be in front of the camera and behind it, as well as to broadcast student-created videos and performances.
- Box Social, a CMAC sponsored Web series – written, directed, produced and acted by students from throughout The University – is a mixture of fantasy and reality with students from different academic programs caught up in a world of wizards and other worldly delights.
- Schwamag.com, “turning e-publishing on its head,” is the Webzine and the print annual sponsored by the Communication Department of the College of Media and Communication but open to the entire University community. It “reports” on the University and the city, on art and culture, and on life as lived by UArts students.
- Broadst., The University's publication of commentary, has as its mission to give a voice to students and to create a forum for discussion and debate.

In addition to these clubs and organizations, the College sponsors occasional Wednesday Night Screenings and lectures – programs that bring students and faculty together to talk about the media and movies.

Special Facilities & Resources

- The College of Media and Communication is housed in the Terra Building where students and faculty have access to excellent facilities and equipment.
- WiFi and Laptop Initiative

The College is entirely WiFi and most lecture and studio courses take place in “smart classrooms,” which means that students and faculty have a high degree of flexibility in what they can do while “in class” as well as being able to access material easily when they are outside of class or working in small groups anywhere in the College or University.

Production Studio

The College houses a multifunctional production studio available for use by students in the College's video, audio, advertising, and journalism classes. The studio offers students a flexibly designed space in which to produce documentary television features, educational video and films, news features, corporate media, and television commercials. Associated with it is a sound studio that also serves as the center for the Communication Department's Web radio, Web TV, and Webzine.

Digital Labs and Editing Rooms

Students in Communication use a digital lab with a range of state-of-the-art audio and video systems, pre- and post-production equipment, PC, Mac, and Unix systems, and a complete spectrum of audio, video, and Web software used to create films, videos, advertising campaigns, and Web dramas. In addition, there is a logging and dubbing studio, as well as several private editing suites available to students who need a quiet place and long blocks of uninterrupted time to edit their work.

Multimedia Studios and Labs

The College's multimedia studios provide students with the most advanced multimedia equipment in the region. The cross-platform production environment spans Macintosh, PC, and Unix-based operating systems. A MAVIO station (Mobile Audio-Visual Input/Output) allows users to input analog and digital information and to output digital and analog information as well. These studios are equipped with industry-standard software from which students can create illustrations, scan images, record sounds, digitize video, and create motion graphics and websites. Students in the Multimedia Program use these labs to work on video games, animations, Web narratives, interactive Websites, and digital videos.

MIDI Studio

The College features a MIDI Studio (Musical Instrument Digital Interface), which is used by students in multimedia and e-music to create electronic and experimental music for documentary and narrative film and video, Web drama, and games.

Equipment Room

The College's Equipment Room offers CMAC students the opportunity to borrow the most current portable video, audio, and photographic equipment for off-campus production. The equipment includes digital video and still cameras, DAT and Minidisk audio recorders, Lowell location lighting kits, and an array of microphones, field monitors, and accessories.

Galleries

There are a number of galleries and display areas throughout the College that are highly flexible, equipped with professional lighting, and supported by multimedia equipment for the display of work in all media. There are periodic shows of student documentaries, final projects and works in progress developed by students as part of their classes or independent study, as well as shows of work by faculty and distinguished outsiders. In addition to the galleries, the College has designed a number of media walls, kiosks, and virtual displays that allow student work to be shown throughout the college and also throughout The University.

Special Resources

To provide its students with experience in publishing new media, the College sponsors a student-run Webzine, a Web radio, and Web video site, hosts a number of student- and alumni-produced Websites, and supports student-developed videos, games, and interactive projects, as well as maintaining the College's Website: CMACweb.org.

New Media Center

Chris Garvin
Director

cgarvin@uarts.edu
215-717-6585

The University of the Arts is proud to be a member of the New Media Consortium, a group of the nation's leading academic institutions and technology corporations dedicated to the advancement of technology in education. The University of the Arts is one of the few art schools worldwide to be welcomed into this organization, whose members include New York University, Cornell, MIT, and UCLA.

The University of the Arts' New Media Center (NMC) is a state-of-the-art digital laboratory that provides Internet access and permits the integration of text, graphics, imagery, animation, music, and sound. While the entire University community uses these labs, the NMC is the primary classroom for students in the college's Multimedia program.

CMAC Minors

The College of Media and Communication offers minors that enable a student to focus on a specific discipline through organized electives. Open to majors throughout the University, CMAC minors have been designed to complement a major course of study so that students can develop cross-disciplinary skills and applications, to support interdisciplinary collaboration, and to add skills and experiences that enrich a student's capabilities in a variety of career and creative fields. Each minor has a coordinator/advisor, but students are expected to work with their major advisors so that a minor does not conflict with the courses required by their major. Because of the structure of their major, Communication majors may only participate in minors offered by the College of Performing Arts and the College of Art and Design.

1. Students must meet eligibility requirements, which may include a satisfactory grade-point average, prerequisites, and departmental portfolio review.
2. A student's intent to complete a minor is declared by filing the completed Minor Declaration Form with the Office of the Registrar. The forms are available in the Office of the Registrar.
3. A student may not major and minor in the same program, except where indicated.
4. Courses applied to the minor may only be applied toward elective requirements.
5. All minors require a minimum of 15 credits, with the exception of E-Music for Music majors. Generally, no substitutions to the minor requirements are allowed. In exceptional situations where substitutions are granted, they must have the approval of both the major and minor program advisors.
6. The requirements of the minor must be completed prior to graduation.
7. A student pursuing a minor may be required to complete more than the minimum number of credits required to complete the undergraduate degree in order to also complete the minor.
8. Minors are available only to undergraduate students.

Advertising Minor

The minor in Advertising Strategy provides instruction in strategic thinking and creative execution required to design advertisements and ad campaigns in multiple formats (print, audio, video, and interactive). This minor offers tools and concepts to students interested in marketing and promoting any product, service, or artistic activity. It broadens the career options of students in any of the media and communication disciplines, and prepares them to work in both the profit and not-for-profit sectors of the media and communication industries. Communication majors may not declare a Strategic Advertising minor.

Requirements for the Minor

- Elective Credits: 3 cr
To be determined with minor advisor

CMMC 221 - Advertising: Creative Concepts I

Whether an advertisement appears in print, on television or radio, or on the Internet, it is built around an idea. Students learn to recognize and create strong advertising ideas that are relevant to the product and the audience, with an emphasis on print advertising. Students learn how to allow their creativity to be guided by strategy. Students are exposed to outstanding creative work and readings in their texts and from studying professional work. They then apply these principles as they create advertising of their own. Formerly CM 271

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Strategic Advertising minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 321 - Advertising Strategy Development

The business side of creative advertising. Examines the functions of the various departments within an advertising agency, focusing on strategic development, and introduces the three key steps in that development-market segmentation, brand positioning, and research. Students learn a variety of qualitative and quantitative research methods and analytical methods and apply what they have learned by developing and presenting an advertising strategy for an actual product. Formerly CM 371

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Strategic Advertising minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

CMMC 322 - Advertising: Creative Concepts II

Having learned how to create strong individual concepts, students create broader and deeper concepts that can form the basis for a number of ads and learn how to execute an idea in more than one medium. The course begins by examining award-winning print campaigns in order to recognize suitable ideas for multi-ad campaigns; to identify elements and themes and their grounding in research; and to understand the consumer. The course then examines how interactive media are being used to build customer relationships and brand identities, and explores the strategic functions of these new media. Students develop storyboards for a product or service that reinforces that product's existing brand personality. Formerly CM 372

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 221

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Strategic Advertising minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following:

CMMC 324 - Introduction to Public Relations

The fundamentals of public relations, viewed as a marketing communications tool, with special attention to its role in the non-profit sphere. Reviews the functions of a wide range of marketing communications tools and explores how PR can be used in conjunction with them to achieve an organization's objectives, helping students to come to understand the role of public relations in the overall marketing communications plan. Students learn how to coordinate messages in order to allow the company to speak with one voice and reinforce one overall corporate identity, with special attention to social marketing and the public. A series of projects culminates in students developing a public relations proposal for a non-profit organization. Formerly CM 373

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Strategic Advertising minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Required for Multimedia majors

WRIT 204 - Writing for Media

A studio writing class developing skills in effective, clear, and persuasive writing in the areas of media and communication. Students work from a variety of source materials and write research papers, project proposals, project treatments, and a newspaper feature. Emphasis is on writing structure and style, editing and revising, suitability to specific audiences, and delivering material on time and at prescribed lengths. Formerly CM 211 and CMMC 204.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to majors in the College of Media and Communication.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Not applicable as minor credit for Multimedia majors

CMAC Discovery YearThe Discovery Year

A first-year program in the College of Media and Communication, the Discovery Year provides students with an excellent opportunity to explore media and communication before deciding on a major in Communication, Multimedia, or Writing for Film & Television. During the year, they are introduced to the principles and skills that media makers must know through courses taken in video production, visual communication, interface design, writing, and storytelling.

In addition to these courses, students also take Liberal Arts courses each semester as required by the University core and have the option of taking at least one elective course.

Designed to provide its students with an introduction to the concepts and skills of media used in all of the programs offered by the college, the CMAC Discovery Year is ideally suited for students interested in a broad overview of media and communication who have yet to decide on a major focus. Students, who already have decided on their focus, should apply for admission to one of the college's majors – Communication, Multimedia, or Writing for Film & Television – since that will provide them the chance to take more electives and start minors earlier in their course of study.

Declaring a Major

The college provides each student with an advisor who helps the student decide upon the major that is best for him or her. Each semester, in advance of the University's registration period, the college also holds special advising sessions to explain the majors in detail, supplemented by departmental meetings intended to give students in the Discovery Year the opportunity to talk to students already in the majors. During the year, students meet with their advisors on a regular basis to discuss their work and their career goals and interests. In addition, through course crits and reviews, students have a chance over the year to talk to faculty about their work and to assess their potential for success in the various majors.

To declare a major, students must complete a Declaration of Major form, which must be signed by the student and the director of the proposed major. Students can declare a major as early as November of their first year but must declare their major before registering for the fall semester of their second year. Failure to do so may extend their stay at the University.

CMAC Opportunities and Facilities

The college sponsors a number of clubs and publications – most of which are student run and all of which are open to first-year students. They allow students to explore and create outside the classroom in a number of different media – Webzines, Web-based radio, Web television, and several print publications.

The College of Media and Communication is housed in a state-of-the-art media environment, which includes a multifunctional production studio; a sound studio; digital labs for audio and video editing; multimedia studios that provide Mac, PC, and Unix-based operating systems and industry-standard software; a MIDI studio; and a black-box production space, as well as a wireless environment that supports collaboration and independent work.

The College's Equipment Room offers CMAC students the opportunity to borrow the most current portable video, audio, and photographic equipment. The College's galleries, interactive kiosks, and virtual window provide students ample opportunities to display their work.

Discovery Year: 30 Credits

Students may take up to 3 additional credits of Electives in the Discovery Year.

Fall Credits: 15

CMMC 102 - Video Production Workshop

Acquaints students with the fundamentals of visual storytelling by providing hands-on experience translating the written word into images and sounds. Areas of study include framing images, lighting, using off-screen space and sound, editing, and postproduction. Students integrate their own writing to produce some of these projects. Formerly CM 290

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication, Writing for Film and Television, and Theater Management and Production majors and Web Drama minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 101 - Visual Communication Studio

All communication takes place through language. However, not all language uses words. This course allows students to harness the power of visual language in order to convey messages and meaning. The elements of drawing and two-dimensional design that are covered include point, line, shape, composition, texture, color, type, and image. Although non-digital mediums are addressed, the exploration of digital tools for the screen is a primary goal. Individual creativity is stressed. Formerly MM 110

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 111 - Dramatic Structure I

An intensive year-long writing course that introduces students to major principles of the three-act dramatic structure found in narrative screenplays. Topics of the course include sequences, creation of character, conflict, and setting. Students are required to complete focused and specific creative written work on a weekly basis. Workshops are held on a weekly basis. Formerly WM 113

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Writing for Film and Television and Discovery Year majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

Select one of the following:

WRIT 242 - Film Story Analysis

The course examines various narrative film genres, identifying the unique and distinctive qualities of screenwriting conventions utilized. Screenings and analysis highlight the devices employed by screenwriters to tell a good story. Weekly screenings followed by critical papers of each screening. Formerly WM 343

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMAC Core/Discipline History

Select one of the following:

CMMC 353 - Media Industries

This course investigates the range of organizations and economic forces involved in media production. Includes diverse production models, from mainstream and corporate, to public sector, to alternative, and comparisons with media industries in other cultural settings. The course focuses on business and policy issues and considers examples of media practice from broadcast and cable news, advertising, Hollywood and independent cinema, public media, and new media industries. The course includes a final research project. Formerly CM 260

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to College of Media and Communication students.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 141 - Collaboration and Spontaneity

Through a series of exercises, class discussions, and readings, students explore what it means to work as part of a team. Students learn to develop environments in which the creative process is encouraged to unfold. The basic assumptions that affect the formation of collaborative groups, such as personal responsibility, authority relations, leadership issues, individual differences, competition, the development of norms, and the generation and uses of power, are experienced, explicated, and examined. Students work within this collaborative environment to explore the connections between spontaneous verbal and nonverbal communication. Formerly MM 150

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 141 - Storytelling: Theory and Practice

This course introduces students to storytelling as a way of structuring communication. Course material ranges from annual reports to ad campaigns to greeting cards to rap music to political campaigns, offering students an introduction to the many ways narrative can be exploited for a powerful effect. Students learn to apply theory and to explore the relationship of different types of media to different narrative forms. Formerly CMMC 141.

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to CMAC students.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 111 - Introduction to Interface Design

The software interface represents the focal point of user interaction with the various modes of multimedia communication. Readings by interface theorists inform discussions on the evolution of the software interface, conceptual models, prototypes, interaction design, deliverables, and basic concepts of human-computer interaction. Avenues for pursuing interactive media design in entertainment, publishing, and education are also addressed. Current technologies, including the trend from soft to hard interfaces are studied, in terms of their potential short- and long-term influence on communication and multimedia. Basic methods for rapid prototyping and testing are considered. Formerly MM 121

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

MMDI 141 - Collaboration and Spontaneity

Through a series of exercises, class discussions, and readings, students explore what it means to work as part of a team. Students learn to develop environments in which the creative process is encouraged to unfold. The basic assumptions that affect the formation of collaborative groups, such as personal responsibility, authority relations, leadership issues, individual differences, competition, the development of norms, and the generation and uses of power, are experienced, explicated, and examined. Students work within this collaborative environment to explore the connections between spontaneous verbal and nonverbal communication. Formerly MM 150

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

CMMC 201 - Media Forms and Concepts I

First of a two-semester exploration of media forms through the perspective of genre, structure, and representation, combining analysis and media production. Students are exposed to mainstream and alternative media and focus on issues of form (i.e., time, space, point of view, etc.) and social context (i.e., cross-cultural representation, stereotyping, the portrayal of gender and sexuality, the representation of violence, etc.) in order to observe how media forms create cultural meanings. Students develop an analytical framework and practical language for talking about media and an understanding of how production practices and audience expectations combine to affect the structure of media forms. Students approach these topics in media representation through creative work in documentary, journalism, and advertising using digital video, audio, still images, and the Web. Formerly CM 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

CMMC 401 - Communication - Senior Studio I

In this project based, two-semester sequence (CMMC 401 & CMMC 402), students work on the development of their own presentation-quality hybrid project, combining aspects of their two chosen application areas (documentary video, digital journalism, narrative video, screenwriting, advertising, game design and web design). Students research and develop project proposals in the fall semester, and begin production work. They continue this work in the spring semester, resulting in a polished piece of video, audio, print or digital form. Students write reflective pieces about their production experience in light of theoretical and contemporary issues, and complete the yearlong course with a portfolio/reel of their creative work. Formerly CM 461

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: Completion of two application areas

Open to Communication majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

CMMC 499 - Communication Internship

Professional internship with a media organization or producer. Student needs to gain approval for internships from an advisor, meet periodically for supervisory discussions, and complete a short, reflective essay at the end of the internship. Formerly CM 499

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

CMMC 205 - Webcasting

Webcasting is a production workshop that introduces students to the world of streaming media (audio and video transmitted over the Internet). The course balances the technical elements of Webcasting with the creative aspects of content production, distribution, and community. Students work in teams and individually to produce pre-recorded and original material for archives and live Webcasts.

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

CMMC 324 - Introduction to Public Relations

The fundamentals of public relations, viewed as a marketing communications tool, with special attention to its role in the non-profit sphere. Reviews the functions of a wide range of marketing communications tools and explores how PR can be used in conjunction with them to achieve an organization's objectives, helping students to come to understand the role of public relations in the overall marketing communications plan. Students learn how to coordinate messages in order to allow the company to speak with one voice and reinforce one overall corporate identity, with special attention to social marketing and the public. A series of projects culminates in students developing a public relations proposal for a non-profit organization. Formerly CM 373

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Strategic Advertising minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MAPH 221 - Introduction to Documentary Photography

Introduces students to documentary photography as it exists in the digital age. Topics covered include the history of documentary photography, 35mm camera operation, digital camera operation, and the ethical, legal, and strategic issues of contemporary journalism. Students create documentary photographic projects utilizing both traditional and digital photographic techniques. Formerly PF 220

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication majors. Not open to Photography majors or Foundation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 101 - Visual Communication Studio

All communication takes place through language. However, not all language uses words. This course allows students to harness the power of visual language in order to convey messages and meaning. The elements of drawing and two-dimensional design that are covered include point, line, shape, composition, texture, color, type, and image. Although non-digital mediums are addressed, the exploration of digital tools for the screen is a primary goal. Individual creativity is stressed. Formerly MM 110

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 111 - Introduction to Interface Design

The software interface represents the focal point of user interaction with the various modes of multimedia communication. Readings by interface theorists inform discussions on the evolution of the software interface, conceptual models, prototypes, interaction design, deliverables, and basic concepts of human-computer interaction. Avenues for pursuing interactive media design in entertainment, publishing, and education are also addressed. Current technologies, including the trend from soft to hard interfaces are studied, in terms of their potential short- and long-term influence on communication and multimedia. Basic methods for rapid prototyping and testing are considered. Formerly MM 121

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 131 - Introduction to Interactive Programming

This course is an introductory programming class, appropriate for students with no prior programming experience. Traditionally, introductory programming teaches algorithmic problem-solving, where a sequence of instructions describe the steps necessary to achieve a desired result. In this course, students are trained to go beyond this sequential thinking – to think concurrently and modularly. By its end, students are empowered to write and read code for event-driven graphical user interfaces, client server chat programs, networked video games, and user interfaces. Formerly MM 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 220 - Writing for Film

A writing class introducing students to the basic elements of screenwriting. These include three act structure, creating a character, act design, and scene structure. Students complete a short screenplay by the end of the semester. Formerly WM 219

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

CMMC 313 - Digital Editing

This course, building on the skill set of video production workshop, will introduce students to the theory and practice of digital video editing.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 102

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 201 - Introduction to Photography I

Introduction to basic concepts, processes, and techniques of black-and-white photography, including camera operation, exposure, darkroom procedures, lighting, and their controlled applications of these techniques. Emphasis is upon the normative standard of photographic rendering. Formerly PF 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite for all upper-level photography courses. Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts, Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Students will be required to take both courses:

LALL 807 - Spanish I

This introduction to Spanish is open to students who have had little to no previous Spanish language experience. In this course, the fundamentals of Spanish grammar, pronunciation and Spanish culture are introduced. Students will develop listening comprehension, speaking and writing skills. Emphasis on conversational Spanish.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 907 - Spanish III

An accelerated course which reviews the basic principles of the Spanish language for students with some background of high school Spanish or Spanish I and II at UArts. Spanish grammar and culture are introduced in the context of short literacy readings, and articles from newspapers and periodicals. This course helps students develop listening comprehension, speaking, reading, and writing skills. It is given predominantly in Spanish.

CMMC 350 - Gender Images in Media

Explores representation of gender and sexuality in the media over the past century and how images of male and female both follow and create social change. Formerly CM 350

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

CMMC 352 - Communication Theories and Culture

An intellectual history of influential 20th-century theories of communication, with a focus on the relationships between media and culture. This course reviews critical intellectual developments in the field against the backdrop of public events, social movements, and the changing daily lives of people in diverse places. How communication systems shape the course of public and private lives and how changes in communication reshaped the way we theorize about the world and the field are examined. Students read primary material in its original form, view media examples, write short position papers reflecting communication theory and culture, and complete a term paper. Formerly CM 251

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

CMMC 460 - Current Issues in Communication

Explores the changing landscape of ethical and policy issues in communication from a critical and intellectual perspective, with a focus on emerging issues driven by the shift to digital media (image ethics and manipulation, intellectual property, changing nature of distribution, etc.). Building on previous coursework and studio experiences, students read material from current literature and write reflective and research-based papers on selected issues. Guest speakers in the various industries and independent sectors provide a real-world perspective on how these issues affect professional practice. Formerly CM 435

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 150 - Information Concepts

Emphasis is on the importance of organizing and communicating information in a digital world. Students acquire a basic understanding of how computers operate and communicate with each other, as well as an understanding of the evolution of the personal computer and the industries that have spun out of this technology. Student assignments include readings, database projects, and written analyses. Formerly MM 130

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 250 - Survey of Multimedia

Examines the chronological evolution of digital technology and its inevitable application by the aesthetic community. Beginning with the development of digital technology in the mid-1940s, the course discusses the convergence of the scientific, military, and political environments that spawned the employment of digital technology, including the path that led to the digital dominance over analog. Includes the enhancement, exploitation, and embracing of digital technology by the corporate and aesthetic communities, the invention of the personal computer and its ancillary products, and the application of digital technologies in fields as diverse as medicine, communications, manufacturing, cognitive psychology, and in particular, the arts. Pioneers in all fields are identified and examined. Formerly MM 271

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 353 - Psychology of Human/Computer Interaction

Students explore the ways humans perceive interacting with computers. How do humans treat computers? Why? Should we interact with them the same way we do with other humans? The reasons behind why some computer interfaces work and some do not are discussed in depth. Should computers be able to perceive our emotions? Or should computers themselves have emotions? The final for this course allows students to take part in designing an original interface solution. Formerly MM 360

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 354 - Game Play

A lecture-based focus on the human behavior in the how and why of play and creativity. Course material examines the relationship between creativity and play, the effects of reward and punishment, cultural notions of play, and the integration of play with design play. Students examine the differences between informed and uninformed play as well as the phenomenon of flow. Formerly MM 342

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 242 - Film Story Analysis

The course examines various narrative film genres, identifying the unique and distinctive qualities of screenwriting conventions utilized. Screenings and analysis highlight the devices employed by screenwriters to tell a good story. Weekly screenings followed by critical papers of each screening. Formerly WM 343

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LASS 831 - Money Matters

Explores issues in economics and business by working out from the roles and interests of individual agents and groups. We look at economic dynamics in artistic and cultural work in the present, and at different historical moments, to explore further the nature of these relationships and their meanings. Students are exposed to economic and business discourse, provided with a broad and intensive understanding of economic and business language and logic, given experience in the application of these concepts to the issues in their field of interest, and provide a foundation for thinking through the economic and ethical dimensions of their work. Formerly HU 272

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 854 - Analyzing Talk

This course asks: what can be learned by listening, recording, and analyzing human communication. Much like the interdisciplinary course "Observing Humans," "Analyzing Talk" will involve student-led field work in a location chosen by the student. This is a course primarily about the study of power and culture; the students will be learning about patterned power dynamics through the frameworks of gender, race, ethnicity, class and age. Speech, paralinguistics, gesture, and posture are the focus as the course introduces classics in sociolinguistics, semiotics, and video ethnography. Like music, drama, and choreography, and visual art, human talk can be analyzed both aesthetically and structurally. Framed by the media available of its time, "Analyzing Talk" will cover speech and gesture research and will ask how media extends and limits the questions of a particular age. Classics in documentary film will augment the course.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 922 - Politics and the Media

This course analyzes how political and social forces interact with the American community and how that interaction affects government structure and policy. Factors such as population profiles, suburbanites, elite groups, public opinion, party organization, elections, and reform movements are studied. Formerly HU 359

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 925 - Mass Media and the Arts

The purpose of this course is to develop an understanding of mass media and popular culture, primarily in the United States since the 1890s. Various forms of mass media are defined and the shared techniques by which these forms seek to communicate are analyzed. Finally, the values, both aesthetic and social, embodied in both these media and popular culture are examined in relation to social and economic change. Formerly HU 390

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Areas of Application

Majors in Communication must take two of the following areas of application (9 credits each; 18 credits total)

Advertising

Prepares students to be copywriters, creative directors and producers.

CMMC 221 - Advertising: Creative Concepts I

Whether an advertisement appears in print, on television or radio, or on the Internet, it is built around an idea. Students learn to recognize and create strong advertising ideas that are relevant to the product and the audience, with an emphasis on print advertising. Students learn how to allow their creativity to be guided by strategy. Students are exposed to outstanding creative work and readings in their texts and from studying professional work. They then apply these principles as they create advertising of their own. Formerly CM 271

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Strategic Advertising minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 321 - Advertising Strategy Development

The business side of creative advertising. Examines the functions of the various departments within an advertising agency, focusing on strategic development, and introduces the three key steps in that development-market segmentation, brand positioning, and research. Students learn a variety of qualitative and quantitative research methods and analytical methods and apply what they have learned by developing and presenting an advertising strategy for an actual product. Formerly CM 371

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Strategic Advertising minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

CMMC 322 - Advertising: Creative Concepts II

Having learned how to create strong individual concepts, students create broader and deeper concepts that can form the basis for a number of ads and learn how to execute an idea in more than one medium. The course begins by examining award-winning print campaigns in order to recognize suitable ideas for multi-ad campaigns; to identify elements and themes and their grounding in research; and to understand the consumer. The course then examines how interactive media are being used to build customer relationships and brand identities, and explores the strategic functions of these new media. Students develop storyboards for a product or service that reinforces that product's existing brand personality. Formerly CM 372

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 221

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Strategic Advertising minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Documentary Video

Prepares students for careers in documentary production, educational media, news feature production, corporate media, and television commercial production.

CMMC 341 - Documentary Media Production I

The conceptual, aesthetic, and pragmatic dimensions of producing video documentaries. Students are exposed to examples of a variety of documentary approaches through screenings and readings, which illustrate the range of choices and creative possibilities of communicating information and emotion through this form. They are also introduced to advanced digital video technologies as they work through a series of structured exercises and later work in teams to develop documentary projects. Project work includes pre-production research, interviews, original shooting in small crews, editing, and presenting finished work. Formerly CM 391

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 342 - Documentary Media Production II

Develops a deeper understanding of the pragmatic, conceptual, and aesthetic dimensions of producing documentary video and audio. Contemporary issues and approaches in documentary media-making through screenings and readings. Students achieve increased mastery of advanced digital video technologies and work through a series of project stages for a medium-length documentary. Students are responsible for completing their own projects, presenting them to their colleagues, and collaborating on other students' projects. Formerly CM 392

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 341

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 313 - Digital Editing

This course, building on the skill set of video production workshop, will introduce students to the theory and practice of digital video editing.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 102

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Game Design

Prepares students for online advertising, interactive Web drama and interactive art, electronic publishing, and the game industry.

MMDI 212 - Game Design Studio

This course focuses on creating interactive games and exploring the concepts and practical application of game design. Games are developed for the Web, computer, and nondigital mediums. Course activities include lectures and studio practice, including completion of assignments, exercises, and projects. Individual creativity is stressed, as well as collaborative game development skills. Students leave the course having produced several games. Formerly MM 222

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 245 - Writing for Games

A writing laboratory that allows students to develop competency in writing rule-based procedural description as well evocative storylines for games and user/play scenarios. Special emphasis is placed on the difference in writing required between game types (chance, puzzles, and strategies) as well as game genres such as role-playing, twitch, and games of perfect information. Formerly MM 240

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 335 - Programming for Games

An introduction to programming for interactive game environments. Students learn techniques and theory through exercises and applications that they construct. The programming language studied can change each semester and may include: FlashAction Scripting, Advanced Lingo for Games, C++, or Java. Formerly MM 341

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Media Studies

Prepares students to develop critical skills addressing issues in media.

Select one course from the following list of courses:

CMMC 351 - History of Documentary

Introduces the historical and aesthetic sweep of approaches to documentary film and video. Through extensive screenings and readings, this survey opens the range of choices and creative possibilities for documentary while understanding aesthetic conventions, technological limitations, and social history. In addition to attending screenings and discussion, students write two short papers and one longer term paper. Formerly CM 293

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 250 - Survey of Multimedia

Examines the chronological evolution of digital technology and its inevitable application by the aesthetic community. Beginning with the development of digital technology in the mid-1940s, the course discusses the convergence of the scientific, military, and political environments that spawned the employment of digital technology, including the path that led to the digital dominance over analog. Includes the enhancement, exploitation, and embracing of digital technology by the corporate and aesthetic communities, the invention of the personal computer and its ancillary products, and the application of digital technologies in fields as diverse as medicine, communications, manufacturing, cognitive psychology, and in particular, the arts. Pioneers in all fields are identified and examined. Formerly MM 271

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 252 - Narrative Cinema II

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 252

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 253 - History of Television

Provides an overview of the medium of television. The impact of television since its inception has become increasingly pervasive and has influenced an entire society through its ability to educate and entertain. Video examples of the medium are supplemented by class discussion and reading assignments. Formerly WM 253

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to CMAC majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one course from the following list of courses:

CMMC 350 - Gender Images in Media

Explores representation of gender and sexuality in the media over the past century and how images of male and female both follow and create social change. Formerly CM 350

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 150 - Information Concepts

Emphasis is on the importance of organizing and communicating information in a digital world. Students acquire a basic understanding of how computers operate and communicate with each other, as well as an understanding of the evolution of the personal computer and the industries that have spun out of this technology. Student assignments include readings, database projects, and written analyses. Formerly MM 130

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 951 - Technology, Culture and Society

This course explores the complex relationship among technology, cultural paradigms, and popular consciousness. We study and analyze such questions as “What is technology?”; “Does technology necessarily imply progress?”; and “How does technology define reality?” Students examine these and other related themes through readings and other media. Formerly HU 396

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 922 - Politics and the Media

This course analyzes how political and social forces interact with the American community and how that interaction affects government structure and policy. Factors such as population profiles, suburbanites, elite groups, public opinion, party organization, elections, and reform movements are studied. Formerly HU 359

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one course from the list of Media Studies courses above:

Narrative Video

Prepares students to be editors, producers, and directors for television, film, and commercials, sound recordists, and production managers.

CMMC 311 - Narrative Video Production Workshop

An opportunity to develop an understanding of and experience in producing narrative-based video projects. Students begin by reading essays and articles, screening scenes from films and television shows, and reviewing technical language and concepts. They learn to translate script ideas into production proposals, making clear how story ideas, characters, action, and point of view will be rendered in sound and image. Working both on their own projects and as team members, they plan production specifics and shoot/record and edit short narrative pieces in their medium and style of choice. Students present stages of production work, from planning to script to rushes to stages of edited material. Formerly CM 295

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: CMMC 101 or CMMC 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Narrative Video minors. Repeatable for credit

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 312 - Advanced Narrative Video Production

Students complete a twenty-minute narrative film, emphasizing their role as director and storyteller. A script must be submitted and approved before entering the course.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 311, WRIT 220, or THEA 152

A script must be submitted and approved before entering the course.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 313 - Digital Editing

This course, building on the skill set of video production workshop, will introduce students to the theory and practice of digital video editing.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 102

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Professional Writing

Prepares students to be writers in non-fiction for publication in magazines and the Web.

CMMC 460 - Current Issues in Communication

Explores the changing landscape of ethical and policy issues in communication from a critical and intellectual perspective, with a focus on emerging issues driven by the shift to digital media (image ethics and manipulation, intellectual property, changing nature of distribution, etc.). Building on previous coursework and studio experiences, students read material from current literature and write reflective and research-based papers on selected issues. Guest speakers in the various industries and independent sectors provide a real-world perspective on how these issues affect professional practice. Formerly CM 435

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 381 - Writing for the Web

Students address the special opportunities and challenges of writing for online publication. In addition to developing the general skills of writing, editing and re-writing, they develop those writing skills particularly useful for web-based self-publishing (building one's own Website) and publishing through existing Internet publications. Through a series of exercises, they write features and "soft" news, Op-Ed letters, first-person essays, profiles, and reviews fitted for an online audience, while also learning how to pitch story ideas and work under deadlines. They also learn how to take advantage of the collaborative processes by experiencing the brainstorming process of editorial meetings. Formerly CMMC 381.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 204

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 382 - Writing for Magazines

This course develops the skills of writing for print publications, especially magazines. Students write and edit articles of the following types: features and "soft" news, Op-Ed letters, first-person narrative essays, profiles, and reviews. In addition to working on their writing through revision, editing, and collaboration, they learn how to identify a target magazine, how to brainstorm publication ideas, make a pitch, meet deadlines, as well as be introduced to the business life of the freelance writer. Formerly CMMC 382.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 381

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hr

Screenwriting

Prepares students to be screenwriters, producers, story analysts, and film/TV executives, corporate videographers or producers in advertising and the media.

WRIT 212 - Screenwriting II

An intensive screenwriting workshop where, in the first semester, students study scene structure and dialogue, and write a series of outlines for an hour-long screenplay. In the second semester, students write an hour-long screenplay and revise the script. Formerly WM 215

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211 or WRIT 220

Priority enrollment to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 241 - Screenplay Analysis

A course devoted to the critical analysis of screenplays. Students are required to read numerous scripts and write critical papers on various dramatic structural principles highlighted. Formerly WM 243

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211 or WRIT 220

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 327 - Episodic Television Writing I

An intensive writing class that analyzes the specific genre of episodic television writing. Students view examples of various genres in the form, and work in teams to create original written work. Three major projects are completed over the course of the semester, including creating an original series pilot. Formerly WM 317

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: WRIT 212 or WRIT 220

Priority enrollment to Writing for Film/TV majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

Web Design

Prepares students to work in advertising agencies and in corporate and institutional settings.

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 241 - Interactive Narrative

Introduces students to new ways of thinking about interactivity and storytelling. Students analyze how the interactive structure of an experience creates narrative. Short readings discussed in class range from Surrealist Dada and Fluxus language games to the experimental literature of Joyce and Burroughs to the literary theory of Barthes and Eco. Students examine contemporary examples of interactive media such as avatars, virtual realities, role-playing games and Internet sites. Formerly MM 223

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 315 - Advanced Interface Seminar

A seminar course that builds on Introduction to Interface Design. Focuses on the issues involved in creating user interfaces in today's development platforms (hardware, software, input devices, cell phones, etc.). Lectures, discussions, readings, research, and writing constitute the body of this course. In addition to current interface trends, the process of developing the interfaces of tomorrow is addressed. Formerly MM 320

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Webcasting

Prepares students to develop media strategies for digital distribution.

CMMC 206 - Webcasting II

WEBCASTING II is a production workshop that offers an advanced level of media production methods for different online distribution methods. Students will learn to develop all aspects of interactive streaming, from media production, to server configuration, to front-end programming and social networking. The course will focus more on the technology rather than the content. We will be experimenting with various new technologies such as FLASH Movies, JAVA based players, and VideoLAN. We will also be incorporating alternative input devices for the streaming part of the class such as wireless video cameras, simple FLASH-based animation, and other methods that expand the type of streaming experience that can be created.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 205

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

CMMC 3XX - Digital Distribution

Take one Digital distribution course.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs.

MMDI 250 - Survey of Multimedia

Examines the chronological evolution of digital technology and its inevitable application by the aesthetic community. Beginning with the development of digital technology in the mid-1940s, the course discusses the convergence of the scientific, military, and political environments that spawned the employment of digital technology, including the path that led to the digital dominance over analog. Includes the enhancement, exploitation, and embracing of digital technology by the corporate and aesthetic communities, the invention of the personal computer and its ancillary products, and the application of digital technologies in fields as diverse as medicine, communications, manufacturing, cognitive psychology, and in particular, the arts. Pioneers in all fields are identified and examined. Formerly MM 271

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Documentary Video Minor

The minor in Documentary Video provides instruction in the making of creative non-fiction stories, essays, and informational programs, primarily in video form. It is designed for students who wish to augment their studies in a related field. Through this minor, students learn to document the lives and narratives of people and places, portray historical, political and contemporary events, present information in accessible and stimulating forms, and make persuasive arguments, as well as learn the skills related to documentary production. Communication majors may not declare a Documentary Video minor.

Requirements for the Minor

- Elective Credits: 3 cr
(To be determined with minor advisor)

CMMC 341 - Documentary Media Production I

The conceptual, aesthetic, and pragmatic dimensions of producing video documentaries. Students are exposed to examples of a variety of documentary approaches through screenings and readings, which illustrate the range of choices and creative possibilities of communicating information and emotion through this form. They are also introduced to advanced digital video technologies as they work through a series of structured exercises and later work in teams to develop documentary projects. Project work includes pre-production research, interviews, original shooting in small crews, editing, and presenting finished work. Formerly CM 391

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 342 - Documentary Media Production II

Develops a deeper understanding of the pragmatic, conceptual, and aesthetic dimensions of producing documentary video and audio. Contemporary issues and approaches in documentary media-making through screenings and readings. Students achieve increased mastery of advanced digital video technologies and work through a series of project stages for a medium-length documentary. Students are responsible for completing their own projects, presenting them to their colleagues, and collaborating on other students' projects. Formerly CM 392

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 341

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 351 - History of Documentary

Introduces the historical and aesthetic sweep of approaches to documentary film and video. Through extensive screenings and readings, this survey opens the range of choices and creative possibilities for documentary while understanding aesthetic conventions, technological limitations, and social history. In addition to attending screenings and discussion, students write two short papers and one longer term paper. Formerly CM 293

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one of the following:

CMMC 103 - Sound Communication

This introduction to the field of sound communication enables students to conceptualize the importance of sound in cultural life and prepares them in practical approaches to field recording and working with various types of sound. A survey of approaches to sound as a social communication through readings and a broad range of audio examples, including documentary, journalistic, theatrical, and experimental approaches. Training in digital and audio field and post-production equipment and complete practical field exercises and an intensive sound project. Formerly CM 120

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication and Film/Digital Video majors; and Narrative Video and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

MAFL 311 - Sync-Sound for Narrative Film

Students in this course explore creative sound design in finished films with instruction and practice in the use of sound recording equipment, sound transfers, building and editing multiple synchronous sound tracks, and preparing for the sound mix. Students work in groups to create and complete a five-minute sync sound film that incorporates the concept of "sound design." Formerly PF 320

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

E-Music Minor - CMAC

The minor in E-Music offers students majoring in either Multimedia or Music an opportunity to create electronic and experimental music, to develop skills that allow them to produce, package, and distribute music by using internet technologies, and to design electronic instrumental interfaces. The minor prepares students for a variety of highly entrepreneurial careers ranging from entertainment and product development to creative and production work in the recording and musical fields. This minor is only available to students majoring in Multimedia or Music. Specific requirements for Music majors can be found in the School of Music section of this catalog.

Requirements for the Minor

Requirements for Multimedia students:

MMDI 330 - E-Music Thesis Project

A culminating course for students in the E-Music minor in which they develop an application. Students develop a proposal for an application and carry the idea through research implementation, execution, and presentation. With the consent of the instructor, projects may be the work of one student or that of a group of students, be in a variety of shapes, and in a variety of media. Students must have completed E-Music minor requirements. Formerly MM 370

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of other Minor courses.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 405 - Innovative Interfaces

The notion of the digital environment transcends the concept of the computer as we know it. These addresses and environments, although supported by digital technology, are non-computer-like in many respects. Building them calls for changes in the choice of interaction devices (using touch, voice, gestures, and possibly just user's intent as a basis for interaction), shape and size of computers (no boxes, but interactive surfaces), their location (floor, wall, pocket), as well as change in content structure. Using cross-disciplinary data from cognitive and computer sciences and social psychology, the students in this research/studio course focus primarily on the design and development of innovative ways of interacting with digital technology. Formerly MM 440

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MUNM 123 - Piano Class for Non-Majors

One-hour class of piano instruction in traditional beginning piano. Coursework includes basic technique including scales, chords, and chord melodies. Formerly MU 130A

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Music majors specializing in piano. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUNM 124 - Piano Class for Non-Majors

One-hour class of piano instruction in traditional beginning piano. Coursework includes basic technique including scales, chords, and chord melodies. Formerly MU 130B

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Music majors specializing in piano. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUNM 131 - Composition for Non-Majors

Students develop basic skills in various aspects of composition, including form, melody, harmony, rhythm, color, texture, notation, improvisation, and orchestration. Formerly MU 111A

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Composition majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUNM 132 - Composition for Non-Majors

Students develop basic skills in various aspects of composition, including form, melody, harmony, rhythm, color, texture, notation, improvisation, and orchestration. Formerly MU 111B

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Composition majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUSC 461 - Recording I

A study of the recording process and the many facets of the recording studio. Designed to familiarize the student with conventional and creative recording techniques through practical experience in the studio. Formerly MU 413A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

Select one of the following Music History courses:

MUSC 353 - History of Rock Music

This course investigates the History of Rock from its inception in the 1950s to the present. It begins with the important antecedents of Rock and Roll and then historically traces the various styles that evolved from that time to the present. There are live demonstrations and illustrations by guests in class. Formerly MU 306

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 452 - American Music History

The development of both classical and popular American musical styles from the seventeenth to the twentieth century. Recordings and films as well as in-class performances help bring to life the music from our American past. Students gain a clear understanding of the social, historical, and musical time line that evolved into our current musical environment. Formerly MU 401B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 453 - World Music

Covers the classical and folk music of various countries in Asia, Indonesia, the Middle East, Africa, and the Western Hemisphere. Formerly MU 402

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 455 - Twentieth Century Music

A study of the theoretical bases of such twentieth century composers as Schonberg, Berg, Webern, Stravinsky, Hindemith, Bartok, Varese, and Messiaen. Formerly MU 411

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 459 - Mixed Media Musical Masters

Formerly MU 428

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

E-Publishing Minor

The minor in E-Publishing provides students with skills connected to both the craft and business of writing and publishing online. This minor provides students with an opportunity to strengthen their journalistic and expository writing styles especially as used in electronic media, while also learning the basics of the business of establishing a Website, Webzine, Web radio, or Weblog. The skills learned are useful for students who are interested in online publishing as an independent publisher or freelance writer, as well as those who wish to work with online publishing enterprises. Majors in Communication may not declare an E-Publishing minor.

Requirements for the Minor

- Elective Credits: 3 cr
(To be determined by minor advisor)

CMMC 331 - Digital Journalism I

The primary skills and practices involved in constructing news for the online environment. Begins with an exploration of the evolution of journalism from print to online and digital forms. By looking critically at a range of journalistic examples and reading about the changing work of reporting, students grapple with the differences between traditional and new media forms of journalism and begin to learn the practice of reporting online. They work through a set of exercises researching story ideas, pitching them to the class, conducting interviews, and writing, designing, and posting short pieces for the Web, introducing them to the possibilities and constraints of working in this medium. Formerly CM 381

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and E-Publishing minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 415 - E-Publishing Thesis Project

This studio class allows students to complete a project and publish it online. Students examine the sub-field of e-publishing that their project fits within, researching relevant models and examples, write a business plan for their project, consider intellectual property questions raised by their project, complete and present their thesis project, and write a reflective paper about their project. Formerly CM 340

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of minor

Open to students in the E-Publishing minor only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 831 - Money Matters

Explores issues in economics and business by working out from the roles and interests of individual agents and groups. We look at economic dynamics in artistic and cultural work in the present, and at different historical moments, to explore further the nature of these relationships and their meanings. Students are exposed to economic and business discourse, provided with a broad and intensive understanding of economic and business language and logic, given experience in the application of these concepts to the issues in their field of interest, and provide a foundation for thinking through the economic and ethical dimensions of their work. Formerly HU 272

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one of the following:

MMDI 131 - Introduction to Interactive Programming

This course is an introductory programming class, appropriate for students with no prior programming experience. Traditionally, introductory programming teaches algorithmic problem-solving, where a sequence of instructions describe the steps necessary to achieve a desired result. In this course, students are trained to go beyond this sequential thinking – to think concurrently and modularly. By its end, students are empowered to write and read code for event-driven graphical user interfaces, client server chat programs, networked video games, and user interfaces. Formerly MM 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Not applicable as minor credit for Multimedia majors

Game Design Minor

The minor in Game Design explores the principles that inform games – how they work, how to make them, why they are important, and how they help us understand our world and social interactions. Students learn to construct logical narratives and rules that make possible the creation of an active space in which gaming can take place. Using skills based upon interface and experience design, students program, write, and design interactive games. Upon completing the minor, students will have completed a fully functional prototype of an original game. Because of the structure of their major, Communication majors may not declare a minor within CMAC.

Requirements for the Minor

- Elective Credits: 3 cr
To be determined with minor advisor; must be fulfilled with MM 121 for Writing for Film and Television majors.

MMDI 245 - Writing for Games

A writing laboratory that allows students to develop competency in writing rule-based procedural description as well evocative storylines for games and user/play scenarios. Special emphasis is placed on the difference in writing required between game types (chance, puzzles, and strategies) as well as game genres such as role-playing, twitch, and games of perfect information. Formerly MM 240

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 305 - Game Design Thesis

Students complete a fully marketable game prototype. Students and instructors examine how the gaming industry functions as well as research and develop an individual work. Special attention is paid to preparing to enter the field. Students must have completed Game Design minor requirements. Formerly MM 344

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Minor.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 354 - Game Play

A lecture-based focus on the human behavior in the how and why of play and creativity. Course material examines the relationship between creativity and play, the effects of reward and punishment, cultural notions of play, and the integration of play with design play. Students examine the differences between informed and uninformed play as well as the phenomenon of flow. Formerly MM 342

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one of the following:

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Not applicable as minor credit for Multimedia majors.

MMDI 212 - Game Design Studio

This course focuses on creating interactive games and exploring the concepts and practical application of game design. Games are developed for the Web, computer, and nondigital mediums. Course activities include lectures and studio practice, including completion of assignments, exercises, and projects. Individual creativity is stressed, as well as collaborative game development skills. Students leave the course having produced several games. Formerly MM 222

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Not applicable as minor credit for Multimedia majors

MMDI 335 - Programming for Games

An introduction to programming for interactive game environments. Students learn techniques and theory through exercises and applications that they construct. The programming language studied can change each semester and may include: FlashAction Scripting, Advanced Lingo for Games, C++, or Java. Formerly MM 341

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Information Architecture Minor

The minor in Information Architecture shows students how designed information creates meaning. Students develop an understanding of user workflow, information design, and interactivity. They learn to create easy-to-use interfaces and information spaces. The program has been created for students interested in developing database driven Web-based solutions, as well as other vehicles whose purpose is to deliver information clearly and efficiently. Students also have the opportunity to develop content management systems for the Web, a highly marketable and in demand skill. Majors in Multimedia or Communication may not declare a minor in Information Architecture.

Requirements for the Minor

MMDI 111 - Introduction to Interface Design

The software interface represents the focal point of user interaction with the various modes of multimedia communication. Readings by interface theorists inform discussions on the evolution of the software interface, conceptual models, prototypes, interaction design, deliverables, and basic concepts of human-computer interaction. Avenues for pursuing interactive media design in entertainment, publishing, and education are also addressed. Current technologies, including the trend from soft to hard interfaces are studied, in terms of their potential short- and long-term influence on communication and multimedia. Basic methods for rapid prototyping and testing are considered. Formerly MM 121

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 131 - Introduction to Interactive Programming

This course is an introductory programming class, appropriate for students with no prior programming experience. Traditionally, introductory programming teaches algorithmic problem-solving, where a sequence of instructions describe the steps necessary to achieve a desired result. In this course, students are trained to go beyond this sequential thinking – to think concurrently and modularly. By its end, students are empowered to write and read code for event-driven graphical user interfaces, client server chat programs, networked video games, and user interfaces. Formerly MM 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 150 - Information Concepts

Emphasis is on the importance of organizing and communicating information in a digital world. Students acquire a basic understanding of how computers operate and communicate with each other, as well as an understanding of the evolution of the personal computer and the industries that have spun out of this technology. Student assignments include readings, database projects, and written analyses. Formerly MM 130

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following two:

MMDI 231 - Dynamic Web Development

Creating dynamic web solutions is an essential aspect of web development today. In this course, students build upon existing concepts learned in Intro to Interactive Programming. The focus is on client and server side programming and relational database design for the web. Examples of dynamic web applications include context management systems, custom audio and video players, and e-commerce solutions.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 131

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

or

MMDI 241 - Interactive Narrative

Introduces students to new ways of thinking about interactivity and storytelling. Students analyze how the interactive structure of an experience creates narrative. Short readings discussed in class range from Surrealist Dada and Fluxus language games to the experimental literature of Joyce and Burroughs to the literary theory of Barthes and Eco. Students examine contemporary examples of interactive media such as avatars, virtual realities, role-playing games and Internet sites. Formerly MM 223

Freshman Year Credits: 33

Fall Credits: 16.5

- CMAC Core/Discipline History (see list below) Credits: 3 cr
- Elective Credits: 1.5 cr

MMDI 101 - Visual Communication Studio

All communication takes place through language. However, not all language uses words. This course allows students to harness the power of visual language in order to convey messages and meaning. The elements of drawing and two-dimensional design that are covered include point, line, shape, composition, texture, color, type, and image. Although non-digital mediums are addressed, the exploration of digital tools for the screen is a primary goal. Individual creativity is stressed. Formerly MM 110

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 111 - Introduction to Interface Design

The software interface represents the focal point of user interaction with the various modes of multimedia communication. Readings by interface theorists inform discussions on the evolution of the software interface, conceptual models, prototypes, interaction design, deliverables, and basic concepts of human-computer interaction. Avenues for pursuing interactive media design in entertainment, publishing, and education are also addressed. Current technologies, including the trend from soft to hard interfaces are studied, in terms of their potential short- and long-term influence on communication and multimedia. Basic methods for rapid prototyping and testing are considered. Formerly MM 121

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 163 - Aural Concepts

For non-music majors. An introduction to the use of music and sound components of multimedia and their potential for enhancing communication. Recognizing the special background and needs of the non-music major student, the course examines the production of musical sound, basic notation and theory practices, and an in-depth overview of disparate musical styles illustrating the variety and depth of musical thought from around the world and its potential relationship to the visual image. Formerly MU 149A

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to majors in the School of Music. Priority enrollment to Multimedia majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 16.5

- Multimedia Seminar (see list below)
- Elective Credits: 1.5 cr

MMDI 102 - Motion Graphics Studio

Motion graphics can be found in a wide range of media: broadcast, Web, animation, and film to name a few. This course allows students to explore the elements of time and space to convey messages and meaning through type, image, and sound for the screen. Individual creativity is stressed as well as the understanding and use of an industry-standard software for developing motion graphics. Both collaborative and individual exercises and assignments are given. Formerly MM 111

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 101

MM 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 460 - Introduction to MIDI and Electronic Technology

A detailed "hands-on" examination of the use of computers in the present-day composition environment. The course includes the uses of a computer, the language of MIDI, sequencing, audio sampling, analog, digital, and other forms of synthesis, and a survey of currently available music software. Strategies and technology of scoring and synchronizing to the visual image is emphasized through a final project. No prior computer or synthesis experience is needed. Formerly MU 415A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Music and Multimedia majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one of the following:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

MMDI 220 - Documentation and Presentation

In this course, students learn how to document their work for professional presentation. It focuses on issues relating to digital documentation and includes skills such as documenting projects, cross platform digital presentation, editing trailers of videos and using a copy stand. Students document previously completed multimedia work and then present that work. Guest speakers augment classroom lectures and activities. Formerly MM 250

Prerequisites & Notes

Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

MMDI 320 - Business Seminar

In this course, students build on the skills learned in Documentation and Presentation. Students construct a digital portfolio of work that they have completed. They also create resumes, curriculum vitae, and project proposals. As part of this class, they participate in a mock interview for a job, go on an informational interview for an internship/job, and do a presentation in the form of their Multimedia Junior Review. Formerly MM 350

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

CMAC Core/Discipline History

(must take all three)

CMMC 353 - Media Industries

This course investigates the range of organizations and economic forces involved in media production. Includes diverse production models, from mainstream and corporate, to public sector, to alternative, and comparisons with media industries in other cultural settings. The course focuses on business and policy issues and considers examples of media practice from broadcast and cable news, advertising, Hollywood and independent cinema, public media, and new media industries. The course includes a final research project. Formerly CM 260

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to College of Media and Communication students.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 141 - Collaboration and Spontaneity

Through a series of exercises, class discussions, and readings, students explore what it means to work as part of a team. Students learn to develop environments in which the creative process is encouraged to unfold. The basic assumptions that affect the formation of collaborative groups, such as personal responsibility, authority relations, leadership issues, individual differences, competition, the development of norms, and the generation and uses of power, are experienced, explicated, and examined. Students work within this collaborative environment to explore the connections between spontaneous verbal and nonverbal communication. Formerly MM 150

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 141 - Storytelling: Theory and Practice

This course introduces students to storytelling as a way of structuring communication. Course material ranges from annual reports to ad campaigns to greeting cards to rap music to political campaigns, offering students an introduction to the many ways narrative can be exploited for a powerful effect. Students learn to apply theory and to explore the relationship of different types of media to different narrative forms. Formerly CMMC 141.

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to CMAC students.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Multimedia Core

(must take all three)

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 212 - Game Design Studio

This course focuses on creating interactive games and exploring the concepts and practical application of game design. Games are developed for the Web, computer, and nondigital mediums. Course activities include lectures and studio practice, including completion of assignments, exercises, and projects. Individual creativity is stressed, as well as collaborative game development skills. Students leave the course having produced several games. Formerly MM 222

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 301 - Interactive Sound and Video

The course deals with the experience of producing complete multimedia installation works in a project-based environment focusing on interactive sound and video. Lectures and meetings augment this studio course. Individual creativity is stressed as well as collaboration in the creation of works through individual and group projects. Assignments vary in scale, and focus on appropriate planning and information architecture, as well as acquisition and creation of content in various media. Authoring environments used include but are not limited to MAX MSP, Isadora, and Macromedia Director. Previously introduced concepts and technology are re-explored with an emphasis on integration and effectiveness in the communication of the concept of the piece. Formerly MM 310

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Studio Choice

(must take a minimum of two courses; 6 credits)

CMMC 102 - Video Production Workshop

Acquaints students with the fundamentals of visual storytelling by providing hands-on experience translating the written word into images and sounds. Areas of study include framing images, lighting, using off-screen space and sound, editing, and postproduction. Students integrate their own writing to produce some of these projects. Formerly CM 290

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication, Writing for Film and Television, and Theater Management and Production majors and Web Drama minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 103 - Sound Communication

This introduction to the field of sound communication enables students to conceptualize the importance of sound in cultural life and prepares them in practical approaches to field recording and working with various types of sound. A survey of approaches to sound as a social communication through readings and a broad range of audio examples, including documentary, journalistic, theatrical, and experimental approaches. Training in digital and audio field and post-production equipment and complete practical field exercises and an intensive sound project. Formerly CM 120

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication and Film/Digital Video majors; and Narrative Video and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

MAAN 232 - 2-D Computer Animation

Using both raster- and vector-based programs, students explore how to build 2D animation sequences in the computer and how to translate hand-drawn animation into digitally composited animated pieces. Traditional animation principles are expanded upon and reinforced using 2D computer graphics and editing programs. Digital imagery and sound are integrated in class assignments designed to explore a wide variety of 2D styles. Formerly PF 316

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 231 or MMDI 102

Priority enrollment to Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 331 - 3-D Computer Animation

Using industry-standard 3D computer software, students learn basic modeling, texturing, lighting, movement, and rendering techniques. This course prepares students for further 3D computer coursework and allow them to utilize 3D software in the development and creation of their Junior and Senior thesis work. Formerly PF 326

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 231 or MMDI 102

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 201 - Introduction to Film I

A hands-on introduction to the principles and techniques of media production: shooting 16mm film and digital video, developing a sensitivity to the nuances of movement, understanding lighting and exposure, composition, and the logic of editing. We also survey the historical and aesthetic development of the medium in order to expand the students' sense of the possibilities of the medium. Formerly PF 210A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 201 - Introduction to Photography I

Introduction to basic concepts, processes, and techniques of black-and-white photography, including camera operation, exposure, darkroom procedures, lighting, and their controlled applications of these techniques. Emphasis is upon the normative standard of photographic rendering. Formerly PF 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite for all upper-level photography courses. Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts, Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 201 - Visual Concepts Studio

Visual problem solving in a digital environment. A project-based visual art/design studio that builds on skills developed in Motion Graphics Studio. This course allows students the time to concentrate on and refine the visual communications aspects of their craft through three fully realized pieces. Projects are assigned by the instructor, and conceived of and developed by the students. Projects may include: titling design and animation, visual interface design, graphic design, CD packaging design, poster and postcard design, digital painting and drawing, etc. Formerly MM 210

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 102

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 405 - Innovative Interfaces

The notion of the digital environment transcends the concept of the computer as we know it. These addresses and environments, although supported by digital technology, are non-computer-like in many respects. Building them calls for changes in the choice of interaction devices (using touch, voice, gestures, and possibly just user's intent as a basis for interaction), shape and size of computers (no boxes, but interactive surfaces), their location (floor, wall, pocket), as well as change in content structure. Using cross-disciplinary data from cognitive and computer sciences and social psychology, the students in this research/studio course focus primarily on the design and development of innovative ways of interacting with digital technology. Formerly MM 440

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 111 - Dramatic Structure I

An intensive year-long writing course that introduces students to major principles of the three-act dramatic structure found in narrative screenplays. Topics of the course include sequences, creation of character, conflict, and setting. Students are required to complete focused and specific creative written work on a weekly basis. Workshops are held on a weekly basis. Formerly WM 113

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Writing for Film and Television and Discovery Year majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

Multimedia Seminars

(must take all five)

MMDI 150 - Information Concepts

Emphasis is on the importance of organizing and communicating information in a digital world. Students acquire a basic understanding of how computers operate and communicate with each other, as well as an understanding of the evolution of the personal computer and the industries that have spun out of this technology. Student assignments include readings, database projects, and written analyses. Formerly MM 130

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 250 - Survey of Multimedia

Examines the chronological evolution of digital technology and its inevitable application by the aesthetic community. Beginning with the development of digital technology in the mid-1940s, the course discusses the convergence of the scientific, military, and political environments that spawned the employment of digital technology, including the path that led to the digital dominance over analog. Includes the enhancement, exploitation, and embracing of digital technology by the corporate and aesthetic communities, the invention of the personal computer and its ancillary products, and the application of digital technologies in fields as diverse as medicine, communications, manufacturing, cognitive psychology, and in particular, the arts. Pioneers in all fields are identified and examined. Formerly MM 271

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 315 - Advanced Interface Seminar

A seminar course that builds on Introduction to Interface Design. Focuses on the issues involved in creating user interfaces in today's development platforms (hardware, software, input devices, cell phones, etc.). Lectures, discussions, readings, research, and writing constitute the body of this course. In addition to current interface trends, the process of developing the interfaces of tomorrow is addressed. Formerly MM 320

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 425 - Special Projects in Multimedia

This seminar is designed to give students direct contact with their soon-to-be peers in the various multimedia industries. The multimedia industries that may be covered include but are not limited to: fine art, interface design, installation art, game design, and electronic music. Timely and relevant issues concerning the craft, thought, and professional expectations of a multimedia artist/designer are the content of this course. Topics related to the multimedia industries in general and the instructor's specific industry experience are discussed. Readings, discussion, and a practical presentation or project make up the body of this course. Formerly MM 472

Prerequisites & Notes

Students must have completed the second semester of their Sophomore year (60 credits). May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 204 - Writing for Media

A studio writing class developing skills in effective, clear, and persuasive writing in the areas of media and communication. Students work from a variety of source materials and write research papers, project proposals, project treatments, and a newspaper feature. Emphasis is on writing structure and style, editing and revising, suitability to specific audiences, and delivering material on time and at prescribed lengths. Formerly CM 211 and CMMC 204.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to majors in the College of Media and Communication.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Popular electives for Multimedia students include:

From the College of Media and Communication:

CMMC 311 - Narrative Video Production Workshop

An opportunity to develop an understanding of and experience in producing narrative-based video projects. Students begin by reading essays and articles, screening scenes from films and television shows, and reviewing technical language and concepts. They learn to translate script ideas into production proposals, making clear how story ideas, characters, action, and point of view will be rendered in sound and image. Working both on their own projects and as team members, they plan production specifics and shoot/record and edit short narrative pieces in their medium and style of choice. Students present stages of production work, from planning to script to rushes to stages of edited material. Formerly CM 295

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: CMMC 101 or CMMC 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Narrative Video minors. Repeatable for credit

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 350 - Gender Images in Media

Explores representation of gender and sexuality in the media over the past century and how images of male and female both follow and create social change. Formerly CM 350

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 241 - Interactive Narrative

Introduces students to new ways of thinking about interactivity and storytelling. Students analyze how the interactive structure of an experience creates narrative. Short readings discussed in class range from Surrealist Dada and Fluxus language games to the experimental literature of Joyce and Burroughs to the literary theory of Barthes and Eco. Students examine contemporary examples of interactive media such as avatars, virtual realities, role-playing games and Internet sites. Formerly MM 223

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 499 - Multimedia Internship

Students are placed with regional companies to expose them to a professional work environment in the fields of multimedia, web design and information management. Formerly MM 499

Prerequisites & Notes

Student must have completed the first semester of their Sophomore year (45 credits). May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 1 - 6 cr

WRIT 253 - History of Television

Provides an overview of the medium of television. The impact of television since its inception has become increasingly pervasive and has influenced an entire society through its ability to educate and entertain. Video examples of the medium are supplemented by class discussion and reading assignments. Formerly WM 253

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to CMAC majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

From the College of Performing Arts:

DAPF 830 - Modern Ensemble

Formerly DA 773

Prerequisites & Notes

Repeatable for credit. Open by audition. Only open to students in the School of Dance.

Credits: 1 - 3 cr

MUNM 111 - Guitar Class for Non-Majors I

One-hour class of guitar instruction in contemporary guitar. Course covers basic technique including fingering, scales, chords, and chord melodies. Not open to music majors specializing in guitar. Formerly MU 123A

Prerequisites & Notes

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUNM 131 - Composition for Non-Majors

Students develop basic skills in various aspects of composition, including form, melody, harmony, rhythm, color, texture, notation, improvisation, and orchestration. Formerly MU 111A

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Composition majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUSC 461 - Recording I

A study of the recording process and the many facets of the recording studio. Designed to familiarize the student with conventional and creative recording techniques through practical experience in the studio. Formerly MU 413A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

THPD 123 - Scene & Lighting Technology

Introductory course in various phases of physical production dealing with the stage, house, backstage personnel and their duties, construction and painting of scenery, stage lighting, costumes, props, and makeup. Formerly TH 123

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: THPD 125

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

From the College of Art and Design:

FAPR 212 - Screenprinting

Introduction and investigation of stencil methods in screenprinting with water-based inks. Idea development and acquisition of visual skills in expression in color, line, and form through drawn, photographic, or computer-generated stencil processes. Formerly PR 202

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GDES 212 - Typography Fundamentals

The course addresses the basic formal language of typography and the application of typographic principles to frame basic communication messages. Typographic investigations are achieved by both manual and digital means. Formerly GD 212

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: Completion of Foundation or MMDI 101, MMDI 102

Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors and Typography minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

IDES 371 - Architectonics

An elective course intended as a multidisciplinary forum for the investigation, appreciation, and design of architectural space, structures, and systems. Using in-class exercises as a laboratory for creative and collaborative exchange, students learn alternative design processes, design vocabulary, user-centered experience and design. This course develops concepts and analytical studies of objects/spaces through various 2D and 3D drawing/modeling techniques and culminates in an actual built/alterd environment. Graduate students may register for this course under GRID 624. Formerly ID 312

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MACR 304 - Image and Performance

For artists and performers of all disciplines. An intensive cross-disciplinary workshop in which the students create their own short performance works using fusions of video, animation, dance, motion, and sound to explore the interactions between visual media and the performing arts. Formerly PF 331

Prerequisites & Notes

May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

From the Liberal Arts Department:

LAPR 951 - Art, Media and Society

A seminar exploring the identity crisis of the modern artist in the period since the industrial revolution and the rise of the middle class. Conflicts or collaborations between the fine arts and commercialism, including mass media and new technology, from Romanticism and the arts and crafts movement to Pop Art and the Web. Issues of authorship, production, quality, and permanence. Who determines taste, and why? Does high art have a future? Formerly HU 498

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 972 - Women and Sex Roles

An introduction to the history of women and to theories of gender. An interdisciplinary course combining history, literature, and the visual arts. Slide lectures on images of women in art, myth, and religions, from ancient times to modern. Economic and historical factors affecting how women have lived. Definitions of masculinity and femininity. The nature-nurture debate over hormonal differences. Formerly HU 497

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 876 - Psychology of Creativity

The course examines the problems involved in defining and attempting to measure creativity. The course is developmentally oriented, focusing on relationships between creativity and normal growth and development, and intelligence and personality. Problems that the artist encounters with productivity are explored, as well as the values of society toward creativity and the artist. Formerly HU 480

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LASS 871

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 931 - The City

A study of the city in history, the forces that shaped its development, and the impact the city has had on history. The American city from the seventeenth century to the present is used as the model for this study. Formerly HU 366

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Popular minors for Multimedia students include:

- E-music
- Game Design
- Narrative Video
- Photography
- Strategic Advertising
- Typography
- Web Design and Development

Multimedia Minor

The minor emphasizes the development of basic competencies in multimedia by offering students the ability to create media-rich, multisensorial, interactive experiences to complement their major course of study. The minor provides skills, concepts, and tools for students interested in multimedia as a creative and expressive art form. Majors in Multimedia and Communication may not declare a minor in Multimedia.

Requirements for the Minor

MMDI 101 - Visual Communication Studio

All communication takes place through language. However, not all language uses words. This course allows students to harness the power of visual language in order to convey messages and meaning. The elements of drawing and two-dimensional design that are covered include point, line, shape, composition, texture, color, type, and image. Although non-digital mediums are addressed, the exploration of digital tools for the screen is a primary goal. Individual creativity is stressed. Formerly MM 110

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 102 - Motion Graphics Studio

Motion graphics can be found in a wide range of media: broadcast, Web, animation, and film to name a few. This course allows students to explore the elements of time and space to convey messages and meaning through type, image, and sound for the screen. Individual creativity is stressed as well as the understanding and use of an industry-standard software for developing motion graphics. Both collaborative and individual exercises and assignments are given. Formerly MM 111

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 101

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 111 - Introduction to Interface Design

The software interface represents the focal point of user interaction with the various modes of multimedia communication. Readings by interface theorists inform discussions on the evolution of the software interface, conceptual models, prototypes, interaction design, deliverables, and basic concepts of human-computer interaction. Avenues for pursuing interactive media design in entertainment, publishing, and education are also addressed. Current technologies, including the trend from soft to hard interfaces are studied, in terms of their potential short- and long-term influence on communication and multimedia. Basic methods for rapid prototyping and testing are considered. Formerly MM 121

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 250 - Survey of Multimedia

Examines the chronological evolution of digital technology and its inevitable application by the aesthetic community. Beginning with the development of digital technology in the mid-1940s, the course discusses the convergence of the scientific, military, and political environments that spawned the employment of digital technology, including the path that led to the digital dominance over analog. Includes the enhancement, exploitation, and embracing of digital technology by the corporate and aesthetic communities, the invention of the personal computer and its ancillary products, and the application of digital technologies in fields as diverse as medicine, communications, manufacturing, cognitive psychology, and in particular, the arts. Pioneers in all fields are identified and examined. Formerly MM 271

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one of the following:

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 212 - Game Design Studio

This course focuses on creating interactive games and exploring the concepts and practical application of game design. Games are developed for the Web, computer, and nondigital mediums. Course activities include lectures and studio practice, including completion of assignments, exercises, and projects. Individual creativity is stressed, as well as collaborative game development skills. Students leave the course having produced several games. Formerly MM 222

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 301 - Interactive Sound and Video

The course deals with the experience of producing complete multimedia installation works in a project-based environment focusing on interactive sound and video. Lectures and meetings augment this studio course. Individual creativity is stressed as well as collaboration in the creation of works through individual and group projects. Assignments vary in scale, and focus on appropriate planning and information architecture, as well as acquisition and creation of content in various media. Authoring environments used include but are not limited to MAX MSP, Isadora, and Macromedia Director. Previously introduced concepts and technology are re-explored with an emphasis on integration and effectiveness in the communication of the concept of the piece. Formerly MM 310

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Narrative Video Minor - CMAC

The minor in Narrative Video explores digital video as a medium for storytelling. It introduces students to various aspects of video production, including scriptwriting, storyboarding, editing, sound design, directing, and producing. Students develop their skills as they advance from scene exercises through a short film to a final year-long project. Majors in Film/Digital Video may not declare a minor in Narrative Video.

Requirements for the Minor

CMMC 311 - Narrative Video Production Workshop

An opportunity to develop an understanding of and experience in producing narrative-based video projects. Students begin by reading essays and articles, screening scenes from films and television shows, and reviewing technical language and concepts. They learn to translate script ideas into production proposals, making clear how story ideas, characters, action, and point of view will be rendered in sound and image. Working both on their own projects and as team members, they plan production specifics and shoot/record and edit short narrative pieces in their medium and style of choice. Students present stages of production work, from planning to script to rushes to stages of edited material. Formerly CM 295

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: CMMC 101 or CMMC 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Narrative Video minors. Repeatable for credit

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 401 - Senior Cinema Production I

First part of a year-long course in which students produce their own thesis film or video. The students are also introduced to contemporary professional practices including resume writing, applying to film festivals, readings contracts, dealing with copyrights, and financing and distributing independent films. Formerly PF 410A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 311 or MAFL 302

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 402 - Senior Cinema Production II

Second part of a year-long course in which students produce their own film or video. The students are also introduced to contemporary professional practices including resume writing, applying to film festivals, readings contracts, dealing with copyrights, and financing and distributing independent films. Formerly PF 410B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 401

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 220 - Writing for Film

A writing class introducing students to the basic elements of screenwriting. These include three act structure, creating a character, act design, and scene structure. Students complete a short screenplay by the end of the semester. Formerly WM 219

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

Not applicable as minor credit for Writing for Film and Television majors. A production, film studies, or Liberal Arts film-related elective is taken instead and is to be determined with minor advisor.

Select one of the following:

CMMC 103 - Sound Communication

This introduction to the field of sound communication enables students to conceptualize the importance of sound in cultural life and prepares them in practical approaches to field recording and working with various types of sound. A survey of approaches to sound as a social communication through readings and a broad range of audio examples, including documentary, journalistic, theatrical, and experimental approaches. Training in digital and audio field and post-production equipment and complete practical field exercises and an intensive sound project. Formerly CM 120

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication and Film/Digital Video majors; and Narrative Video and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

MAFL 311 - Sync-Sound for Narrative Film

Students in this course explore creative sound design in finished films with instruction and practice in the use of sound recording equipment, sound transfers, building and editing multiple synchronous sound tracks, and preparing for the sound mix. Students work in groups to create and complete a five-minute sync sound film that incorporates the concept of "sound design." Formerly PF 320

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Electives

Recommended electives for Communication and Writing for Film and Television majors include:

CMMC 341 - Documentary Media Production I

The conceptual, aesthetic, and pragmatic dimensions of producing video documentaries. Students are exposed to examples of a variety of documentary approaches through screenings and readings, which illustrate the range of choices and creative possibilities of communicating information and emotion through this form. They are also introduced to advanced digital video technologies as they work through a series of structured exercises and later work in teams to develop documentary projects. Project work includes pre-production research, interviews, original shooting in small crews, editing, and presenting finished work. Formerly CM 391

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MACR 443 - Time: A Multidisciplinary Seminar

The concept of Time considered from a multidisciplinary perspective, drawing on readings in philosophy, literature, psychology, sociology, and film theory. Relevant works in film and video are screened. Students are responsible for a final term paper that interrelates two or more of the readings with one of the screened works. Formerly PF 424

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 302 or MAAN 302

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 460 - Professional Practices in Film/Digital Video

A series of mini seminars in various aspects of professional film and video production. Topics to be addressed include: studio operations, advanced sound recording, sound mixing, and gaffer and grip responsibilities. Independent producers are brought in to conduct workshops on topics of interest. This course supplements, but does not replace, Media Arts required courses. Formerly PF 423

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 302

Open to Film/Digital Video majors; and Film/Animation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 212 - Screenwriting II

An intensive screenwriting workshop where, in the first semester, students study scene structure and dialogue, and write a series of outlines for an hour-long screenplay. In the second semester, students write an hour-long screenplay and revise the script. Formerly WM 215

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211 or WRIT 220

Priority enrollment to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 225 - Interactive Writing I

The first semester of a year-long studio course that builds upon the basic principles of dramatic writing by identifying and utilizing the Web environment as a unique medium for narrative storytelling. Through analysis and written exercises, students learn how multiple story and character arcs are designed and supported by specific interactive storytelling models. Formerly WM 225

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211, WRIT 220 or MMDI 202.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 241 - Screenplay Analysis

A course devoted to the critical analysis of screenplays. Students are required to read numerous scripts and write critical papers on various dramatic structural principles highlighted. Formerly WM 243

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211 or WRIT 220

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 261 - Cinema Arts

Introduction to the various cinematic production values, which directly influence the character of the dramatic product. Topics of study include cinematography, art and production design, editing, and sound as they relate to the writer's intention, and the quality of the final product. Formerly WM 241

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Screenwriting Minor

The minor in Screenwriting provides instruction and applied experience in the craft of scriptwriting for motion pictures and episodic television. Topics include story structure, character, plot, beats, dramatic conflict, dialogue, and industry script formats. Students advance from scene exercises through short scripts to major, professional-length portfolio pieces. Majors in Writing for Film & Television and Communication may not declare a screenwriting minor.

Requirements for the Minor

WRIT 212 - Screenwriting II

An intensive screenwriting workshop where, in the first semester, students study scene structure and dialogue, and write a series of outlines for an hour-long screenplay. In the second semester, students write an hour-long screenplay and revise the script. Formerly WM 215

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211 or WRIT 220

Priority enrollment to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 220 - Writing for Film

A writing class introducing students to the basic elements of screenwriting. These include three act structure, creating a character, act design, and scene structure. Students complete a short screenplay by the end of the semester. Formerly WM 219

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 241 - Screenplay Analysis

A course devoted to the critical analysis of screenplays. Students are required to read numerous scripts and write critical papers on various dramatic structural principles highlighted. Formerly WM 243

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211 or WRIT 220

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one of the following sequences:

WRIT 311 - Advanced Screenwriting I

Studio writing course preparing the student for the entire process of crafting a full-length script for film. In the first semester, students develop a concept, pitch the project, prepare an outline/ treatment for a full-length work, and draft the first act. The second semester is devoted to the completion of the full-length work and the revision process. Formerly WM 321

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 212

Priority enrollment to Writing for Film/TV majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

and

WRIT 312 - Advanced Screenwriting II

Studio writing course preparing the student for the entire process of crafting a full-length script for film. In the first semester, students develop a concept, pitch the project, prepare an outline/ treatment for a full-length work, and draft the first act. The second semester is devoted to the completion of the full-length work and the revision process. Formerly WM 322

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 311

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs
or

WRIT 327 - Episodic Television Writing I

An intensive writing class that analyzes the specific genre of episodic television writing. Students view examples of various genres in the form, and work in teams to create original written work. Three major projects are completed over the course of the semester, including creating an original series pilot. Formerly WM 317

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: WRIT 212 or WRIT 220

Priority enrollment to Writing for Film/TV majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs
and

WRIT 328 - Episodic Television Writing II

Advanced studio writing course in which students outline and draft two full-length scripts for episodic television series. Formerly WM 318

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 327

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

Web Design and Development Minor

The minor in Web Design and Development provides the skills, concepts, and tools for students interested in acquiring the knowledge required of today's Web 2.0 processes and technologies. The skills learned enhance the preparedness of students wishing to create dynamic Web applications. This minor is only available to students majoring in Multimedia or students enrolled in Web Design minors.

Minor Requirements

CMMC 103 - Sound Communication

This introduction to the field of sound communication enables students to conceptualize the importance of sound in cultural life and prepares them in practical approaches to field recording and working with various types of sound. A survey of approaches to sound as a social communication through readings and a broad range of audio examples, including documentary, journalistic, theatrical, and experimental approaches. Training in digital and audio field and post-production equipment and complete practical field exercises and an intensive sound project. Formerly CM 120

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication and Film/Digital Video majors; and Narrative Video and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

CMMC 301 - Communication Production Workshop

This production course offers students an opportunity to work on a project in a specific communication medium or genre otherwise unavailable. Students work collaboratively on projects in this medium and present their work to an audience of peers and/or professionals. Topics include: Web radio/streaming audio sites, producing television commercials, producing advanced audio projects, or developing online publications. Formerly CM 360

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to CMAC students by permission of the instructor. May be taken six times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 231 - Dynamic Web Development

Creating dynamic web solutions is an essential aspect of web development today. In this course, students build upon existing concepts learned in Intro to Interactive Programming. The focus is on client and server side programming and relational database design for the web. Examples of dynamic web applications include context management systems, custom audio and video players, and e-commerce solutions.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 131

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 241 - Interactive Narrative

Introduces students to new ways of thinking about interactivity and storytelling. Students analyze how the interactive structure of an experience creates narrative. Select one of the following:

CMMC 102 - Video Production Workshop

Acquaints students with the fundamentals of visual storytelling by providing hands-on experience translating the written word into images and sounds. Areas of study include framing images, lighting, using off-screen space and sound, editing, and postproduction. Students integrate their own writing to produce some of these projects. Formerly CM 290

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication, Writing for Film and Television, and Theater Management and Production majors and Web Drama minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Can be used for minor or studio choice; not for both

Web Design Minor

The minor in Web Design provides skills, concepts, and tools for students interested in Web design as a creative medium of expression, as a form of communication, or as a profession. The skills learned enhance the preparedness of students wishing to enter the design, communication, and media industries. Fine artists interested in the role that Internet-based technologies and interactivity play in their work will also find this minor to be broadening. Multimedia and Communication majors may not declare a Web Design minor.

Requirements for the Minor

CMMC 301 - Communication Production Workshop

This production course offers students an opportunity to work on a project in a specific communication medium or genre otherwise unavailable. Students work collaboratively on projects in this medium and present their work to an audience of peers and/or professionals. Topics include: Web radio/streaming audio sites, producing television commercials, producing advanced audio projects, or developing online publications. Formerly CM 360

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 101

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 131 - Introduction to Interactive Programming

This course is an introductory programming class, appropriate for students with no prior programming experience. Traditionally, introductory programming teaches algorithmic problem-solving, where a sequence of instructions describe the steps necessary to achieve a desired result. In this course, students are trained to go beyond this sequential thinking – to think concurrently and modularly. By its end, students are empowered to write and read code for event-driven graphical user interfaces, client server chat programs, networked video games, and user interfaces. Formerly MM 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 241 - Interactive Narrative

Introduces students to new ways of thinking about interactivity and storytelling. Students analyze how the interactive structure of an experience creates narrative. Short readings discussed in class range from Surrealist Dada and Fluxus language games to the experimental literature of Joyce and Burroughs to the literary theory of Barthes and Eco. Students examine contemporary examples of interactive media such as avatars, virtual realities, role-playing games and Internet sites. Formerly MM 223

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Web Drama Minor

The minor in Web Drama allows students to learn and apply dramatic storytelling techniques to the Web. It focuses on the fundamentals of scriptwriting and interactivity, the acquisition of basic video and animation techniques, and the overall adaptation of these elements to the Internet. The minor allows students to combine the principles necessary to write for television, film, or video with those of interactivity required for Web production. Upon completion of this minor, students will have written and produced a dramatic story that is suitable for Web distribution. Because of the structure of their major, Communication majors may not declare a minor within CMAC.

Requirements for the Minor

WRIT 225 - Interactive Writing I

The first semester of a year-long studio course that builds upon the basic principles of dramatic writing by identifying and utilizing the Web environment as a unique medium for narrative storytelling. Through analysis and written exercises, students learn how multiple story and character arcs are designed and supported by specific interactive storytelling models. Formerly WM 225

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211, WRIT 220 or MMDI 202.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 226 - Interactive Writing II

The second semester of a year-long studio course that extends the interactive storytelling knowledge gained in Interactive Writing I to a project-based and dialogue-driven narrative. Working in writing teams, students create and write two short Web drama scripts based on models studied in Interactive Writing I. As a final project, each student completes a formal Web drama proposal, outline, and script for a potential production in the culminating course, Web Drama Studio. Formerly WM 226

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 225

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 360 - Web Drama Studio

A capstone course in which students are required to begin with an already-completed and approved Web drama proposal and script. Each student then works to produce his or her own Web drama script online, while collaboratively supporting other writer/producers on their projects. Formerly WM 330

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 226

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following:

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 220 - Writing for Film

A writing class introducing students to the basic elements of screenwriting. These include three act structure, creating a character, act design, and scene structure. Students complete a short screenplay by the end of the semester. Formerly WM 219

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

Not applicable as minor credit for Writing for Film and Television majors. Required for Multimedia majors.

Select one of the following:

CMMC 103 - Sound Communication

This introduction to the field of sound communication enables students to conceptualize the importance of sound in cultural life and prepares them in practical approaches to field recording and working with various types of sound. A survey of approaches to sound as a social communication through readings and a broad range of audio examples, including documentary, journalistic, theatrical, and experimental approaches. Training in digital and audio field and post-production equipment and complete practical field exercises and an intensive sound project. Formerly CM 120

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication and Film/Digital Video majors; and Narrative Video and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

CMMC 311 - Narrative Video Production Workshop

An opportunity to develop an understanding of and experience in producing narrative-based video projects. Students begin by reading essays and articles, screening scenes from films and television shows, and reviewing technical language and concepts. They learn to translate script ideas into production proposals, making clear how story ideas, characters, action, and point of view will be rendered in sound and image. Working both on their own projects and as team members, they plan production specifics and shoot/record and edit short narrative pieces in their medium and style of choice. Students present stages of production work, from planning to script to rushes to stages of edited material. Formerly CM 295

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: CMMC 101 or CMMC 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Narrative Video minors. Repeatable for credit

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Not applicable as minor credit for Writing for Film and Television majors

MMDI 241 - Interactive Narrative

Introduces students to new ways of thinking about interactivity and storytelling. Students analyze how the interactive structure of an experience creates narrative. Short readings discussed in class range from Surrealist Dada and Fluxus language games to the experimental literature of Joyce and Burroughs to the literary theory of Barthes and Eco. Students examine contemporary examples of interactive media such as avatars, virtual realities, role-playing games and Internet sites. Formerly MM 223

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Not applicable as minor credit for Multimedia majors

Writing for Film and Television - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

Freshman Year Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

MMDI 141 - Collaboration and Spontaneity

Through a series of exercises, class discussions, and readings, students explore what it means to work as part of a team. Students learn to develop environments in which the creative process is encouraged to unfold. The basic assumptions that affect the formation of collaborative groups, such as personal responsibility, authority relations, leadership issues, individual differences, competition, the development of norms, and the generation and uses of power, are experienced, explicated, and examined. Students work within this collaborative environment to explore the connections between spontaneous verbal and nonverbal communication. Formerly MM 150

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Fulfills three credits of the discipline history requirement.

WRIT 111 - Dramatic Structure I

An intensive year-long writing course that introduces students to major principles of the three-act dramatic structure found in narrative screenplays. Topics of the course include sequences, creation of character, conflict, and setting. Students are required to complete focused and specific creative written work on a weekly basis. Workshops are held on a weekly basis. Formerly WM 113

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Writing for Film and Television and Discovery Year majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 141 - Storytelling: Theory and Practice

This course introduces students to storytelling as a way of structuring communication. Course material ranges from annual reports to ad campaigns to greeting cards to rap music to political campaigns, offering students an introduction to the many ways narrative can be exploited for a powerful effect. Students learn to apply theory and to explore the relationship of different types of media to different narrative forms. Formerly CMMC 141.

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to CMAC students.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Fulfills three credits of the discipline history requirement.

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

- WRIT 220 - Writing for Film Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

CMMC 102 - Video Production Workshop

Acquaints students with the fundamentals of visual storytelling by providing hands-on experience translating the written word into images and sounds. Areas of study include framing images, lighting, using off-screen space and sound, editing, and postproduction. Students integrate their own writing to produce some of these projects. Formerly CM 290

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication, Writing for Film and Television, and Theater Management and Production majors and Web Drama minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 242 - Film Story Analysis

The course examines various narrative film genres, identifying the unique and distinctive qualities of screenwriting conventions utilized. Screenings and analysis highlight the devices employed by screenwriters to tell a good story. Weekly screenings followed by critical papers of each screening. Formerly WM 343

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Elective Credits: 3 cr

WRIT 212 - Screenwriting II

An intensive screenwriting workshop where, in the first semester, students study scene structure and dialogue, and write a series of outlines for an hour-long screenplay. In the second semester, students write an hour-long screenplay and revise the script. Formerly WM 215

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211 or WRIT 220

Priority enrollment to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 241 - Screenplay Analysis

A course devoted to the critical analysis of screenplays. Students are required to read numerous scripts and write critical papers on various dramatic structural principles highlighted. Formerly WM 243

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211 or WRIT 220

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

The School of Dance offers Bachelor of Fine Arts degrees in Ballet, Modern, Jazz/Theater Dance, and Dance Education, as well as a two-year Certificate in Dance.

The School of Music offers the Bachelor of Music degree in Jazz Vocal Performance , Instrumental Performance with a jazz/contemporary focus , and Composition . In addition, a four-year Undergraduate Diploma and two-year Certificate in Dance or Music are offered. The School of Music offers minors in E-Music and Music Education.

At the graduate level, the School of Music offers the Master of Arts in Teaching in Music Education and the Master of Music in Jazz Studies.

The School of Theater Arts offers the Bachelor of Fine Arts in Theater Arts , with majors in Acting, Musical Theater, Theater Design and Technology, and Theater Management and Production .

The College offers a cross-disciplineminor in Musical Theater, which is open by audition to Voice, Dance, Acting, and Theater Management and Production majors.

The College of Performing Arts (CPA) is comprised of the Schools of Dance , Music , and Theater Arts. Its curricula combine the performance emphasis of the traditional conservatory, stressing individualized training, practice, and discipline, with a liberal arts education.

Founded in 1870 as the Philadelphia Musical Academy and merged with the Philadelphia Conservatory of Music in 1962, the College has long been regarded as one of America's foremost professional schools of higher education. In 1976, the institution was renamed the Philadelphia College of the Performing Arts, thereby signaling its intention to expand its program to include all three of the performing arts disciplines – Music, Dance, and Theater.

In 1977, The Philadelphia Dance Academy joined the College to become the School of Dance. Founded in 1947, The Philadelphia Dance Academy was one of the foremost conservatories of dance in the nation and one of the first three institutions in the country to grant a degree in dance. The School of Theater was initiated in 1983.

The College of Performing Arts thus became Pennsylvania's first and only independent college dedicated exclusively to the performing arts and one of the first of its kind in the United States. Its philosophy is founded on the principle that there is a common bond among artists, whatever their discipline, and that artists must interact with each other for their inspiration and growth. Indeed, many of the College's students have developed interdisciplinary careers that require familiarity with all the performing arts, as well as the visual and media arts.

Acting - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 124

The four-year Bachelor of Fine Arts Acting program prepares students for careers in the professional theater or for continued study at the graduate level. In the first year, students concentrate on finding the "core of the actor" through the study of improvisation, monologue, emotional discovery, speech, and movement. In addition to fostering these acting skills, the first year of training is also designed to encourage an in-depth self-analysis of the student's commitment, discipline, and professionalism. The second year is devoted to technique training, in which actors develop a sense of conversational reality and strengthen their imagination, responsiveness, and spontaneity. This level of training also addresses an actor's skill for evoking a full and accessible inner life.

The third year is dedicated to giving shape and specificity to the actor's behavior and aims to refine technique and deepen characterization. Advanced scene study and an introduction to style work are also integral to this level of training. The focus of the fourth year is on classical performance and preparing the student to enter the profession. Students are given instruction in audition and camera techniques, resume preparation, how to work with agents, etc. The fourth year culminates with an audition clinic given by a selected panel of agents, directors, and casting representatives.

Actor training in the School of Theater Arts lies at the heart of the two performance curricula. The training is designed to cultivate the actor's ability to "live truthfully under imaginary circumstances." Students develop an understanding that such truth begins with a shared interconnectedness between actors onstage.

Early technique studies, for majors in both acting and musical theater, emphasize the "reality of doing" as it is rooted in a full emotional life, driven by action and expressed with meaning, clarity, and theatricality. To this end, students are challenged to cultivate a fuller understanding of themselves and to continually exercise their skills as analysts of text and as observers of human behavior.

The program introduces students to a range of training methods (Linklater, Meisner, IPA, LeCoq, Williamson, Fitzmaurice, Laban) as a part of their training. The successful student should emerge from the program with a practicable performance technique in place, which enables her/him to develop and sustain a role from first rehearsal to closing night.

Students completing these programs are also expected to be knowledgeable about a variety of styles and types of drama, and the challenges presented by each; to work in a vocally and physically free and efficient manner; to be able to identify their character type and its potential range within the casting conventions of the industry; to have a sense of how to begin to establish a career as a performer; and to possess a work ethic that will support the collaborative nature of theatrical production.

Additionally, the Acting Program seeks to train students who have developed:

- fundamental skills in stage combat and the use of selected weaponry;
- an awareness of mask techniques as a platform from which characterization and behavior can evolve;
- basic skills in performing for the camera, a familiarity with their image in two-dimensional media, and some experience in fundamental issues such as slating, continuity, hitting marks, working within frame, etc.; and
- scene study skills that will serve them in the interpretation of classical material that requires a command of both style and language.

E-Music Minor - CPA

The minor in E-Music offers students majoring in both Multimedia and Music an opportunity to create electronic and experimental music, to develop skills that allow them to produce, package, and distribute music by taking advantage of digital technology, and to design (electronic) instrumental interfaces. The minor prepares students for a variety of highly entrepreneurial careers ranging from entertainment and product development to creative and production work in the recording and musical fields. This minor is only available to students majoring in Multimedia or Music. Please note that this minor requires 17 credits for Music majors. Specific requirements for Multimedia majors can be found in another section of this catalog.

The College of Performing Arts offers minors that enable a student to focus on a specific discipline through organized electives.

Students wishing to include a minor are governed by the following guidelines:

1. Students must meet eligibility requirements, which may include a satisfactory grade-point average, prerequisites, and departmental portfolio review.
2. An intent to complete a minor is declared by filing the completed Minor Declaration Form with the Office of the Registrar. The forms are available in the Office of the Registrar.
3. A student may not major and minor in the same program, except where indicated.
4. Courses applied to the minor may only be applied toward elective requirements.
5. All minors require a minimum of 15 credits, with the exception of E-Music for Music majors. Generally, no substitutions to the minor requirements are allowed. In exceptional situations where substitutions are granted, they must have the approval of both the major and minor program advisors.
6. The requirements of the minor must be completed prior to graduation.
7. A student pursuing a minor may be required to complete more than the minimum number of credits required to complete the undergraduate degree in order to also complete the minor.
8. Minors are available only to undergraduate students.

Requirements for the Minor

Courses required for Music students:

MMDI 101 - Visual Communication Studio

All communication takes place through language. However, not all language uses words. This course allows students to harness the power of visual language in order to convey messages and meaning. The elements of drawing and two-dimensional design that are covered include point, line, shape, composition, texture, color, type, and image. Although non-digital mediums are addressed, the exploration of digital tools for the screen is a primary goal. Individual creativity is stressed. Formerly MM 110

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 111 - Introduction to Interface Design

The software interface represents the focal point of user interaction with the various modes of multimedia communication. Readings by interface theorists inform discussions on the evolution of the software interface, conceptual models, prototypes, interaction design, deliverables, and basic concepts of human-computer interaction. Avenues for pursuing interactive media design in entertainment, publishing, and education are also addressed. Current technologies, including the trend from soft to hard interfaces are studied, in terms of their potential short- and long-term influence on communication and multimedia. Basic methods for rapid prototyping and testing are considered. Formerly MM 121

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 330 - E-Music Thesis Project

A culminating course for students in the E-Music minor in which they develop an application. Students develop a proposal for an application and carry the idea through research implementation, execution, and presentation. With the consent of the instructor, projects may be the work of one student or that of a group of students, be in a variety of shapes, and in a variety of media. Students must have completed E-Music minor requirements. Formerly MM 370

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of other Minor courses.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUCP 322 - Analysis and Composition of Contemporary Music

An examination of compositional techniques used in pop songs, jingles, soundtracks, and underscores for radio, TV, records, films, shows, and industrials. Students investigate the ways in which music serves to enhance the overall goals of the product or project. Musical analysis serves to demonstrate how each style is created. Students produce their own musical compositions in each media context. Formerly MU 308A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MUSC 204, MUSC 206

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 1.5 hrs

MUCP 323 - Analysis & Composition of Commercial Music

Continuation of MUCP 322. Formerly MU 308B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MUCP 322

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 1.5 hrs

Select one of the following Multimedia Studios:

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 212 - Game Design Studio

This course focuses on creating interactive games and exploring the concepts and practical application of game design. Games are developed for the Web, computer, and nondigital mediums. Course activities include lectures and studio practice, including completion of assignments, exercises, and projects. Individual creativity is stressed, as well as collaborative game development skills. Students leave the course having produced several games. Formerly MM 222

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 301 - Interactive Sound and Video

The course deals with the experience of producing complete multimedia installation works in a project-based environment focusing on interactive sound and video. Lectures and meetings augment this studio course. Individual creativity is stressed as well as collaboration in the creation of works through individual and group projects. Assignments vary in scale, and focus on appropriate planning and information architecture, as well as acquisition and creation of content in various media. Authoring environments used include but are not limited to MAX MSP, Isadora, and Macromedia Director. Previously introduced concepts and technology are re-explored with an emphasis on integration and effectiveness in the communication of the concept of the piece. Formerly MM 310

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 405 - Innovative Interfaces

The notion of the digital environment transcends the concept of the computer as we know it. These addresses and environments, although supported by digital technology, are non-computer-like in many respects. Building them calls for changes in the choice of interaction devices (using touch, voice, gestures, and possibly just user's intent as a basis for interaction), shape and size of computers (no boxes, but interactive surfaces), their location (floor, wall, pocket), as well as change in content structure. Using cross-disciplinary data from cognitive and computer sciences and social psychology, the students in this research/studio course focus primarily on the design and development of innovative ways of interacting with digital technology. Formerly MM 440

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Jazz Dance - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 128

The Bachelor of Fine Arts (BFA) degree in Dance is a program designed for those students who wish to prepare for professional careers in dance performance and/or choreography. The BFA in Dance program is normally completed in four years of full-time study with a total requirement of 128 credits. The Jazz/Theater Dance major emphasizes acting, music, and voice in addition to the technical study of jazz dance, and prepares students for dance careers related to theatrical performance.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

Jazz Studies - Master of Music

Program Total Credits: 36

The Master of Music in Jazz Studies degree has its roots in three decades of University of the Arts leadership in the field of jazz education, carefully balancing aesthetic goals and a pragmatic approach to vocational responsibility in the context of this American music idiom. Open to a small and highly advanced group of students who have an undergraduate degree in jazz studies or an undergraduate degree in music with significant experience in jazz and contemporary music, or the equivalent thereof, the program—while providing a solid foundation in contemporary music—encourages a primary focus on individual career goals.

Curriculum

Among the one-year, 32-credit program's unique curricular components are advanced private instruction in the major area to develop professional-level artistry and skills; hands-on internships; ensemble performances; arranging, composing, transcribing and analyzing jazz and contemporary music; study of MIDI and music technology; music journalism, jazz pedagogy, and a final thesis/project/recital that integrates in-depth research on a topic of special relevance with personal musical growth, culminating in a public performance. Graduate Applied Studies are the core of the Master of Music in Jazz Studies. Additionally, applied study at the graduate level includes a pedagogy component. Teaching is a facet of almost every performer's and composer's career; coursework in the major applied area acknowledges this importance.

Students, in addition to completion of the requisite 32 credits, must take or have taken two corequisite courses of two credit hours each: Recording and The Business of Music.

The Master of Music in Jazz Studies is a 32-credit program designed for students who have completed a bachelor's degree in jazz performance or other applied music with significant experience in jazz/contemporary music studies. The MM can be completed in a one-year, two-semester schedule, provided that all prerequisite skills are satisfied prior to beginning the program. The entrance requirements include advanced technical and stylistic facility on the major instrument or voice, skills in improvisation, jazz theory and ear training, and jazz history. The MM program is intended to dramatically increase the student's performance abilities, as well as provide a diversity of other professional-level competencies, preparing the student for a career as a music professional or college-level teacher.

MM in Jazz Studies Credits: 36

Fall Credits: 16

MUCP 631 - Graduate Arranging

Emphasis is on effective writing in various contemporary styles and building on basic arranging skills, with a focus on specific arranging techniques such as writing for the rhythm section, horn voicings, sax solo, and contemporary fusion styles. Arrangements are studied in score format and aurally, and then techniques are applied to student projects. Formerly MU 622

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUCP 641 - Advanced Transcription and Analysis

Accurate notation, transcription fluency, and recognition of theoretical concepts are developed through a regime of continual and rigorous assignments, all designed to further advance skills in ear training and theory. Projects begin with single line melodies in varying instrumental registers and progress through advanced rhythms and chord progressions to complete arrangements and compositions. Sources include bass lines, synthesizer sequences, pop recordings, jazz improvisations, and drum solos. Students learn techniques and performance practices of varying styles and periods, and then perform transcribed parts and solos. Formerly MU 617

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MULS 641 - Applied Major Instruction – Graduate

Private instruction in instrumental, vocal, and composition areas. Formerly MU 592A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate students in the School of Music only.

Credits: 3 cr, 1 hr

MUPF 660 - Graduate Ensemble

Formerly MU 775

Prerequisites & Notes

Repeatable for credit. Only open to students in the School of Music.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

MUSC 631 - Graduate Improvisation I

Improvisational styles, techniques, and devices are studied. Intervallic improvisation, and advanced pentatonic concepts are addressed, as well as study of the pioneers of jazz improvisation through recorded solos that mark turning points of improvisation. Topics include melody embellishment, improvising in phrases, silence, time-feel, pacing, syncopation, chord tone soloing, dynamics, non-harmonic triads, contracting and expanding chord duration, tri-tonic cells, sustaining peak points, and unaccompanied soloing. Formerly MU 625

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUSC 661 - MIDI and Music Technology

Hands-on exploration of music technology applicable to performer, composer, and arranger with focus on fluency with MIDI sequencing including MAX to create interactive live performance situations. Students work with modular digital multi-tracks and edit and create original sounds for synthesizers and samplers. Hard disk recording using Pro-Tools III and Digital Performer, SMPTE and synchronization in the studio, and composition and sound design for film, video, and theater are also explored. Training in notation software is an integral and essential aspect of the course: after the first month, assignments for all graduate courses require use of professional notation software. Formerly MU 615

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUSC 681 - Graduate Professional Internship

Provides hands-on experience in a variety of professional settings — rehearsals, performances, meetings with producers, and in-studio projects such as recording, arranging, or project coordination. The program is developed by the graduate advisor and major teacher in conjunction with the student to select topics and experiences most relevant and beneficial to that particular student's education. Formerly MU 620

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUSC 684 - Graduate Forum

A graduate seminar in which various aspects of study, including musical development and accomplishment, are correlated with critical, aesthetic, and historical components. Additionally, artistic and professional issues are researched and discussed. Various approaches to the preparation of the graduate recital are explored and progress toward a successful performance is closely monitored. Topic selection, research, and writing of the graduate thesis are evaluated through weekly critiques. Formerly MU 627

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

Spring Credits: 16

MUCP 624 - Composing for Performers

A dual emphasis — on acoustic instruments and on technologies — exposes students to a variety of professional composing situations, including large jazz ensembles, fusion, acoustic/electronic hybrids, films, videos, musical theater, and jingle writing. Techniques using MIDI, MAX, and electronic composition are explored. Faculty and guest composers present workshops on their own approaches. Students learn to use the recording studio as an instrument and use notation software for score and part preparation. Student works are rehearsed and performed by graduate and advanced undergraduate ensembles. Formerly MU 624

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MULS 642 - Applied Major Instruction – Graduate

Private instruction in instrumental, vocal, and composition areas. Formerly MU 592B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MULS 641

Open to graduate students in the School of Music only.

Credits: 3 cr, 1 hr

MUPF 660 - Graduate Ensemble

Formerly MU 775

Prerequisites & Notes

Repeatable for credit. Only open to students in the School of Music.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

MUPF 680 - Graduate Project/Recital

Independent research project designed to enable the student to work in-depth on a topic of special relevance applicable to performance. The graduate project is evaluated in two parts: as a thesis, with the expectation that the student has completed extensive research in a comprehensive manner, and as a recital, in which the student incorporates aspects of the project and demonstrates personal instrumental growth. Students give presentations throughout the semester in seminar setting, showing their progress in research and its application to performance. Formerly MU 603

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 632 - Graduate Improvisation II

Improvisational styles, techniques, and devices are studied. Intervallic improvisation, and advanced pentatonic concepts are addressed, as well as study of the pioneers of jazz improvisation through recorded solos that mark turning points of improvisation. Topics include melody embellishment, improvising in phrases, silence, time-feel, pacing, syncopation, chord tone soloing, dynamics, non-harmonic triads, contracting and expanding chord duration, tri-tonic cells, sustaining peak points, and unaccompanied soloing. Formerly MU 626

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MUSC 631

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUSC 651 - Music Journalism

Practical, hands-on study of writing about music, musicians, and the music industry for consumer, trade and academic periodicals; books, videos, DVDs and other multimedia projects. Students learn library and Internet research techniques, how to acquire and foster industry contacts, interview methodology, how to best utilize archival resources, the writing "marketplace" and the "business of writing," formulation of a marketable idea, magazine writing and editing, the periodical and book submission process, professional guidelines and insights for composing video/ DVD narration and voice-overs. Formerly MU 515

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the School of Music only. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUSC 682 - Graduate Professional Internship

Provides hands-on experience in a variety of professional settings — rehearsals, performances, meetings with producers, and in-studio projects such as recording, arranging, or project coordination. The program is developed by the graduate advisor and major teacher in conjunction with the student to select topics and experiences most relevant and beneficial to that particular student's education. Formerly MU 621

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUSC 683 - Jazz Pedagogy

This course is designed to prepare students to teach all aspects of a jazz curriculum including arranging, theory, history, improvisation and managing various ensembles, including rehearsal techniques and such. A review of teaching strategies, methods, and available materials is conducted. Basic Computer technologies for the creation of teaching materials are included. Each student rehearses with a UArts ensemble. Outreach activities with area public schools are developed. Formerly MU 516

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the School of Music only. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUSC 685 - Graduate Forum

A graduate seminar in which various aspects of study, including musical development and accomplishment, are correlated with critical, aesthetic, and historical components. Additionally, artistic and professional issues are researched and discussed. Various approaches to the preparation of the graduate recital are explored and progress toward a successful performance is closely monitored. Topic selection, research, and writing of the graduate thesis are evaluated through weekly critiques. Formerly MU 628

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

Additional prerequisite/corequisite courses Credits: 4

MUSC 461 - Recording I

A study of the recording process and the many facets of the recording studio. Designed to familiarize the student with conventional and creative recording techniques through practical experience in the studio. Formerly MU 413A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUSC 481 - Business of Music

Examination of the legal, practical, and procedural problems encountered by the practicing musician. Specific course content includes the study of music publishing, recording contracts, and copyright and intellectual property rights issues. Formerly MU 420A

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

Jazz Studies: Composition - Bachelor of Music

Program Total Credits: 126

Students enrolled as majors in Composition take private lessons with our faculty who work professionally in contemporary classical, jazz, and commercial (radio, TV, film, industrial) and pop idioms. Monthly workshops featuring guest composers representing a variety of musical genres present students with an inside look at their creative processes and techniques. Additional courses include Jazz Ear Training, Jazz Theory, MIDI and Music Technology, Arranging, Orchestration, Music History, Business of Music, and ensembles. Student compositions are read or performed by our ensembles, and frequent performances of students' music highlight the school's concert schedule. Composition students can also elect an option to take additional study on an instrument or voice. The University's creative environment encourages collaborations with film, animation, dance, theater, and multimedia students.

Freshman Year Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

MUCP 131 - Composition: Forms & Concepts I

The first semester of this team-taught course is a hands-on exploration of standard and non-traditional compositional forms. After analyzing various forms, students will have the opportunity to apply those concepts and skills to their own compositions in different genres.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Composition majors only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MULS 131 - Applied Major Instruction – Composition

Private instruction in composition. Formerly MU 193A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Composition majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 1 hr

MUSC 101 - Music Theory I

Theory Placement Test required. An introduction to basic theory including the study of scales, intervals, chords of various types, harmonic progression, and the analysis of small musical forms. Formerly MU 107A

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 111 - Musicianship I

Musicianship Placement Test required. This course centers on the establishment of fundamental skills through the singing and recognition of diatonic materials, i.e., scales, intervals, triads, and seventh chords, both as isolated phenomena and in musical contexts. Solfeggio performance of diatonic melodies and rhythmic performance in all basic meters is emphasized, as well as the dictation of these materials. Formerly MU 103A

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor's permission required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 121 - Class Piano I

Introductory and elementary keyboard training using basic theoretical, harmonic, and technical concepts in practical keyboard application: transposition, melody harmonization, elementary jazz improvisation, technique and repertoire. Required of non-keyboard instrumental majors. Formerly MU 131A

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor's permission required.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUSC 161 - Music Technology Survey

Provides students with a working knowledge of music technology practices, definitions, and concepts. Through both lecture and lab classes, students become familiar with a cross-section of hardware and software currently in use by the school and working professionals. Formerly MU 115

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor's permission required.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

MUCP 132 - Composition: Forms & Concepts II

The second semester of this team-taught course introduces the primary skills and resources that belong in every composer's toolbox, sequencing, and counterpoint. After analyzing various techniques, students will apply those concepts and skills to their own compositions in different genres.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Composition majors only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MULS 132 - Applied Major Instruction – Composition

Private instruction in composition. Requirements include a year-end graded examination by a jury. Formerly MU 193B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MULS 131

Open to Composition majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 1 hr

MUSC 102 - Music Theory II

Theory Placement Test required. An introduction to basic theory including the study of scales, intervals, chords of various types, harmonic progression, and the analysis of small musical forms. Formerly MU 107B

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the School of Music only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 112 - Musicianship II

Musicianship Placement Test required. MUSC 122 - Class Piano II

Introductory and elementary keyboard training using basic theoretical, harmonic, and technical concepts in practical keyboard application: transposition, melody harmonization, elementary jazz improvisation, technique and repertoire. Required of non-keyboard instrumental majors. Formerly MU 131B

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the School of Music only. Not open to Music majors specializing in piano.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUSC 162 - Music Technology Survey

Provides students with a working knowledge of music technology practices, definitions, and concepts. Through both lecture and lab classes, students become familiar with a cross-section of hardware and software currently in use by the school and working professionals. Formerly MU 116

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Sophomore Year Credits: 34

Fall Credits: 16

- MUPF 8XX - Ensemble Credits: 1 cr

MULS 231 - Applied Major Instruction – Composition

Private instruction in composition. Formerly MU 293A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MULS 132

Open to Composition majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 1 hr

MUSC 203 - Jazz Theory I

A study of diatonic and chromatic theory as related to jazz and contemporary music. Formerly MU 208A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MUSC 102

Open to majors in the School of Music only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 205 - Jazz Ear Training I

Melodic, harmonic, and rhythmic aural skill development in the jazz and contemporary music idioms. Formerly MU 209A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MUSC 112

Open to majors in the School of Music only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 223 - Class Jazz Piano I

Harmonic concepts in keyboard application for jazz popular music; chord voicings for popular tunes, standards, and original harmonizations; continuation of jazz improvisation. Required of non-keyboard instrumental majors. Formerly MU 232A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MUSC 122

Not open to music majors specializing in piano.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUSC 460 - Introduction to MIDI and Electronic Technology

A detailed "hands-on" examination of the use of computers in the present-day composition environment. The course includes the uses of a computer, the language of MIDI, sequencing, audio sampling, analog, digital, and other forms of synthesis, and a survey of currently available music software. Strategies and technology of scoring and synchronizing to the visual image is emphasized through a final project. No prior computer or synthesis experience is needed. Formerly MU 415A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Music and Multimedia majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 17

- MUPF 8XX - Ensemble Credits: 1 cr

MUCP 361 - Orchestration I

An introduction to instrumentation, designed to acquaint the student with ranges, transpositions, and characteristics of individual instruments and voices. Aural and score analysis provide the basis for understanding vocal and instrumental treatments in small and large ensembles. Written orchestrations are required. Formerly MU 317A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MUSC 203, MUSC 205

Open to majors in the School of Music only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MULS 232 - Applied Major Instruction – Composition

Private instruction in composition. Requirements include a year-end graded examination by a jury. Formerly MU 293B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MULS 231

Open to Composition majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 1 hr

MUSC 204 - Jazz Theory II

A study of diatonic and chromatic theory as related to jazz and contemporary music. Formerly MU 208B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MUSC 203

Open to majors in the School of Music only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 206 - Jazz Ear Training II

MUSC 351 - Music History I

Designed to define the major style periods from Greek times to the present in terms of their philosophies, accomplishments, and interrelationships. Composers, performers, and theorists are examined in the context of musical literature with emphasis upon styles, forms, and techniques of composition as they evolve and change. The sequence puts into historical perspective the materials presented in the Music Theory courses. Through listening assignments, students are expected to further develop their aural skills and knowledge of musical literature. Formerly MU 301A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Also fulfills Liberal Arts discipline history requirement.

Program Total Credits: 36

The Master of Arts in Teaching – Music Education (MAT) is an advanced teacher certification program for professional musicians desiring a master's degree and certification to teach music in K-12 schools as well as in other educational settings and for related careers. It is a unique program in that candidates for the MAT typically will have completed undergraduate studies in applied music, composition, theory, musicology, or other professional areas. MAT graduates are eligible to receive K-12 certification from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Department of Education to teach music.

The MAT in Music Education is designed to develop and refine the student's intellectual, pedagogical, and musical skills. The program is a balance of intellectual foundations, curriculum design, and assessment; partnered with hands-on pedagogy and conducting courses developed to provide relevant experiences for the classrooms of today and leadership for the future of the profession. This preparation includes comprehensive instruction in the use of educational technology, field-based learning experiences, and site-based pedagogy courses, which provide direct feedback on instructional effectiveness.

The MAT curriculum comprises 36 credits and may be completed in one academic year if all corequisites are satisfied prior to matriculation. Corequisite requirements may be satisfied in a number of ways, including taking courses in the Music Education minor program. Working professionals may opt to complete the degree over an extended period of time on a part-time basis.

Music Education - Master of Arts in Teaching Credits: 36

Music Education Minor

Professional musicians teach in various settings such as private lessons, classroom lectures, presentations at conferences, directing performing ensembles, and as artists in residence. The Music Education minor is open to all music majors desiring preparation for these roles.

The Music Education minor complements the degree studies of all music majors with two courses even counting within the liberal arts core of the student's bachelor degree. Coursework includes instruction in each of the instrument families, pedagogy of private instruction and improvisation, conducting, rehearsing jazz ensembles, the psychology of teaching and learning music, and the needs of special learners. Field experiences include working with ensembles in public and private schools.

Music Education minors will be able to complete the Master of Arts in Teaching degree (MAT) and receive teacher certification in one additional academic year. This "4 +1" option allows students to earn a MUED minor, bachelor's degree, master's degree, and teacher certification in only five years.

Coursework is based on current Pennsylvania Department of Education teacher certification requirements. This program may be revised as needed to accommodate new state requirements.

Students wishing to include a minor are governed by the following guidelines:

1. Students must meet eligibility requirements, which may include a satisfactory grade-point average, prerequisites, and departmental portfolio review.
2. An intent to complete a minor is declared by filing the completed Minor Declaration Form with the Office of the Registrar. The forms are available in the Office of the Registrar.
3. A student may not major and minor in the same program, except where indicated.
4. Courses applied to the minor may only be applied toward elective requirements.
5. All minors require a minimum of 15 credits, with the exception of E-Music for Music majors. Generally, no substitutions to the minor requirements are allowed. In exceptional situations where substitutions are granted, the approval of both the major and minor program advisors are required.
6. The requirements of the minor must be completed prior to graduation.
7. A student pursuing a minor may be required to complete more than the minimum number of credits required to complete the undergraduate degree in order to also complete the minor.
8. Minors are available only to undergraduate students.

Musical Theater - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

The four-year Bachelor of Fine Arts Musical Theater Program prepares students for professional careers as performers in the musical theater or for continued study in graduate school. The program defines the term "musical theater" in a way that embraces the richness and diversity of this challenging interdisciplinary art form, which includes musical comedy, the musical play (in the Hammerstein-Sondheim tradition), new and alternative music theater, "Broadway opera," cabaret, and revue. Students receive the same technique training as do acting majors through their first five semesters. This training is complemented by training in vocal technique, musicianship, dance, and the study of the repertoire of the musical theater in print and recordings, as well as in rehearsal and performance.

Actor training in the School of Theater Arts lies at the heart of the two performance curricula. The training is designed to cultivate the actor's ability to "live truthfully under imaginary circumstances." Students develop an understanding that such truth begins with a shared interconnectedness between actors onstage.

Early technique studies, for majors in both acting and musical theater, emphasize the "reality of doing" as it is rooted in a full emotional life, driven by action and expressed with meaning, clarity, and theatricality. To this end, students are challenged to cultivate a fuller understanding of themselves and to continually exercise their skills as analysts of text and as observers of human behavior.

The program introduces students to a range of training methods (Linklater, Meisner, IPA, LeCoq, Williamson, Fitzmaurice, Laban) as a part of their training. The successful student should emerge from the program with a practicable performance technique in place, which enables her/him to develop and sustain a role from first rehearsal to closing night.

Students completing these programs are also expected to be knowledgeable about a variety of styles and types of drama, and the challenges presented by each; to work in a vocally and physically free and efficient manner; to be able to identify their character type and its potential range within the casting conventions of the industry; to have a sense of how to begin to establish a career as a performer; and to possess a work ethic that will support the collaborative nature of theatrical production.

Additionally, the Musical Theater Program seeks to train students who:

- use the singing voice in a vibrant, healthy, and dramatically effective manner;
- understand music as the singing actor's second text and clearly present its expressive intentions;
- have a solid dance technique and a command of the language of dance and movement; and
- integrate all component skills of musical theater performance to create consistently honest and expressive behavior.

Musical Theater Minor

College of Performing Arts sophomores including Voice, Acting, Theater Management and Production, and Dance majors who have earned a 3.0 GPA in their major are eligible, by audition, to enroll in a range of courses (usually 15 credit hours) leading to the fulfillment of a minor in musical theater. The faculty in the Schools of Dance, Music, and Theater conduct auditions required for admission to the minor, which is to be restricted for only those students most apt to succeed in cross-disciplinary training. In order to continue through the sequence of courses in the minor, students are required to earn a grade of B or better in the initial cross-discipline courses in Voice, Dance and/or Acting normally taken in the minor during the sophomore year.

This course of study is designed solely for students majoring in Voice, Acting, Theater Management and Production and Dance since their success in the minor is due in part to their continuing, concentrated study and growth in their individual majors. In other words, ongoing development as a dancer, actor, or vocal major enhances students' ability to succeed in the minor.

Students wishing to include a minor are governed by the following guidelines:

1. Students must meet eligibility requirements, which may include a satisfactory grade-point average, prerequisites, and departmental portfolio review.
2. An intent to complete a minor is declared by filing the completed Minor Declaration Form with the Office of the Registrar. The forms are available in the Office of the Registrar.
3. A student may not major and minor in the same program, except where indicated.
4. Courses applied to the minor may only be applied toward elective requirements.
5. All minors require a minimum of 15 credits, with the exception of E-Music for Music majors. Generally, no substitutions to the minor requirements are allowed. In exceptional situations where substitutions are granted, they must have the approval of both the major and minor program advisors.
6. The requirements of the minor must be completed prior to graduation.
7. A student pursuing a minor may be required to complete more than the minimum number of credits required to complete the undergraduate degree in order to also complete the minor.
8. Minors are available only to undergraduate students.

Theater Design and Technology - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 124

The Bachelor of Fine Arts (BFA) in Theater Design and Technology is dedicated to providing foundation training in the entire range of theatrical design principles and in technical production as a prelude to the student's declaring an area of emphasis upon which they focus during their final two years at UArts. Design/Tech students focus on the creation of costumes, scenery, lighting and sound design for theatrical production, as well as on developing the skills for the prospective technical director. In the classic approach to such training, students are instructed in all of these areas and as they move into their junior year, select a discipline in which they will concentrate their energies over the final two years. Built into the curriculum are design and technical responsibilities within the SOTA production season, as well as internship experiences with professional companies as part of one's senior year experience. As a prelude to assuming primary design or technical responsibility for a given production, students will also be afforded the opportunity to work closely and to network with guest designers, who are regularly brought in to work on UArts productions. As with the Theater Management and Production program, students' course of study will be capped through a series of production practica and independent study projects. Students completing this program are prepared to enter the industry in either the design or technical direction or may pursue further studies at the graduate level.

Freshman Year Credits: 33

Fall Credits: 16.5

FNDP 101 - Sketching and Drawing

This course provides individuals who are not majoring in visual arts with basic skills required to represent the form of simple objects and the presence of space on a two-dimensional surface. No prior drawing experience or portfolio of work is required to enroll in this course. In-class projects focus on fundamental principles, while homework assignments support the students as they develop the ability to sketch and draw, and think and plan, using manual drawing tools and materials. Formerly FP 101

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology students. Not open to students in the College of Art and Design.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

THEA 151 - Survey of Theater Arts

Designed to foster students' intellectual engagement with drama and theater, from classical to contemporary, by introducing them to the basic terminology and methodology used in understanding plays and performances. A range of critical perspectives are applied to a variety of plays from different periods and places; additionally, a number of contexts for theater study are introduced, including theater history and production elements. Formerly TH 113

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THPD 123 - Scene & Lighting Technology

Introductory course in various phases of physical production dealing with the stage, house, backstage personnel and their duties, construction and painting of scenery, stage lighting, costumes, props, and makeup. Formerly TH 123

Spring Credits: 16.5

FNDP 102 - Sketching the Human Figure

This course provides individuals who are not majoring in visual arts with an introduction to some of the materials, strategies, and methods useful when drawing the human figure. No prior experience or portfolio of work is required. The course uses the figure as subject. Analytical and responsive approaches are compared and a range of materials are used. The figure, its volume and structure, and immediate spatial environment are studied, and the ability to capture the gesture, appropriate scale, proportion, and mass of the figure are stressed. Homework assignments apply principles learned in class. Formerly FP 102

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology majors. Not open to students in the College of Art and Design.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

THEA 152 - Script Analysis

Introduces the student to practical analysis of texts/scripts. The course explores the concepts of conflict, human action, character, action/ reaction cycle, dramatic structure, translations and resources external to the script (historical perspective). At the course's end, the student should possess a firm understanding of the process involved in script analysis, be thoroughly familiar with the composite types of dramatic literature, begin to understand the nature of an informed aestheti, and understand the consequences of each element of a performance on its audience. Formerly TH 213

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THEA 151 or LACR 102

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THPD 124 - Costume & Property Technology

Introductory course in various phases of physical production dealing with the stage, house, backstage personnel and their duties, construction and painting of scenery, stage lighting, costumes, props, and makeup. Formerly TH 124

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: THPD 126 Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

THPD 126 - Costume & Property Tech Lab

Laboratory experience for students in SOTA's Theater Management and Production and Design-Tech program. Students receive foundation training in scenery construction and rigging, lighting and electrical production, costume and property construction, and provide production support serving as primary assistants to professional designers working on SOTA shows. Weekly hours may vary depending upon assignment. Formerly TH 124L

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Theater Management and Production and Theater Design and Technology majors only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

THST 132 - Set Design

An exploration of and instruction in techniques for theatrical scenic design. This class includes lectures, individual guidance, discussions and projects investigating the aesthetic, technical, and practical problems of designing scenery for the stage. Repeatable for elective credit, with advanced projects for repeating students. Formerly TH 239

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: THST 131 and FNDP 101

Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Sophomore Year Credits: 33

Fall Credits: 16

FNDP 103 - Color Basics

This course provides individuals who are not majoring in the visual arts with basic skills required to work with color. No prior experience or portfolio of work is required. The course introduces the basic color vocabulary and begins training the eye to perceive and apply the distinctions of hue, value, tone, and temperature. Methods of color classification set the stage for a sequence of projects designed to help students develop the ability to begin working with color formally and descriptively. Homework assignments apply principles learned in class. Formerly FP 103

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to majors in the College of Art and Design. Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

THEA 351 - Theater History I

Two-semester survey of the history of theater: its dramatic literature, theater structures and production methods, styles of acting, and historical trends, through readings, discussions and lectures. The course explores the history of theater through its artistic, spiritual, political, and cultural sources of empowerment. Students are provided with the historical background to apply acting, directing, and designing techniques to the theater of other periods of history. Formerly TH 311A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THEA 152

Open to majors in the School of Theater Arts only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THPD 220 - Production Crew

Advanced technical production assignments for School of Theater Arts productions. This course continues the study of theatrical production begun in theater tech classes and labs. This course is meant for students with non-performance majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 0.5 cr, hrs vary

THST 181 - Acting for Non-Majors I

This course introduces the non-actor to improvisation, character development, and the basic idea of action and objective in performance. The first four weeks acclimate the new actor to being expressive in a group using body and voice through improvisation, theater games, and movement; breathing and relaxation techniques are also taught. The student is introduced to script analysis and asked to write and develop monologues to create dramatic characters for performance. Grading is based on class participation and progress with the work on monologues. Formerly TH 100A

Credits: 2 cr, 4 hrs

THST 231 - Lighting Design

Procedures for lighting, with emphasis on the functions of theatrical stage lighting. Discussions and projects investigating the problems of lighting design, including electrical principles, instrumentation, color, media, equipment control, planning, and rigging. This course and its projects are studio-based in approach. Repeatable for elective credit, with advanced projects for repeating students. Formerly TH 339

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 131 and THPD 123

Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 850 - Introduction to Aesthetics

An introduction to the philosophy of art. After a brief examination of analytic philosophical methods and the history of aesthetics, we consider some of the fundamental problems in aesthetics, such as the intention of the artist, the physical object/aesthetic object distinction, and the nature and comparison of different kinds of media. The relationship between language and art are central to the course. Formerly HU 270

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 17

- Electives Credits: 3 cr

FNDP 104 - Materials, Tools and Form

This course instructs students in those basic manual skills that help them build three-dimensional objects and spatial works. No prior experience with manual media or a portfolio of work is required. Paper and wood are the primary materials used and all assignments include instruction on how to best use these materials. Assignments that focus on the design of spaces and environments are included. Instruction is conducted in the Foundation studio and wood shop, and all students are given an orientation to the safe use of that facility and all its power tools. Formerly FP 104

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to students in the College of Art and Design. Priority enrollment for Theater Design and Technology majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

Theater Design and Technology Major Courses

To remain in good standing for casting consideration or production assignments in the School of Theater Arts, a student must receive a grade of 'B' or better in the core courses listed below. In the view of the faculty, a student whose work fails to meet this level of achievement will be considered non-competitive by professional standards.

Review Minimum Grade Requirements within the School of Theater Arts Special Requirements and Regulations .

FNDP 101 - Sketching and Drawing

This course provides individuals who are not majoring in visual arts with basic skills required to represent the form of simple objects and the presence of space on a two-dimensional surface. No prior drawing experience or portfolio of work is required to enroll in this course. In-class projects focus on fundamental principles, while homework assignments support the students as they develop the ability to sketch and draw, and think and plan, using manual drawing tools and materials. Formerly FP 101

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology students. Not open to students in the College of Art and Design.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FNDP 102 - Sketching the Human Figure

This course provides individuals who are not majoring in visual arts with an introduction to some of the materials, strategies, and methods useful when drawing the human figure. No prior experience or portfolio of work is required. The course uses the figure as subject. Analytical and responsive approaches are compared and a range of materials are used. The figure, its volume and structure, and immediate spatial environment are studied, and the ability to capture the gesture, appropriate scale, proportion, and mass of the figure are stressed. Homework assignments apply principles learned in class. Formerly FP 102

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology majors. Not open to students in the College of Art and Design.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FNDP 103 - Color Basics

This course provides individuals who are not majoring in the visual arts with basic skills required to work with color. No prior experience or portfolio of work is required. The course introduces the basic color vocabulary and begins training the eye to perceive and apply the distinctions of hue, value, tone, and temperature. Methods of color classification set the stage for a sequence of projects designed to help students develop the ability to begin working with color formally and descriptively. Homework assignments apply principles learned in class. Formerly FP 103

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to majors in the College of Art and Design. Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FNDP 104 - Materials, Tools and Form

This course instructs students in those basic manual skills that help them build three-dimensional objects and spatial works. No prior experience with manual media or a portfolio of work is required. Paper and wood are the primary materials used and all assignments include instruction on how to best use these materials. Assignments that focus on the design of spaces and environments are included. Instruction is conducted in the Foundation studio and wood shop, and all students are given an orientation to the safe use of that facility and all its power tools. Formerly FP 104

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to students in the College of Art and Design. Priority enrollment for Theater Design and Technology majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

THPD 120 - Crew

Four different production assignments for School of Theater productions. Continues the classroom instruction in theater tech skills, providing an increased understanding of Technical Production. Formerly TH 103L

Prerequisites & Notes

Theater Management and Production - Bachelor of Fine Arts (formerly Applied Theater Arts)

Program Total Credits: 124

Theater artists must be well-versed in a variety of disciplines, each vital in itself and intimately related to all that occurs in a production effort. Students majoring in Theater Management and Production are called upon to develop competencies across a spectrum of these disciplines. As such, they study stage management, directing, playwriting, combat, mask, arts administration, theater history and dramatic literature—all in a context that supports theatrical production. This program is designed to provide practical training for the student who possesses a collaborative perspective. The BFA in Theater Management and Production (TMP) allows the students, in their junior year, to move toward a concentration in a particular area of emphasis, such as many of those mentioned here.

The Bachelor of Fine Arts in Theater Management and Production allows students with a range of theatrical interests to shape their own individualized course of study. It is designed to give students the practical, artistic, and intellectual foundation necessary for a successful professional life in live theater and allied disciplines.

Practical studio and production training, received in the student's first two years, is enriched by an understanding of the theater as an art, an industry, and an institution with a history and a vital role in society.

This foundation training prepares the students to emphasize one or more of the above-mentioned disciplines at the upper-division levels and to shape their own curriculum. Upon declaring a concentration in one of these fields, students complete their course of study via a series of production practica and independent study projects. Internships, arranged through the School's outstanding relationship with area professional theaters, further strengthen the students' skills and enhance their professional viability. Students completing this program are prepared to enter the industry on either the production or the administrative end and may pursue a range of career options or choose to pursue further study in the above fields.

This program is a good choice for students who are drawn to the collaborative nature of theater. It is an ideal program of study for the student who has a profound passion for theater and/or the entertainment field, but whose long-term interest may lie outside performing. At the same time, it is a curriculum that places that student at the heart of the production process. The program is also well-suited to students who may have an interest in advanced or graduate study in theater.

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Junior Year Credits: 31

Fall Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 2 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

THPD 262 - Theater Management

An introduction for the Applied Theater Arts student to the important role that theater managers and their administrative staffs play in the day-to-day operations of theater companies. A close-up look at all the facets of running a successful theater: fundraising and audience development, marketing and public relations, fiscal organization and board relations, box office and house management, and educational outreach. Formerly TH 228

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THPD 261

Open to majors in the School of Theater Arts only. Priority enrollment to Theater Management and Production majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THPD 320 - Production Practicum

Practical application of training to experiences in a wide range of production areas: dramaturgy, design, technology, theater management, etc. May include realized studio, workshop or project assignments. Formerly TH 349

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THPD 120 or THPD 261

Open to Applied Theater Arts and Theater Design and Technology majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, hrs vary

THST 131 - Introduction to Design

The fundamentals of design for the theater including costume, lighting, and scenery. Review of the designer's role in the production process, design requirements, and aesthetics. Emphasis on the basic principles of two-dimensional art and graphic forms through various media and study of color and color theory. Formerly TH 139

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

- THST 461- Directing Studio, 3 cr

Spring Credits: 16

- Electives Credits: 3 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr
- LALL XXX - Dramatic Literature Elective Credits: 3 cr
(See the Elective Options below)

LAPR 851 - Arts Criticism

A writing course designed to promote understanding and interpretation of the arts across a multidisciplinary spectrum and to provide students with the basic tools of critical analysis. Group discussion and selected readings. Formerly HU 323

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs
(or equivalent)

THPD 320 - Production Practicum

Practical application of training to experiences in a wide range of production areas: dramaturgy, design, technology, theater management, etc. May include realized studio, workshop or project assignments. Formerly TH 349

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THPD 120 or THPD 261

Open to Applied Theater Arts and Theater Design and Technology majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, hrs vary

THST 440 - New Play Workshop

This workshop explores the collaborative relationship between the playwright, director, and actor in the practical creation of a new work. Within a supportive environment that encourages risk and exploration, the new work is developed through dramaturgical investigation, class discussion and critiques by the instructor, and results in an informal reading of the piece. Formerly TH 412

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 361

THST 361 - Fundamentals of Directing

An overview of the directorial process. Discusses the various facets of a director's job, especially in the early phases of a production, e.g. working with the actor, casting, table work and rehearsal, and culminates with each student directing a scene of his/her own. The emphasis is on empowering the students as theater practitioners, within the rehearsal process, by introducing them to the basic problems encountered by the stage director, with whom all theater participants work. Formerly TH 317

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: THST 232, THPD 261 or THST 201

Open to Acting, TMP and Technology majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THST 440 - New Play Workshop

This workshop explores the collaborative relationship between the playwright, director, and actor in the practical creation of a new work. Within a supportive environment that encourages risk and exploration, the new work is developed through dramaturgical investigation, class discussion and critiques by the instructor, and results in an informal reading of the piece. Formerly TH 412

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 361

Priority enrollment to Applied Theater Arts majors. Open to majors in the School of Theater Arts. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THST 461 - Directing Studio

A thorough investigation of the directing vocabulary, exercises in space and composition, exploration of scripts from the director's point of view, and practical experience with ground plans. The student is asked to demonstrate his/her understanding of blocking values and textual analysis by conceptualizing and then staging simple scenes. Introduces the basics of acting coaching and is coordinated with script analysis and dramatic criticism. Formerly TH 417

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 361

Priority enrollment to Applied Theater Arts majors. Open to majors in the School of Theater Arts

The arts have the power to transform society. They play an essential role in ensuring and enhancing the quality of life.

Mission

The arts have the power to transform society. They play an essential role in ensuring and enhancing the quality of life. The University of the Arts is committed to inspiring, educating and preparing innovative artists and creative leaders for the visual, performing, and media arts of the twenty-first century.

Purpose

The University of the Arts is devoted exclusively to education and training in the arts. Within this community of artists the process of learning engages, refines, and articulates all of our creative capabilities. Our institution was among the first to contribute to the formation of an American tradition in arts education. We continue to develop interpreters and innovators who influence our dynamic culture.

The University:

- Educates and professionally trains artists in the visual and performing arts, in design, in media, and in writing;
- Grants graduate and undergraduate degrees, diplomas, and certificates in the arts;
- Provides educational programs centered in the arts to multiple populations;
- Encourages relationships among the arts;
- Promotes high standards in creativity and scholarship;
- Prepares artists who will contribute responsibly to our culture;
- Challenges students to think critically, joining knowledge and skill to their individual creative vision;
- Anticipates and cultivates new art forms as they emerge.

We serve the community in which we reside, the professions for which we prepare new members and, ultimately, the society whose culture we both sustain and advance. The University's goal is to direct each student's quest for creative self-expression toward a productive role in society. Our programs develop the student's talent, aesthetic sensibility, conceptual and perceptual acumen, cultural awareness, and professional expertise. The curricula integrate specific knowledge and skills needed for technical mastery of the various arts disciplines with a significant examination of conceptual and humanistic studies.

To this end, the University must gather and retain a distinguished teaching faculty offering a breadth of professional expertise. Their scholarly work and artistic exploration have national and international consequences for the institution. Our educational programs seek to stimulate and influence not only our students but the very disciplines that we teach.

History of the University of the Arts

The University of the Arts we celebrate today evolved from two century-old institutions: the Philadelphia College of Art (PCA) and Philadelphia College of the Performing Arts (PCPA).

PCA was established in 1876 as part of the Philadelphia Museum of Art. Together, they were originally known as the Pennsylvania Museum and School of Industrial Art, created in response to the growing interest in art and art education stirred by the country's Centennial Exposition. In 1949 PCA changed its name to the Philadelphia Museum School of Art, reflecting expanded programs that trained artists in a variety of areas. The school received accreditation as a college in 1959 and, in 1964, separated from the Museum to become the Philadelphia College of Art.

The performing arts programs of the University of the Arts date back to 1870, when three graduates of Germany's Leipzig Conservatory opened the Philadelphia Musical Academy, one of the first European-style conservatories of music in America. The Academy became an independent college of music in 1950, one of only eight institutions in the nation to offer four-year Bachelor of Music degrees. The school changed its name to the Philadelphia College of Performing Arts (PCPA) in 1976. One year later, the Philadelphia Dance Academy became part of PCPA and, in 1983, the School of Theater was created, achieving the college's ideal combination of dance, music, and theater arts.

In 1985 PCA and PCPA merged to become the Philadelphia Colleges of the Arts, a collaboration bringing the institution one step closer to becoming the nation's first comprehensive arts university. After being granted university status in 1987, the University of the Arts became the largest institution of its kind in the nation, offering programs in design, fine arts, media arts, crafts, music, dance, and theater. In 1996 the University established the College of Media and Communication, offering degrees in Communication, Writing for Film and Television, and Multimedia.

The College of Art, Media and Design was formed in 2011 by joining the College of Art and Design and the College of Media and Communication.

Accreditation

The University of the Arts is authorized by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to grant degrees in the visual, performing, and related arts, and is accredited by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools (Commission on Higher Education, Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools, 3624 Market Street, Philadelphia, PA 19104; 215-662-5606). The College of Art and Design is also an accredited institutional member of the National Association of the Schools of Art and Design, and the Industrial Designers Society of America. The School of Music is also accredited by the National Association of Schools of Music.

Nondiscrimination Policy

The University of the Arts is committed to maintaining an environment in which students, faculty, and staff may pursue academic, artistic, and professional excellence. This environment can be secured only through mutual respect and unconstrained academic and professional interchange among faculty, staff, and students. Under the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972, other state and federal laws, and the University of the Arts policy, the faculty, staff, and students of the University are entitled to participate in, and obtain the benefits of University programs, activities, and employment without being discriminated against on the basis of race, creed, color, ancestry, national origin, sex, pregnancy, age, religion, disability, sexual orientation, gender identity, marital status, or military status.

This policy includes the rights, policies, and procedures set forth in the University's anti-harassment policy, set forth in Section 3.14 of the Faculty Handbook.

The University also strictly prohibits any form of retaliation or reprisal against anyone reporting allegations of harassment or discrimination, or cooperating in an investigation of such a report. Such retaliation shall be considered a serious violation of the University's nondiscrimination policy and shall be punishable by discipline up to and including termination, regardless of whether the charge of discrimination is substantiated. However, if an employee, student, or faculty member is found to have intentionally lied about a claim of discrimination, or brought a claim in bad faith, knowing that the allegation of discrimination is false, then that employee, student, or faculty member may be subject to discipline or expulsion.

Examples of prohibited retaliation include: threatening reprisals against the person who complained or cooperated in an investigation; unfairly changing a person's evaluations, assignments, grades, or working conditions; or otherwise continuing any harassment or discrimination against such person.

The University of the Arts gives equal consideration to all applicants for admission and financial aid, and conducts all educational programs, activities, and employment practice in accordance with the policy as stated above.

Inquiries concerning the application of the laws and regulations concerning equal employment and education opportunity at the University of the Arts (including Title VI - equal opportunity regardless of race, color or national origin; Section 504 - equal opportunity for the disabled; and Title IX - equal opportunity without regard to gender) may be referred to:

Independent Study

^ TOP

Independent Study offers a matriculated student the opportunity to initiate individual research or advanced projects that are beyond the limits of the standard curriculum, with limited supervision. Independent Study is available to Junior and Senior undergraduate students who have a minimum 2.5 GPA and to graduate students in good standing. To enroll in an Independent Study, the student must follow these guidelines:

1. Obtain an Independent Study Form from the Office of the Registrar.
2. Prepare a proposal and identify a University of the Arts faculty member having expertise in the area of investigation who is willing to serve as the course advisor. With the consultation of the course advisor, complete the Independent Study Form, which must include a semester plan for the course of study, indicating the number of credits being taken and the evaluation criteria. The form must be signed by the course advisor and the student's department chair/school director.

3. Present the approved Independent Study Form at registration or within the Drop/Add period, along with your registration or Drop/Add form. The course number for an independent study is the department code (the course advisor's department) and course number "999" (Example: FAPR 999).
4. Each Independent Study may be taken for one to three credits in Liberal Arts, 1.5 to six credits in CAD, and one to six credits in CPA and CMAC.
5. The student is responsible for documenting the content of the Independent Study work to other institutions or outside agencies.
6. Students cannot elect the Pass/Fail or Audit options for Independent Study.

Independent Study cannot fulfill major requirements. Independent Study may serve as free, studio, and liberal arts electives, depending on the topic of investigation. Students cannot apply more than 12 total credits of independent study towards their degree requirements.

Credit for an Independent Study cannot be reduced or increased after the student has registered.

Graduate Independent Study

^ TOP

Independent study by graduate students is governed by the policies listed above with the following exception:

The course number for graduate independent study is the department code (the course advisor's department) and course number, e.g., GRPR 690.

Internships

^ TOP

Internships allow matriculated graduate students and undergraduate students in their Junior or Senior year to earn academic credit while working in their chosen field. Internship courses are scheduled during the fall and spring semesters and, with special permission from their dean and department chair/director, during the summer. To register for an internship, see the course bulletin and the appropriate department for current offerings. Internship courses are graded on a Pass/Fail basis.

Students who intend to enroll in Summer Internships and receive academic credit for the experience must pre-register in the spring for a summer semester. It is the responsibility of students wishing to take summer internships to identify faculty who are willing to sponsor and are able to supervise their work. Summer internships cannot be added to the schedule once the internship has begun. Up to three credits of a summer internship may be taken at no tuition charge. Additional credits above the three credit maximum will incur charges at the per credit tuition rate.

Students may not apply more than six internship credits toward their degree requirements, with the exception of students who major in Dance or Theater. For detailed information please see the Internship section of the Art and Design section of this Catalog, and the course descriptions in this catalog.

Undergraduate Minors/Concentrations

^ TOP

The University offers minors and concentrations for undergraduate degree candidates who wish to focus on a specific discipline through organized electives. Please refer to the college sections of this catalog for information about offerings, eligibility, prerequisites, and course requirements. You may also contact the departments directly for additional information.

Students wishing to include a minor as part of their undergraduate program should be advised that some major/minor combinations may not be completed, thus it is not always possible to complete a minor, and there are no penalties for starting a minor and not completing it. Students are not permitted to continue pursuit of the minor once all degree requirements have been met. All University minors are governed by the following guidelines:

1. Students must meet eligibility requirements, which may include a satisfactory grade-point average, prerequisites, and departmental portfolio review.
2. An intent to complete a minor is declared by filing the completed Minor Declaration Form with the Office of the Registrar. The forms are available in the Office of the Registrar.
3. A student may not major and minor in the same program, except where indicated.

4. Courses applied to the minor may only be applied towards elective requirements.
5. All minors require a minimum of 15 credits, with the exception of E-Music for Music majors. Generally, no substitutions to the minor requirements are allowed. In exceptional situations where substitutions are granted, they must have the approval of both the major and minor program advisors.
6. The requirements of the minor must be completed prior to graduation.
7. A student pursuing a minor may be required to complete more than the minimum number of credits required to complete the undergraduate degree in order to also complete the minor.
8. Minors are available only to undergraduate students.

Cross-College Elective Options and Prerequisites ^{^ TOP}

The University encourages students to take courses outside their major department and college. To facilitate this goal, the University offers a wide selection of courses that are open without prerequisites. Students may select from introductory electives and non-major courses. In general, upper-level courses will have specific prerequisites, which must be satisfied prior to registration. Students interested in these areas are advised to contact the department chairperson or school director regarding specific course offerings and prerequisite requirements.

Pass/Fail Option ^{^ TOP}

1. In courses taken on a Pass/Fail basis, the standard letter grades of “A” to “C” are converted to “OP” by the Registrar. A grade of “C-” to “F” is recorded as “OF.”
2. The Pass/Fail grading option must be selected prior to the end of the Drop/Add period; no change from Pass/Fail to a regular grade or a regular grade to Pass/Fail may be made after that deadline.
3. Grades of “OP” or “OF” are not computed in the grade-point average.
4. The Pass/Fail policy stipulates that the instructor is not to be informed as to who is enrolled on a Pass/Fail basis.
5. Availability of this option is limited to a total of nine credits in Liberal Arts courses or studio electives during the student’s undergraduate career. Pass/Fail courses may not include First Year Writing, Introduction to Modernism, any Independent Study course, or any required discipline history course.

Graduate Courses for Undergraduate Credit ^{^ TOP}

Undergraduate students who wish to enroll in a graduate course must have Junior status (U3), a 3.0 cumulative GPA, and permission of the instructor to enroll in the course.

Private Lessons ^{^ TOP}

Private instrumental/vocal lessons for non-majors may be taken for elective credit (1.5 credits, seven hours of instruction per semester) with permission of the Director of the School of Music. An additional fee is required.

Auditing a Course ^{^ TOP}

Audited courses are an excellent mechanism for students to refresh their skills and/or understanding of a topic without the pressure of pursuing a grade. Audited courses carry no credit and do not satisfy degree requirements. An audited course may not be repeated for credit. Therefore, students may not audit a required course unless the course requirement has already been satisfactorily met as dictated by their degree requirements. Regular tuition rates are charged for audited courses, and they are included in the full-time tuition charge. Audited courses will be indicated on the transcript with a grade of “AU” and may be registered for until the end of the Drop/Add period.

Study Abroad and Off-Campus Study Policies and Procedures ^{^ TOP}

Study abroad, domestic mobility, and exchange opportunities are available through programs hosted or coordinated through regionally accredited U.S. institutions or through direct application to a foreign institution. The selection of a program should be made carefully, as it may have implications for financial aid, transferability of credits, progress in the major and the completion of degree requirements.

Students interested in study abroad should meet with the Director of Study Abroad Programs to discuss issues such as program selection, timing, and feasibility, and to receive guidance on the necessary processes. Those who choose to participate must complete the Petition for Approval of Study Abroad, available through the portal, the Office of the Registrar, or the Liberal Arts Office. Approval of this petition serves several purposes: it maintains the student's status at UArts as an active degree candidate; it documents the approval of off-campus coursework for transfer credits; and, when applicable, it registers the student for the place-holder credits necessary to the financial aid allocation process.

In order to complete the Petition, the student must consult with the Dean of the Liberal Arts Division for approval of credits to satisfy Liberal Arts requirements, and with his or her academic chair/director for approval of courses to satisfy requirements in the major. The Petition is complete only when both have indicated their approval. It must be submitted to the Study Abroad Program office, with a required statement of purpose, by the following dates:

For study abroad in the fall semester:

- Statement of Purpose received by March 20
- Application received by March 30

For study abroad in the spring semester:

- Statement of Purpose received by May 1
- Application received by May 10

Approval of the Petition will permit a student to register for Study Abroad credits for that semester during the normal registration process. The Student Financial Services office will be informed of the student's intent to study abroad so that his or her financial aid package will be defined appropriately.

While the Petition is for study abroad at a particular, affiliated program with which the University has a formal tuition and billing arrangement, it does not constitute acceptance by the affiliated program itself. Each affiliated program defines its own application process and timetable. The Study Abroad Office will provide information and assistance as needed.

Students who have submitted an approved Petition for Study Abroad remain active degree candidates at UArts during their semester abroad and may receive the financial aid for which they are eligible. Please note that in cases where the student prefers to register and pay tuition at the overseas host institution, the student must request a Leave of Absence or Withdrawal from UArts, and must fill out a Petition for Transfer Credit to ensure that the courses being taken will keep the student on track for graduation.

Once a Petition for Study Abroad at an affiliated institution is approved, a student

1. is assured that he/she will maintain UArts student status during the semester abroad and thus eligibility for appropriate financial aid support;
2. will be registered for a minimum of 12 credits of off-campus study using the appropriate Study Abroad course number (EX 999);
3. will be billed for tuition and fees by UArts. UArts will then pay up to that same amount toward the tuition and fees of the host institution. If the cost of tuition and fees at the host institution is greater than tuition and fees at UArts, the student is responsible for the difference. He or she is also responsible for the costs of travel and housing for the study abroad program.

Once the student's official transcript from the off-campus institution is received and processed, the student's UArts transcript will indicate the credits earned at the off-campus institution as long as they meet UArts transfer guidelines. Please refer to the Transfer Credit Policy for more information.

UArts and University of the Sciences Exchange Program

^ TOP

The University of the Arts and University of the Sciences in Philadelphia (USP) have an exchange program that allows students from both universities to take advantage of their courses and special facilities. The agreement allows students from all three colleges to take one course a semester at the University of the Sciences. Paying regular UArts tuition, students may take up to 18 credits of course work at the University of the Sciences over six semesters, which count in all regards as UArts courses.

The USP courses that are available cover a broad range of subjects – the sciences, foreign languages, the social sciences, history and political sciences, computer science and mathematics, and business and marketing. In addition, exchange students have full access to the USP library, an athletic center with gym, strength training equipment and a three-lane 25-yard pool.

The University of the Sciences students wishing to participate can locate course sections offered at UArts by going to this address.

For more information, contact the Office of the Dean in your college or that of the Director of your program or school.

Undergraduates Enrolled for Graduate Credit

^ TOP

A student in the final year of the bachelor's degree program may take a maximum of six credits of graduate courses toward a master's degree, subject to all of the following conditions:

1. The student must have completed the Junior level of the major.
2. The graduate credits must be over and above the credits required for the bachelor's degree and may not be applied to that degree.
3. The student must have a cumulative GPA of 3.00 or better.
4. Permission is granted by the department chairperson/director and dean of the college.
5. No more than a total of six credits, taken either as a UArts undergraduate or non-matriculated student, or taken at another college or university, may be applied to the graduate program.

Change of Major/Degree Program/College

^ TOP

Students may request a change of major through the Office of the Registrar. Students are advised to initiate the Change of Major Petition prior to registration for the upcoming semester. The petition requires the approval of the appropriate chairpersons or directors of both the former and the intended new department or school. The student will be required either to present a portfolio or to audition as part of the transfer review process. Please note that acceptance into a new major program within the University may be contingent upon the successful completion of the courses in which the student was enrolled at the time the application to make the change was submitted. Therefore, approval to change majors may be rescinded based on the result of that semester's coursework.

After completion of a change of major, students are advised to review their degree program requirements with their new academic advisor, the department chair or school director, and the dean of the appropriate college.

Classroom Policies

Absences

^ TOP

Full participation is expected of all UArts students and is necessary to fully benefit from and succeed in the University's programs of study.

Absences from class may result in a lowered grade or an "F" in the course, depending on the attendance policies stated by the instructor on the syllabus. It is the responsibility of the student to arrange with his/her instructor(s) to make up all missed work. Failure to do so will also affect the student's grade.

In the event that absences are the result of extraordinary, documented circumstances and are numerous enough that it is impossible for the student to qualify for advancement, the student may be advised to withdraw from the course. If the course is required for the degree, the student will also be required to repeat the course in a subsequent semester.

Class Attendance

^ TOP

All students are expected to attend classes regularly and promptly, and for the duration of the scheduled instructional time. Individual instructors will decide the optimum time for taking attendance and may penalize for habitual lateness or absence. Repeated absences may result in a grade of "F" for a course.

Students who withdraw from a course or the University must do so through the Registrar's Office. Non-attendance does not constitute an official withdrawal.

Change in Degree Requirements

^ TOP

Students who have not completed degree requirements at the end of seven years from the date of initial matriculation may be subject to new degree requirements, which will be determined by the department chairperson and the Office of the Registrar on a case-by-case basis.

Class/Lesson Cancellations or Lateness of Instructor

^ TOP

Students must check every morning for notices regarding class or lesson changes. Such notices are posted in a designated area. If none are posted for the scheduled class or lesson and the instructor is not present, students are expected to wait 10 minutes for an hour-long class/lesson and 15 minutes for those of longer duration. In the event the instructor fails to appear within the 10-15 minute waiting period, students are to report to the appropriate School Director's or Department Chairperson's office and may then leave without penalty.

Academic Progress and Student Responsibility

^ TOP

Each student is responsible for observing all regulations in the UArts Course Catalog that may affect academic progress, financial obligations, relationships with University authorities, transferability of credits, acceptance of credits for graduation, and eligibility to graduate, as well as:

- Knowing regulations regarding withdrawals, refund deadlines, program changes, and academic policy;
- Registering each semester in accord with the posted schedule (see Academic Calendar). Failure to register will result in a late registration fee; and
- Meeting any financial or academic requirements that have caused a hold to be placed on their student record.

A student cannot officially register until clearance has been obtained from the Student Billing Office.

Academic advising at the University is designed to assist students in directing and completing their degree programs by providing guidance through contact with informed advisors and information available in various UArts publications. Students are expected to refer to the University Course Catalog and course bulletins for information on policies, procedures, and deadlines. Students are assigned a faculty advisor in their department and when in doubt about any College or University regulation should seek advice from their academic advisor or the Office of the Registrar.

School Closings

Information about School Closings can be found in General Information.

Use of Student-owned Technology

Information about use of student-owned technology can be found in the Digital Technology at UArts section.

Academic Intervention and Student Success

^
TOP

The University employs a multi-faceted strategy to help promote student success.

This strategy includes, but is not limited to the following:

- Clear statements of academic requirements and expectations within each course, each major, and the University as a whole can be found on course syllabi, in the University catalog, and each student's degree audit.
- Questions about any requirements or expectations should be raised directly with the student's instructor, advisor or department director/chair. The College/Division Deans Offices are also an excellent source of additional information or clarification on these matters.
- Please refer to the University Catalog's section on Policies and Procedures for Enrolled Students for the full listings of policies that govern issues such as minimum course grades, attendance requirements, and withdrawal from a course or program.

- Direct communication between the instructor and the student may be conducted through individual meetings (both informal and scheduled), in-class conversations, telephone calls, comments on returned papers and projects, email, and use of the course space in Sakai. Therefore, it is essential that all students regularly use and check their UArts email accounts, the Sakai site for each course in which they are enrolled, and keep their contact information up to date. Faculty publish their contact information and any scheduled office hours on their syllabi. Students are also encouraged to contact faculty through their departmental offices.
- Mid-semester Progress Reports. Undergraduate students who are designated members of the Academic Achievement Program, or who are already on Academic Warning, and all students taking LACR 007,008,009, 100, 101,102 (ESL and First-Year Writing) are evaluated during the semester by their instructors. These reports are shared with their advisors and the Associate Dean of Students. The information collected will be used to help identify and conduct outreach to students who would benefit from interventions such as tutoring, counseling, or a change in schedule.
- Deficiency Notices. In the event that a student is not performing well at any point of the semester in a particular course, the instructor is advised to send a deficiency notice to the student, which will be copied to the student's advisor and their college dean.
- Academic Caution. Academic Caution (AC) is a written notification of a student's need to improve his/her academic performance and is not considered formal censure. The AC letter provides suggestions or requirements that are aimed at improving performance and preventing future Warnings or eventual dismissal. Please see the full description in the following section on Undergraduate and Graduate Academic Review.

Undergraduate Grade Point Average (GPA) Requirements:

Undergraduate Cumulative Grade-Point Average Requirements:

Students in all programs must maintain a minimum semester and cumulative GPA of 2.0. In some programs students must also satisfy minimum grade requirements in major coursework. (Please refer to the department sections of this catalog for more specific information on minimum grade requirements for certain majors.) In all undergraduate programs, a cumulative GPA of 2.0 is required in order to graduate.

Graduate Grade Point Average (GPA) Requirements:

A minimum cumulative GPA of 3.0 is required for good standing and for graduation for graduate students. If a student is unable to achieve a semester and cumulative GPA of 3.0, he or she will be placed on Academic Warning by the Academic Review Committee of his or her college. If a 3.0 GPA and/or other conditions imposed by the ARC are not attained by the following semester, the student may be dismissed from the program. While on Warning, a student will be ineligible to hold a graduate assistantship or to receive a University supplemental grant-in-aid or scholarship. In some programs students must also satisfy earn a minimum grade of "B" in major coursework. (Please refer to the department sections of this catalog for more specific information on minimum grade requirements for certain majors.)

Undergraduate and Graduate Academic Review

Academic Review is a process by which the Academic Review Committee (ARC), comprised of University faculty and staff charged with supporting student success, review the performance of students who are considered to be in academic jeopardy, where students may not be capable of maintaining academic success without intervention. It is the duty of the committee to determine appropriate forms of intervention and/or formal warnings for students in academic jeopardy. The Committee, in accordance with University policy, evaluates the records of such students, determines whether or not to issue formal warnings, gives benchmarks for progress in order to assist their return to good standing, and, when appropriate, dismisses students. The determination of academic jeopardy is made by the ARC on a case-by-case basis according to specific criteria defined below. Inadequate progress in the pursuit of degree requirements and multiple semesters resulting in academic warnings are criteria for additional censure. Actions taken will become more severe with each warning, up to and including dismissal..

Definitions of Class Level:

A student's class level is determined by the number of credits earned, regardless of the number of semesters of enrollment or the student's standing in his or her major program. Students are considered:

- In the first year of study if they have completed 29.5 credits.
- In the second year of study if they have completed between 30 and 59.5 credits.
- In the third year of study if they have completed between 60 and 89.5 credits.
- In the fourth year of study if they have completed 90 or more credits.

Academic Caution

In keeping with the University's commitment to supporting student success, Academic Caution (AC) is a written notification of a student's need to improve his/her academic performance and is not a formal censure. The AC may provide suggestions or requirements that are aimed at improving performance and preventing future warnings.

Undergraduate students may be placed on AC for any of the following reasons:

- Failure to meet the minimum grade requirements in specified courses(s) for the first time.
- Semester or Cumulative GPA is less than 2.25 but greater than 1.74 in the first year of study.
- Semester or Cumulative GPA is less than 2.25 but greater than 1.99 in subsequent years of study.

Students placed on Academic Caution who, in the following semester, do not successfully meet the requirements stated by the ARC in the academic caution letter risk a formal warning.

Students with Incomplete Grades (I)

When students take an Incomplete (I) their semester and cumulative GPA is calculated without the I grade factored in, thus producing a temporary GPA that may later be raised or lowered, depending on the final grade and its impact on the GPA. Students who have taken one or more Incompletes (I), but, by virtue of their low GPA, appear to warrant review by the Academic Review Committee, will be issued an Academic Caution letter. In the event that it is clear to the committee that the anticipated grade, regardless of its outcome, cannot effectively raise the student's cumulative and or semester GPA significantly enough to avoid academic warnings or dismissal, then the student will be formally warned or dismissed in accordance with the policies noted in this catalog.

Students who receive an Incomplete must be aware that classes where an Incomplete has been taken cannot be counted as Progress Toward Degree for financial aid purposes. Thus, students who take Incompletes into the next semester will not be eligible for financial aid until successful grades for those classes are posted to their transcript, unless they seek and are granted an appeal from the Office of Financial Aid.

When the student completes the form to request the Incomplete, they can also request an appeal for Continuation of Aid simply by signing the Request for Appeal section of the form. This effectively requests that the information on the form be shared with the Office of Financial Aid as an official appeal for Continuation of Financial Assistance.

Please note that the appeal is not automatically granted, and the Office of Financial Aid will notify the student via his/her UArts email account once the appeal has been considered and a decision rendered. Additionally, students who receive such appeals must remember that financial aid may be jeopardized mid-semester in the event that the Incomplete is not ultimately converted to passing or satisfactory grade.

Students should refer to policies on Grades of Incomplete in the section of the catalog.

Academic Censure (First and Final Warning)

The Academic Review Committee (ARC), in accordance with University policy, will formally warn students as follows:

First Warning:

Semester or Cumulative GPA in the first year of study is less than 1.75 and greater than 1.49

Semester GPA in the second or third year of study is less than 2.0 and greater than 1.49

Cumulative GPA in the second year is less than 2.0 and greater than 1.75

Semester GPA in the fourth year of study is less than 2.0 and greater than 1.749

Final Warning:

Semester or Cumulative GPA in the first year of study is greater than 0.99 and less than 1.5

Semester GPA in the second or third year of study is greater than 0.99 and less than 1.5

Semester GPA in the fourth year of study is greater than 0.99 and less than 1.75

Cumulative GPA in the second year of study is greater than 1.49 and less than 1.75

Cumulative GPA in the third year of study is greater than 1.49 and less than 2.0

Cumulative GPA in the fourth year of study is greater than 1.749 and less than 2.0

Students who receive a First or Final Warning remain in good standing. Warnings are issued to alert the student that his/her academic performance is not meeting the University's standards, and if not corrected, may result in dismissal or the inability to graduate as planned. In order to help improve the student's academic performance, the ARC will normally place specific requirements on students in addition to those stated on the degree audit. These requirements may include repeating courses, meeting with advisors, limiting the number of credits taken in a given semester, and/or tutoring. Students placed on First or Final Warning receive a letter from the dean's office of their college communicating the terms and conditions of the decision of the Academic Review Committee.

The Academic Review Committee will also move to dismiss students:

After a semester or cumulative GPA in any year of study that is less than 1.0.

When the cumulative GPA in the second or third year of study is less than 1.5

When the cumulative GPA in the fourth year of study is less than 1.75

The ARC may also choose to dismiss a student who was previously placed on First or Final Warning, if the student's performance has not sufficiently improved, and/or the student failed to adhere to the requirements stated in the ARC's warning letter. Students who were placed on Probation prior to Fall 2008 may similarly be subject to dismissal. Grades below required minimums in major coursework will also be a factor in the ARC's decision.

While Academic Dismissal is a harsh sanction, the ARC is obligated to dismiss students whose academic performance suggests an inability to complete the degree. Students who are being dismissed will receive a Letter of Dismissal from the office of the dean of their college; the letter shall include guidelines for appeal. Any student whose appeal of dismissal is granted and who is permitted to continue as an enrolled student will automatically be placed on Final Warning until the stated conditions are met, and will not be eligible to appeal future dismissals.

Appeals

Any student who is dismissed may appeal that decision to the ARC which, for the purpose of hearing the appeal will now include the dean of the college. All dismissal letters stipulate the process and timetable for registering the appeal. Prior to the hearing, the student must deliver a written request (via hard copy or email from the student's UArts email account) in which the appeal is formally requested. Students are expected to arrive at the appeal with a letter for the ARC that articulates the causes of the student's poor performance, and a personal strategy for improved performance should the dismissal be revoked. The assistant or associate dean of the student's college is available to help the student understand what might be successful grounds for an appeal.

Following the appeals hearing, the ARC will either change the student's status to Final Warning or uphold the recommendation for dismissal. A letter from the dean of the college will be provided in a timely manner to announce the committee's judgment. Any student who wishes to contest a continued decision of dismissal must appeal directly to the Provost of The University. If he or she agrees that dismissal is warranted, that decision is final.

Academic Warning and Financial Aid

As noted above, students who receive academic warnings remain in good standing, but their weak academic performance may nonetheless have financial aid ramifications. Please refer to the of this catalog for more specific information.

Disciplinary Dismissals

TOP

In addition to Academic Dismissal, the University may dismiss students for disciplinary reasons. In such cases, students will automatically receive the grade of "W" for all classes in which they were enrolled at the time of dismissal. For more information on disciplinary action, please refer to the Student Code of Conduct section in this catalog.

Academic Grievance Procedure Including Requests for a Change of Grade

Students who have a concern or grievance regarding any academic matter, other than actions taken by the Academic Review Committee, may use the following process to address those concerns. If the concern or grievance is directly related to actions taken by the Academic Review Committee, please submit a letter of grievance directly to the Office of the Provost.

Grievances must be submitted no later than the end of the seventh week of the semester following the one in which the cause of the grievance occurred. This deadline has been set to allow time for the resolution of incomplete grades from the previous semester in accordance with the policies noted elsewhere in this catalog. Please also note that requests for a change of grade from students who have graduated must adhere to the guidelines noted at the end of this section.

In the event that the student feels the need for a neutral advocate, the student may request the assistance of any staff member of the University at any stage of the grievance process. Please note, however, that the student is strongly encouraged to discuss their choice of a staff member with the Vice President for Student Affairs, Dean of Students.

1. Students who have a concern or grievance regarding an academic matter are encouraged to discuss their concern directly with the instructor.

2. If they are not comfortable presenting their concern in person, or are not satisfied with the outcome of the discussion, they should submit their grievance in writing to the instructor, and send a copy to the chair/director of the department in which the instructor teaches, and the dean of the college.
3. The instructor must respond, in writing, to the student within 20 business days from the date in which a grievance is received. In the case of a grievance filed during winter, spring, or summer breaks, the clock will stop until the first day of the regular academic calendar. The department Chair/Director or Dean of Liberal Arts is available for consultation by either the student or the faculty member, and must be copied on the instructor's response. The chair/director/Dean of Liberal Arts has the right to forward the concern to the Office of the Dean (or the Associate Provost in the case of the Dean of Liberal Arts) should he/she conclude that either the student or instructor's concerns warrant further review or intervention.
4. If the student believes that his/her concern requires further attention, he/she may submit the matter in writing to the Office of the Dean of the college in which the course is offered, or to the Office of the Provost in regards to an issue emerging from a Liberal Arts course.
5. The Dean (Associate Provost for Liberal Arts' cases) must either rule on the case or charge an Academic Grievance Committee within 10 business days. If the Office of the Dean (or Associate Provost) does not wish to rule on the matter, he/she may convene an Academic Grievance Committee to review the concern. The composition of the Academic Grievance Committee is determined by the Dean (Associate Provost in Liberal Arts' cases).
6. As a last resort, the Office of the Dean/(Associate Provost in Liberal Arts' cases) and/or the student may forward concerns to the Office of the Provost for final resolution.

Change of Grade

An instructor may change a grade only if an error occurred in computing or recording the final grade, or if re-evaluation of previously submitted work is warranted. Extra work, beyond that required of other class members during the period when the class met, or work handed in after the completion of the course, may not be offered as reasons for a grade change, except in instances of replacing a grade of Incomplete .

If a student questions the correctness of a grade, the student should address his/her concern in accordance with the Academic Grievance Procedures listed above. Any change of a final grade may be made only by the course instructor, who must personally submit the signed Change of Grade form, including the signature of the academic dean, to the Office of the Registrar no later than the end of the semester following the one in which the grade was given.

Please note that graduated students who wish to seek a change of grade or file an academic grievance must do so no later than three days after the last grades required to fulfill degree requirements are posted.

Academic Integrity

TOP

Academic Integrity is a commitment to the core values of honesty, trust, fairness, respect and responsibility and their role in ensuring the health and vigor of the academic and creative community. Please note that students are encouraged to contact their instructors and/or the University librarians for guidance in maintaining academic integrity in their work.

Violations of Academic Integrity

Violations of academic integrity are considered to be acts of academic dishonesty and include (but are not limited to) cheating, plagiarizing, fabrication, denying others access to information or material, and facilitating academic dishonesty, and are subject to the policies and procedures noted within this catalog, including the Student Code of Conduct and the Student Judicial System. Please note that lack of knowledge of citation procedures, for example, is an unacceptable explanation for plagiarism, as is having studied together to produce remarkably similar papers or creative works submitted separately by two students.

Process for Addressing Violations of Academic Integrity

If an instructor suspects a student of any violation of academic integrity, the following process is to be followed:

1. After an initial consultation with the Chair/Director/Dean of Liberal Arts where the infraction is identified and its seriousness assessed, the instructor must address the situation with the student, either in writing or in person. After having addressed the situation with the student, the instructor shall determine an appropriate course of action within his/her purview as a member of the teaching faculty. (Please refer to the “Sanctions” section of this policy for possible actions to be taken in such cases.)
2. In the case of Assignment Sanctions (see below), the instructor may submit a written summary as outlined above if s/he deems it to be warranted.
3. In the case of Course Sanctions (see below), the instructor must prepare and submit a written summary of the infraction and its penalties to the department chair/director/dean of Liberal Arts of the department (in which the course was taught), to the students, and to the Associate Provost, who will have a copy placed in the student’s confidential Judicial Record.
4. In cases where either the Associate Provost or the instructor determines that the offense merits consideration by the Campus Standards Committee, the instructor works in conjunction with the Associate Provost to formally refer the case to the Campus Standards Committee.

Sanctions

After consulting with the department chair/director/Dean of Liberal Arts, it is up to the instructor to determine how serious the offense is (based upon her/his academic standards and expectations) as it relates to the sanctions to be imposed within his or her course. Both the Associate Provost and the instructor have the right to determine whether the offense warrants advancement to the Campus Standards Committee. The Associate Provost must be kept apprised by the instructor of all actions taken. If it is judged that a student has violated the university’s standards for academic integrity, sanctions may include but are not limited to:

Assignment Sanctions:

1. Repeating the assignment or completing an additional assignment (Please note that when sanctions are imposed in this manner, students become ineligible for an Incomplete or a Withdrawal from the course in which the sanctions are imposed if it is pursued as a result of the sanction.); or
2. Failure of the assignment with no opportunity to repeat it. No points will be earned for the assignment (that is, an F will equal a “0”).

Course Sanctions:

1. Issuance of a warning or verbal reprimand with a written description of the interaction by the instructor. Copies of such reprimands must be kept by the instructor, and submitted to the Office of the Provost who will forward copies to the Student’s Judicial File and the student;
2. Failure of the class; or
3. Referral to the Campus Standards Committee for possible actions that may include but are not limited to suspension, dismissal or expulsion. Such referral is likely in extreme or repeated cases involving a violation of academic integrity.

Appeals Procedure:

Students who wish to appeal the instructor’s sanction(s) should follow the procedure as outlined in the above under the Academic Policies section, “Academic Grievances.”

Students who wish to appeal the decision of the Campus Standards Committee should follow the procedure outlined in the “Student Judicial System ” section of this catalog.

Notice of Deficiency

^ TOP

Instructors are strongly encouraged to advise a student of unsatisfactory performance in the course with a Notice of Deficiency. Unsatisfactory performance may be based on excessive absences; inappropriate or inadequate classroom participation; the quality of work submitted, performed, or created for the class; or the outcome of exams or other assignments given by the instructor either in class or as listed on the syllabus. Deficiency notices are copied to the student's advisor and the Office of the Dean of the College in which the student is enrolled.

Deficiency notices may be sent at any point in the semester.

Once a deficiency notice has been received, a student is expected to follow the instruction/s noted on the form, and is strongly encouraged to meet with his/her instructor and advisor as soon after receiving the deficiency notice as possible.

Dean's List

^ TOP

This list is compiled each semester in the respective deans' offices. The Dean's List honors those undergraduate students who have met the following criteria:

1. Students are full-time undergraduate degree candidates. Candidates for certificate, diploma, and master's degrees are not eligible.
2. A minimum semester GPA of 3.60.
3. No grade lower than a "B" in any course.
4. No grade of "I" or "F" in any course.
5. Enrolled in at least 12 credits for a letter grade.

REGISTRATION

- Registration occurs prior to each semester, for the Fall semester in April, and for the Spring semester in November.
- In preparing for registration, students consult with their faculty advisors, who help them assemble schedules for the semester and who give final approval to all course selections.
- The meeting with the faculty advisor does not constitute registration. Instead, it is the student's responsibility to register either online or in person for the course selections listed on their advising form.
- Once the drop/add period has ended at the beginning of a semester, all students participating in the course, whether enrolled for credit or audit, must be officially registered.
- Students who are not officially registered for the course will not be permitted to attend.

Late Registration

A late-registration fee of $35 will be charged to any student who has not completed registration by the first day of term. Late registration may jeopardize a student's chance of obtaining his/her desired course schedule.

Place Holder Credits

During registration some students have trouble finding courses that fit in their schedules. As a result, they may not be able to register for the 12-credit minimum (nine credits for graduate students) necessary to maintain full-time status. In order to allow such students to pick up a course(s) during the Drop/Add period and thereby maintain their full time status for Financial Aid purposes, a "place holder" is added to the student's registration. It is presumed that the student will find an additional course during the Drop/Add period that takes place during the first 10 days of the semester. Prior to the beginning of the Drop/Add period, each student who has a place holder will be reminded, via email, to register for the additional course(s). If the student does not register for additional coursework by the end of Drop/Add, the place holder will be deleted. At that time, a list of non-full-time students in this status will be generated for the Student Billing Office and Financial Aid Offices for review. This may cause changes in status of the financial aid award and student bill. Under no circumstances will a place holder remain on the registration form after the Drop/Add period ends.

Matriculated Students

^ TOP

Matriculated students are those who have applied, been accepted, and enrolled in a degree program at The University of the Arts during the semester for which they were admitted. Course credits completed prior to matriculation at the University will not necessarily be accepted into the degree programs. In no case will more than six credits taken as a non-matriculated student at The University of the Arts be accepted into the degree program. Students seeking degrees may enroll for part-time or full-time study.

Non-matriculated Students

^ TOP

A student who takes classes in a major department but is not enrolled in a degree program at The University of the Arts and has not submitted an application to the Office of Admission qualifies as a non-matriculated student.

Non-matriculated status provides opportunity to study with a specific professor, or pursue additional college-level instruction for those who already hold a bachelor's degree.

Non-matriculated students may enroll for a maximum of 11.5 credits per semester and may not audit any classes.

Students who subsequently enroll in a University of the Arts degree program may apply a maximum of six credits taken as a nonmatriculated student to their degree at the discretion of the department director/chair. Non-matriculating students who are simultaneously enrolled or have plans to enroll at another institution may transfer credits to that institution if they have received prior approval in writing from that institution.

To enroll as a non-matriculated student, please contact the Office of the Registrar. Non-matriculated students must request permission from the department chairperson or director for each course in which they wish to enroll. Please be advised that there are no payment plans or financial aid opportunities for non-matriculated students, and access is dependent upon the availability of space in their desired program. Non-matriculated students are otherwise governed by all the rules and regulations that apply to matriculated students, including submission of proof of high school graduation prior to enrollment.

Full-time Credit Load/Overloads

^ TOP

Full-time undergraduate students are defined as those who are enrolled in at least 12 credits a semester. Students wishing to take more than 18 credits in a semester must obtain permission from the dean of their college. Factors such as grade-point average and progress in meeting degree requirements will be considered in giving permission for an overload; students are expected to be in good standing and have a 3.0 GPA. Students seeking approval to register for an excess of 18 credits must complete the Request for Overload Approval form and submit it to the Office of the Dean, of their college, for approval. Please note that excess credits are subject to additional charges at the standard credit rate. Registration as Audit or Pass/Fail is counted the same as all other academic credit for the purpose of determining tuition.

Graduate students are considered full time if enrolled in at least nine credits per term.

International students must maintain full-time status.

Full-time Status - Graduate Students

^ TOP

Graduate students are considered full time if enrolled in at least nine credits per semester, with the exception of students enrolled in the Summer MFA program who are considered full time if enrolled in at least 4.5 credits during the Fall and Spring semesters as per their program requirements. Tuition for part-time graduate students is charged on a per-credit basis.

Student Class Level and Course Load

^ TOP

A student's class status is determined by the number of credits earned, regardless of the number of semesters of enrollment or the student's standing in his or her major program. Class status is a factor in determining financial aid eligibility and is one indicator of academic progress. Class standing is also used to prioritize scheduling during registration.

Undergraduate class status is determined as follows:

|----|-----------------------|
| U1 | up to 29.5 credits |
| U2 | 30 - 59.5 credits |
| U3 | 60 - 89.5 credits |
| U4 | 90 - 123 credits |
| U5 | more than 123 credits |

Graduate status is determined as follows:

|----|--------------------|
| G1 | up to 17.5 credits |
| G2 | 18 or more credits |

Auditing a Course

^ TOP

Audited courses are an excellent mechanism for students to refresh their skills and/or understanding of a topic without the pressure of pursuing a grade. Audited courses carry no credit and do not satisfy degree requirements. An audited course may not be repeated for credit. Therefore, students may not audit a required course unless the course requirement has already been satisfactorily met as dictated by their degree requirements. Regular tuition rates are charged for audited courses, and they are included in the full-time tuition charge. Audited courses will be indicated on the transcript with a grade of “AU” and may be registered for until the end of the Drop/Add period.

Credit Duplication

^ TOP

No course, including graduate courses, that has satisfied undergraduate degree requirements may be counted again for graduate credit.

Graduate Topics Course numbers

Information for Graduate Topics Course number can be found in Graduate Student Policies.

Multiple Degrees

^ TOP

1. A student who has completed one degree and wishes to matriculate in another does so by applying to the new program through the Office of Admission.
2. A student may be awarded a particular degree from the University only once; i.e., once the student has earned an MA, he or she may not be awarded another MA.
3. A student may not receive two different master’s degrees from the same program; i.e., he or she cannot pursue both the MA in Art Education and MAT in Visual Arts.
4. A student may earn up to two master’s degrees at the University, either simultaneously or sequentially.

5. If a student is approved for a double degree, and six credits are shared between the two programs, the student may transfer a maximum of six additional credits from an accredited institution.
6. Students in the Summer MFA program who wish to pursue a second graduate degree will be charged the regular graduate tuition rate in the semesters in which they are pursuing two degrees.

Undergraduates Enrolled for Graduate Credit

^ TOP

A student in the final year of the bachelor's degree program may take a maximum of six credits of graduate courses toward a master's degree, subject to all of the following conditions:

1. The student must have completed the Junior level of the major.
2. The graduate credits must be over and above the credits required for the bachelor's degree and may not be applied to that degree.
3. The student must have a cumulative GPA of 3.00 or better.
4. Permission is granted by the department chairperson/director and dean of the college.
5. No more than a total of six credits, taken either as a UArts undergraduate or non-matriculated student, or taken at another college or university, may be applied to the graduate program.

Schedule Revision—Drop/Add

^ TOP

Beginning with the first week of the semester, students who have obtained Student Billing Office clearance may revise their schedules without academic penalty until the end of the Drop/Add period. The Drop/Add period takes place during the first 10 days of classes each semester in accordance with the Academic Calendar.

Leave of Absence

^ TOP

There are two types of Leave of Absence, Medical and General.

Medical Leave of Absence

^ TOP

A Medical Leave of Absence is granted to students who wish to apply for a leave due to a medical condition and must be approved by the Dean of Students. An approved Medical Leave of Absence indicates that a student may return to classes at the end of his/her leave once appropriate medical documentation has been received and verified by the Dean of Students.

General Leave of Absence

A General Leave of Absence is granted to students who wish to take time away from school for personal reasons of a non-medical nature.

Process

A student may request either type of Leave of Absence by obtaining a Leave of Absence Form, available in the Office of the Registrar. Only students in good academic standing may request a Leave of Absence.

Undergraduate students who maintain a minimum 2.0 cumulative and semester grade-point average (GPA) are considered to be in good standing. A Leave may be granted only for one semester within a 12 month period, with approval granted by the Dean of the appropriate college for a general leave, and by the Dean of Students for a Medical Leave. If a student plans to be away for two consecutive semesters, a Leave cannot be granted and the student must instead withdraw from the University and apply for readmission at the time they wish to return. Students who have withdrawn, but seek readmission within no more than two semesters will receive priority consideration for readmission over those students who have been separated from the University for a longer period of time.

A Leave of Absence for a semester already in progress will not be granted after the tenth week of the semester. If a student wishes to leave prior to the end of the tenth week and the request is approved, he/she may withdraw from the current semester courses, with the leave taking effect in the current semester only. In this instance, the student will be subject to the grading, withdrawal periods, and withdrawal refund policies listed elsewhere in this catalog. If a student wishes to depart after the tenth week of the semester, he/she must withdraw from the University.

For both leaves the “effective date” is the date of separation from the University that will be noted on the transcript. The effective date for the Leave of Absence is the date the form is obtained from the Office of the Registrar. The Dean of Students may override this date based on the history of a student’s medical condition for a Medical Leave of Absence, when deemed appropriate.

A student may return before the expiration of the Leave by indicating his/her intention to do so in writing to the Office of the Registrar.

If the student does not register for the term following the Leave’s expiration, but wishes to resume his/her studies at a later date, the student must apply for readmission following the reapplication guidelines in this catalog.

If a student is granted a Leave of Absence for a future semester, but is subsequently placed on probation for the current semester, the Leave of Absence will be converted to a withdrawal. The student will be notified, in writing, of his/her conversion to “withdrawn” status by the Office of the Registrar. Students who are converted to a “withdrawn” status must apply for readmission through the Office of the Registrar in accordance with the policies described in this catalog.

The following is required to obtain a Leave of Absence:

1. The student obtains a Request for Leave of Absence Form from the Office of the Registrar.
2. The student obtains approval from his/her department chair/director.
3. The Student submits the form to the college dean to request a General Leave of Absence and to the Dean of Students for a Medical Leave of Absence for approval.
4. After the Leave of Absence approvals are obtained, the student submits the completed form to the Office of the Registrar for processing and coding. A copy of the form will then be distributed to the student and the Deans.

Graduate Leave of Absence

This information is located in the Graduate Student Policy section.

Additional Notes Regarding Leave of Absence for Graduate Students

A graduate student may take a Leave of Absence prior to the completion of all coursework, subject to approval by his/her program director, and in accordance with the policy described above. Graduate students may take a maximum of two one-semester Leaves of Absence throughout their course of study, whether in sequence or as needed. Once the thesis or Master of Music graduate project has begun and all coursework has been completed, graduate students are not eligible for a Leave of Absence. Students must register and pay for the thesis continuation fee for successive semesters and are not eligible for a Leave of Absence.

Withdrawal from a Course

^ TOP

A student may withdraw from a course with a “W” (Withdrawal) grade from the last day of the Drop/Add period through the last day of the tenth week of the semester. The withdrawal form must be signed by the course instructor and the student’s advisor and submitted to the Office of the Registrar prior to the deadline.

After the end of the tenth week a “W” grade is possible only under unusual circumstances such as an accident or severe illness, which must be documented. Permission to withdraw under such unusual circumstances must be given by the instructor and the Office of the Dean of Students.

A student who wishes to withdraw from all classes must initiate an official Withdrawal or Leave of Absence from the University as outlined in this catalog.

If a student withdraws from all classes and does not officially withdraw from the University or take a leave of absence, he/she may be administratively withdrawn from the University or dismissed in accordance with Academic Review policies.

Withdrawal from the University

^ TOP

A student may withdraw from the University by initiating an official Withdrawal process with the Office of the Registrar. Students who withdraw prior to the beginning of the fall, spring or summer semesters, or prior to the end of the Drop/Add period, do so without academic penalty.

Official Withdrawals after the Drop/Add period, but prior to the end of the tenth week of the respective fall or spring semester or second week of the respective summer session, will result in the notation of the grade “W” (Withdrawal) for all courses.

Students are not permitted to withdraw without academic penalty from the University after the end of the tenth week of a fall or spring semester or second week of a summer session, except when non-academic extenuating circumstances exist, in which case documentation (by a physician or a counseling professional) must be presented and approval of the appropriate Dean must be obtained.

Students who have withdrawn and who wish to resume their studies at a later date must submit a Reapplication Form to the Office of the Registrar, in accordance with application deadlines, and pay the readmission fee.

The following procedure should be followed to obtain official Withdrawal from the University:

1. The student obtains a Withdrawal from the University Form from the Office of the Registrar.
2. If the student does so in person, the Office of the Registrar will advise the student to visit the Dean of Students.

If the student withdrawing from the University is not physically on campus, the Office of the Registrar will accept a letter signed by the student or an email from the student’s UArts email account. After processing the withdrawal, appropriate departments will be notified.

Non-attendance in classes or non-payment of tuition does not constitute grounds for withdrawal. The University does not recognize non-attendance in classes or non-payment of tuition as the equivalent of withdrawal. If the student has not officially withdrawn, and does not attend classes, he/she will be administratively withdrawn prior to the next semester.

Hardship Consideration

^ TOP

A student who experiences extraordinary, unforeseeable circumstances beyond his or her control may file a request to be granted a retroactive withdrawal from the University. A committee comprised of members of the academic, financial, and student affairs functions of the University renders decisions on such hardship requests on a periodic basis. Hardships under consideration by the committee typically fall into one of two categories: a major health crisis in the life of the student or a death or catastrophic illness in a student's immediate family.

Students granted a retroactive withdrawal due to an extraordinary hardship are granted 'W' grades in all classes for the given semester. It is important to note that the effective date of a student's withdrawal and the unique details of that student's financial aid and payments to date will determine the degree to which the student's tuition and housing charges can be refunded. In the event that the University grants a retroactive withdrawal, the University is required to refund all federal aid that was received on the student's behalf for the given semester. Therefore, any student who receives a tuition refund check for overpayment in the semester for which they are seeking a retroactive withdrawal must be aware that any and all distributed moneys will be rescinded as a result of the retroactive withdrawal, and thus may require repayment.

Process:

A hardship request must be filed with the Assistant Dean of Students no later than the end of the semester following the semester in question and must include the following:

- Application for Hardship Status: this form is available on the portal and in the Student Affairs Center in Gershman Hall.
- Personal Statement of Hardship: the student must submit a narrative account of his or her hardship conveying accurate details including relevant dates and a description of how the circumstances impacted the courses in which he or she was enrolled at the time.
- Supporting documentation from official, qualified professionals: type-written correspondence on official office letterhead from a physician, psychiatrist, psychologist or other relevant, objective, licensed healthcare professionals must accompany the hardship request. The death of a parent/guardian requires submission of a death certificate and/or published obituary.

To appeal a decision made by the committee, the student must submit all related materials to the Provost within 90 days of the decision.

Readmission

^ TOP

Written appeal for reinstatement as a degree candidate requires submission of a completed Reapplication form (see above), available in the Office of the Registrar, and a payment of a $50.00 reapplication fee by June 1 for the fall semester and November 1 for the spring semester. Appropriate deans, departmental chairpersons/directors, and the Student Billing Office must endorse the readmission prior to registration. The major department reserves the right to require transcripts, letters of recommendation, an additional portfolio review, or audition. Credit for courses taken seven or more years prior to the date of readmission will be re-evaluated in conjunction with degree programs currently offered. Academic units may choose not to accept courses regardless of when they were completed for credit toward the degree. Final determination on the reapplication will be made by the dean of the college. A decision on readmission applies only to the semester listed on the reapplication. If the student is accepted and does not return for that semester, the student must reapply.

In the event of dismissal, an application for readmission will not be entertained until a full academic year has elapsed. Readmitted students will carry the cumulative GPA that was in place at the completion of the last semester attended at UArts. Please also note that previous censure from the Academic Review Committee will apply to all readmitted students.

Smoking Policy

The University of the Arts maintains a smoke-free environment. Smoking is permitted only out of doors.

Sexual Harassment and Other Prohibited Harassment

The University of the Arts is committed to maintaining an environment in which students, faculty, and staff can pursue academic, artistic, and professional excellence. This environment can be secured only through mutual respect and unconstrained academic and professional interchange among faculty, staff, and students. Faculty, staff, and students of the University are entitled to participate in and obtain the benefits of University programs, activities, and employment without being discriminated against on the basis of their sex, race, religion, creed, age, ethnicity, national origin, pregnancy, disability, sexual orientation, or military status. The University regards any act of sexual harassment or harassment because of race, religion, creed, age, ethnicity, national origin, pregnancy, disability, sexual orientation, or military status to be a violation of the standards of conduct required of all persons associated with the institution. The prohibition against sexual harassment and other forms of harassment applies to all interactions occurring on campus, in University facilities, or within the context of University-related activities. The rights defined by this policy apply to all faculty, staff, and students of the University, and the obligations are binding on all faculty and staff as part of their employment, regardless of tenure or years of service, and all students, regardless of academic status. Harassment constitutes a serious offense and the University will take all necessary disciplinary actions to eradicate it from the University. Those who commit harassment prohibited by this policy are subject to the full range of discipline, up to and including immediate dismissal from the University faculty or employment, or expulsion from the University, as appropriate. The prohibitions set forth in this policy include acts of retaliation against members of the University community who have filed complaints under this policy.

What is Harassment/Sexual Harassment?

Harassment can take many forms, and is not necessarily sexual in nature. It may be, but is not limited to, unwelcome physical contact, intimidation, words, messages and sometimes even jokes and pranks. Keys to determining whether conduct is harassment include (i) whether it is unwelcome or unwanted; (ii) whether it is of the type that a reasonable, objective person would find offensive, hostile, or abusive; and (iii) whether the harassment is based on a protected status such as gender, race, or religion. The term “sexual harassment” has a special meaning and refers to unwanted sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, or other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature when: (1) submission to such conduct is made either explicitly or implicitly a term or condition of an individual’s employment, advancement, or success at the University; (2) submission to or rejection of such conduct by an individual is used as the basis for decisions affecting such individual; or (3) such conduct has the purpose or effect of creating an intimidating, hostile, offensive, or abusive working or educational environment, or otherwise unreasonably interferes with an individual’s terms and conditions of employment or enrollment as a student. Sexual harassment also may include:

- unwanted physical contact or conduct of any kind, including sexual touching, lewd gestures, or flirtation;
- unwelcome sexual advances or propositions;
- requests for sexual favors;
- verbal abuse, threats, or jokes of a sexual nature;
- demeaning, insulting, intimidating, or sexually suggestive comments about an individual or his or her dress or body;
- the display in the workplace of demeaning, insulting, intimidating, or sexually suggestive objects, words, or pictures, including nude photographs;
- the broadcast, publication, communication, or electronic mailing of demeaning, insulting, intimidating, or sexually suggestive written or recorded messages or images.

Although these examples of conduct may constitute harassment, it must be stressed that some of the types of conduct outlined above do not always rise to the level of prohibited harassment. Each situation must be evaluated in context. Similarly offensive conduct directed at an individual because of his or her race, religion, creed, age, sexual orientation, national origin, pregnancy, disability, or military status also may constitute prohibited harassment.

Staff/Student Interaction -Additional Prohibitions

In addition to the general prohibitions against harassment of any type, the University imposes an obligation on its staff members with regard to their interactions with students. No staff member may ask for a date, make a sexual advance to a student, or in any other way become romantically or sexually involved with a student. This rule is for the protection of students, staff, and the University. If a staff member has any doubt or question about whether his or her relationship with a student violates this policy, the staff member should refrain from further interaction with the student and contact the Director of Personnel Services for advice. A staff member may not use, in any way, his or her status as a staff member to intimidate a student or advance a personal or sexual relationship.

Procedures for Reporting Sexual Harassment

A student, employee or faculty member who feels that he or she has been the victim of harassment, must promptly report, either orally or in writing, the harassment to the (i) the Director of Personnel Services, who also serves as the Equal Opportunity Officer for the University, or (ii) the Provost when the alleged harassing party is a member of the faculty; or (iii) the Vice President for Student Affairs, Dean of Students when the alleged harassing party is a student. The matter should be reported as soon as possible after the conduct has occurred, so that it can receive prompt and appropriate attention. If, for any reason, the student, employee, or faculty member is uncomfortable discussing such matters with one of the above officials, he or she must promptly report the matter to the President, or if they are unavailable, to the most senior available administrator. In the event that a complaint of harassment -- formal or informal, written or oral, from the alleged victim or otherwise -- is made to an administrator, faculty member, or staff supervisor other than those specifically identified above, that administrator, faculty member or staff supervisor must: (a) inform the person making the complaint that the matter will be referred to the Director of Personnel Services; (b) ask the person making the complaint to write down the conduct or event(s) believed to be harassment, or record the complaint and obtain the alleged victim's agreement that the record is accurate; and (c) promptly report, either orally or in writing, such complaint to the Director of Personnel Services. Every University administrator, faculty member, and staff supervisor has a duty to maintain a workplace/educational environment free of any form of harassment.

Investigation Process

In the event of any report, orally or in writing, of harassment, a prompt inquiry will be made to determine whether any harassment has occurred. If a preliminary inquiry into the matter indicates there may be validity to the charges, then the University will promptly proceed with a formal, thorough, and impartial investigation. If such a formal investigation proceeds, interviews and/or statements will be obtained from all available involved parties, including the accuser, the accused, and witnesses, if any. If applicable, documents and other evidence will be reviewed. During the investigation, intermediate measures -- such as scheduling changes to avoid contact between the parties -- may be taken to ensure that further harassment does not occur. The investigator(s), upon completion of the factual investigation, will reach factual conclusions, summarize them in writing, and report them to the Director of Personnel Services. Based upon the factual investigation and conclusions, and any other information that becomes available, the Provost, Vice President for Student Affairs, Dean of Students, or Director of Personnel, in consultation with the investigator(s), will reach a conclusion as to whether harassment occurred.

Remedial and Disciplinary Measures

If harassment is found, the University will take immediate steps to stop the harassment, implement appropriate corrective and disciplinary action, and initiate any necessary preventive measures to ensure the harassment does not occur again. Even if the University concludes that harassment did not occur, or that it is unable to determine one way or the other what occurred due to the lack of verifiable or credible evidence, the University may take disciplinary or preventive measures, such as training and monitoring, to ensure harassment does not occur in the future. Within 14 days of the complaint to one of the above officers (or after a longer period, if needed), the Director of Personnel Services, in conjunction with the Provost, or the Vice President for Student Affairs, Dean of Students, as applicable, has the authority, after investigation, to resolve the matter with or without the imposition of sanctions. A written record of the complaint, any investigation, and the resolution of the complaint will be kept in a confidential file in the Director of Personnel Service's office. Any conclusion from the inquiry or investigation will be communicated to both the accuser and the accused, stressing the confidentiality and anti-retaliation provisions outlined in this policy. The accuser and the accused shall have the right to review the written factual findings and conclusions of the investigator.

Further Review

If the complaining party or the accused party is not satisfied with the resolution of the matter, he or she may request a meeting with the President within seven days of being informed of the proposed resolution. The complaining party and the named harassing party have the right to appear before the President, or the President's designated representative for the matter, to provide information and to answer questions. The Provost may provide additional information relating to the investigation and alleged harassment. At the conclusion of any such review, the President shall either affirm the prior conclusion or recommend alternative action. A written determination will be issued, and both the complaining party and the accused will be informed of this decision. No further University review is available. If a recommendation for dismissal is not upheld after exhaustion of the tenured faculty appeal process, the President shall nonetheless take remedial actions, including disciplinary actions short of dismissal, which are reasonably calculated to prevent any future harassment. Such actions are not subject to further review.

Retaliation Prohibited

Retaliation or reprisal of any kind against anyone reporting allegations of harassment, or cooperating in an investigation of such a report, is strictly prohibited. Such retaliation shall be considered a serious violation of this policy and shall be punishable by discipline up to and including termination, regardless of whether the charge of harassment is substantiated. Examples of prohibited retaliation include: threatening reprisals against the employee or student who complained or cooperated in the investigation; unfairly changing the evaluations, assignments, or working conditions of such a student or employee; or otherwise continuing any harassment against such person. If an employee or student is found to have intentionally lied about a claim of harassment, or brought the claim in bad faith, knowing that the allegation is false, then that employee or student may be subject to discipline.

Questions Regarding the Harassment Policy and Procedure

All questions regarding this Policy and Procedure should be directed to the Director of Personnel Services or to the Vice President for Student Affairs, Dean of Students.

Solicitation

In an effort to assure a productive and harmonious work environment, persons not employed by The University of the Arts may not make solicitations or distribute literature at the University at any time for any purpose.

The University recognizes that students and alumni may have interests in events and organizations outside the University. However, students and alumni may not make solicitations or distribute literature concerning these activities on the University campus or by electronic mail.

Substance Abuse Policy

The members of The University of the Arts community and their health and safety are of paramount concern. The University will not tolerate drug and alcohol abuse, as it imperils the health and well-being of its faculty, staff, and students, and threatens the operation of its educational programs.

The use, possession, or distribution of illegal drugs and abuse of other controlled substances, in or out of class, or on University premises is inconsistent with law-abiding behavior expected of all students, and may result in discipline, up to and including expulsion.

The University prohibits the illegal and/or unauthorized manufacture, sale, or delivery, holding, offering for sale, possession, or use of any controlled substance as defined under the Pennsylvania Controlled Substance, Drug, Device and Cosmetic Act, 35 P.S. Section 780-102, the Uniform Controlled Substances Act, the Uniform Narcotic Drug Act, or the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, 21 U.S.C. Section 301 et seq., on University property.

Such controlled substances for the purposes of this policy shall include but not be limited to alcoholic beverages, narcotics, hypnotics, sedatives, tranquilizers, stimulants, hallucinogens, and other similar known or habit-forming drugs and/or chemicals as defined under the aforesaid laws.

Workplace Violence

The University is committed to maintaining a safe working, learning, and living environment for all members of the University community.

Threats, acts of aggression, and violence are unacceptable in the University community. Any such threat or violent act, regardless of intent, will be considered serious misconduct and may be the basis for disciplinary action, up to and including dismissal.

In addition, the University prohibits the possession of firearms, explosives, and other dangerous weapons on campus and at University functions off-campus.

Non-Academic Grievance

In the course of day-to-day interactions within the University, students may encounter circumstances which lead them feel that a member of the University community (including faculty, staff, or administration) has not treated them with respect or fairly considered the students' point-of-view. For redress of such grievances, students are strongly encouraged to address their concern first in direct conversation with the person in question. If resolution is not possible after such dialog, the student should submit a letter or email (from his/her UArts email account) describing the grievance to the direct supervisor of the given faculty member, staff member or administrator, with a copy sent to the individual against whom the student has the grievance. A student seeking assistance with a non-academic grievance may meet with the Vice President for Student Affairs & Dean of Students for guidance.

Please note that non-academic grievances must be filed no later than the end of the semester following the semester in which the incident occurred.

A student with a grievance pertaining to an academic matter, sexual harassment or an alleged violation of the Student Code of Conduct should consult specific sections Academic Grievances, Sexual Harassment, Student Code of Conduct) of the Course Catalog and/or Student Handbook for a full explanation of procedures in such cases.

Thesis Grading

^ TOP

The grade of “IP” (“In Progress”) signifies that the student is making satisfactory progress toward completing the graduate thesis. This grade will apply only to graduate thesis courses where the student’s thesis is still in progress.

This grade is available only for the following courses:

|----------------|-------------------------------|
| AEDU 695 | Graduate Project/Thesis |
| MSEM 781 & 782 | Thesis Development |
| GRID 780 | Master’s Thesis Documentation |

GRFA 785

MFA Thesis Exhibition

MUPH 680

Graduate Project/Recital

An “IP” grade acknowledges the fact that the final course product (thesis) may require some period of time past the semester of registration to complete. The “IP” grade will remain on the student’s record until a final thesis grade is submitted by the instructor. In some cases, a student will be registered for thesis courses as a sequence (e.g. MSEM 781 or MSEM 782). When the final grade is submitted by the instructor, it will replace the “IP” grade. The “IP” grade is not computed in the grade point average.

In order to remain in good standing while the thesis is “in progress,” the student must register for the thesis continuation fee for each semester he or she is not enrolled in coursework.

Computing the Grade-Point Average (GPA)

^ TOP

The GPA is computed by multiplying the number of credits earned for a course by the numerical value of the grade. The resulting figures from all courses for that semester are then totaled, and this figure is divided by the total number of credits attempted that semester. The grades of I, IP, NC, W, OP, OF, P, and AU are not entered in this computation. Please note that all grades of "F" remain in the G.P.A. calculation, even if the "F" was in a course that was repeated and received a higher grade.

Undergraduate Grade-Point Average (GPA) Requirements

Undergraduate students who maintain a minimum 2.0 cumulative and semester grade-point average (GPA) are considered to be in good standing. In some programs students must also satisfy minimum grade requirements in major coursework. (Please refer to the department sections of this catalog for more specific information on minimum grade requirements for certain majors.)

Students who have taken Incompletes will not be evaluated by the Academic Review Committee until the seventh week of the following semester, when final grades are due. Please note that, as a result, financial aid for the semester in progress may be adversely affected.

Graduate Grade Point Average (GPA) Requirements

This information is located on in the Graduate Student Policies section

Grade Change

A request for a change of grade is a form of an academic grievance. The full text of the Academic Grievance policy can be found in the Academic Standards section of this Catalog . Please note that a student may request the assistance of any staff member of the University at any stage of the grievance process.

Students seeking a change of grade must submit a request for a change of grade to the instructor no later than the end of the seventh week of the semester following the one in which the grade was given. Requests for a change of grade for graduated students must be submitted no later than three days after the last grades required to fulfill the degree requirements are posted.

Students and instructors are reminded that an instructor may change a grade only if an error occurred in computing or recording the final grade, or if re-evaluation of previously submitted work is warranted. Extra work, beyond that required of other class members during the period when the class met, or work handed in after the completion of the course, may not be offered as reasons for a grade change.

Any change of a final grade may be made only by the course instructor, who must personally submit the signed Change of Grade form, including the signature of the academic dean, to the Office of the Registrar no later than the end of the semester following the one in which the grade was given.

Pass/Fail Option

^ TOP

1. In courses taken on a Pass/Fail basis, the standard letter grades of “A” to “C” are converted to “OP” by the Registrar. A grade of “C-” to “F” is recorded as “OF.”
2. The Pass/Fail grading option must be selected prior to the end of the Drop/Add period; no change from Pass/Fail to a regular grade or a regular grade to Pass/Fail may be made after that deadline.
3. Grades of “OP” or “OF” are not computed in the grade-point average.
4. The Pass/Fail policy stipulates that the instructor is not to be informed as to who is enrolled on a Pass/Fail basis.
5. Availability of this option is limited to a total of nine credits in Liberal Arts courses or studio electives during the student’s undergraduate career. Pass/Fail courses may not include First Year Writing, Introduction to Modernism, any Independent Study course, or any required discipline history course.

Grade of Incomplete (“I”)

^ TOP

An incomplete grade may be granted only in extraordinary circumstances, either personal or academic, that prevent the student from completing coursework by the end of the semester. The grade “I” is given only when the completed portion of the student’s coursework is of a passing quality. To receive the grade of Incomplete, the student must obtain written approval on the Incomplete Form from the course instructor, and the Dean of the College or the Dean of Liberal Arts prior to the conclusion of the semester.

Incomplete grades not cleared by the end of the sixth week of the following semester will be automatically assigned the grade of “F.” Incomplete Forms are available from the Office of the Registrar.

Students should review policies regarding the impact of Incomplete grades on Academic Censure in the ---Academic Standards section.

Full-time Status

^ TOP

Graduate students are considered full time if enrolled in at least nine credits per semester, with the exception of students enrolled in the Summer MFA program who are considered full-time if enrolled in at least 4.5 credits during the Fall and Spring semesters as per their program requirements. Tuition for part time graduate students is charged on a per-credit basis.

Graduate Transfer Credit

^ TOP

A maximum of six credits of graduate credit may be transferred and applied toward the graduate degree requirements upon approval of the program director. All transfer credits must be graduate-level classes or upper-level undergraduate classes taken for graduate credit at an accredited college or university, approved by the Registrar and the Graduate Director, and must be a “B” or higher grade.

Graduate Independent Study

^ TOP

Independent study by graduate students is governed by the policies listed above with the following exception:

The course number for graduate independent study is the department code (the course advisor’s department) and course number, e.g., GRPR 690.

Student Classification and Course Load

^ TOP

A student’s class status is determined by the number of credits earned, regardless of the number of semesters of enrollment or the student’s standing in his or her major program. Class status is a factor in determining financial aid eligibility and is one indicator of academic progress. Class standing is also used to prioritize scheduling during registration.

Graduate status is determined as follows:

- G1 completion of up to 17.5 credits
- G2 completion of 18 or more credits

Graduate students may register for undergraduate liberal arts courses or studio courses (with permission of the graduate director and Dean of Liberal Arts) for graduate credit through the Graduate Topics mechanism. In order to register, students choose one of the graduate-level course numbers from the list below or, if the course is not listed complete a Graduate Topics form, available through the Office of the Registrar. Students are advised to select an area of study that broadens or intensifies their background in the arts, education, and related disciplines. Often this work contributes directly to preparation of the graduate project proposal.

| GRTH*699 Topics: Theater | Theater |
| GRWM*699 Topics: Writing | Writing |

Graduate students taking undergraduate courses should register for the course using the above numbers. They should choose the Graduate Topics number based on the department where the course resides. Example: students taking CRGL*211 Intro to Glass Blowing would register for GRCR*699.

Graduate Grade-Point Average Requirements

A minimum cumulative GPA of 3.0 is required for good standing and for graduation for graduate students. If a student is unable to achieve a semester or cumulative GPA of 3.0, he or she will be placed on probation. If a 3.0 GPA and/or other conditions are not attained by the following semester, the student may be dismissed from the program. While on Probation, a student will be ineligible to hold a graduate assistantship or to receive a University supplemental grant-in-aid or scholarship.

Thesis Grading

^ TOP

The grade of “IP” (“In Progress”) signifies that the student is making satisfactory progress toward completing the graduate thesis. This grade will apply only to graduate thesis courses where the student’s thesis is still in progress.

This grade is available only for the following courses:

| | | |
|------|-----|-------------------------------|
| AEDU | 695 | Graduate Project/Thesis |
| MSEM | 782 | Thesis Development |
| MSEM | 784 | Thesis: Museum Communication |
| GRID | 780 | Master’s Thesis Documentation |
| GRFA | 785 | MFA Thesis Exhibition |
| MUPF | 680 | Graduate Project/Recital |

An “IP” grade acknowledges the fact that the final course product (thesis) may require some period of time past the semester of registration to complete. The “IP” grade will remain on the student’s record until a final thesis grade is submitted by the instructor. In some cases, a student will be registered for thesis courses as a sequence (e.g., MSEM 781/B). When the final grade is submitted by the instructor, it will replace the “IP” grade. The “IP” grade is not computed in the grade-point average.

In order to remain in good standing while the thesis is “in progress,” the student must register for the thesis continuation fee for each semester he or she is not enrolled in coursework.

Graduate Project/Thesis Continuation Fee

^ TOP

A student who has completed all the course requirements for the master’s degree and is currently working on the graduate thesis, either on or off-campus, must register and pay a graduate thesis continuation fee of .5 credits per semester calculated at the per-credit cost for each semester of non-attendance until the thesis is completed and accepted. This registration, through the Office of the Registrar, is required in each succeeding semester, excluding the summer sessions, until all degree requirements are met. Students completing a degree in the summer must pay the thesis fee in the final summer semester.

Multiple Degrees

^ TOP

1. A student who has completed one degree and wishes to matriculate in another does so by applying to the new program through the Office of Admission.
2. A student may be awarded a particular degree from the University only once; i.e., once the student has earned an MA, he or she may not be awarded another MA.

Graduate Leave of Absence

^ TOP

A graduate student may take a Leave of Absence prior to the completion of all coursework, subject to approval by his/her program director, and in accordance with the policy described above. Graduate students may take a maximum of two one-semester Leave of Absence (may not be consecutive) throughout their course of study, whether in sequence or as needed. Once the thesis or Master of Music graduate project has begun and all coursework has been completed, graduate students are not eligible for a Leave of Absence. Students must register and pay for the thesis continuation fee for successive semesters and are not eligible for a Leave of Absence.

Graduate Degree Candidacy and Completion

^ TOP

Midway through the program, each graduate student’s progress in his/her discipline and thesis proposal will be reviewed by the appropriate Graduate Committee to formally determine whether a student becomes a degree candidate, and is ready to continue toward development and completion of the thesis or graduate project.

Graduate students have up to seven years from their date of matriculation to complete a two-year master’s program, and up to six years from matriculation date to complete a one-year program.

To be certified for a degree, a student must:

- submit a Petition for Award of Degree to the Office of the Registrar;
- fulfill all degree requirements;
- satisfy the minimum residency requirements; and
- achieve a minimum cumulative GPA of a 3.0 ("B" average).

It is the student's responsibility to complete the specified requirements of the degree program in which he or she is enrolled.

Graduation Petition

^ TOP

Meeting requirements for graduation is the student's responsibility and each student is encouraged upon entering the final year of the degree program to consult with the Registrar to ensure that all major requirements will be completed on schedule for graduation by submitting a formal "Petition to Graduate." The petition can be submitted via the MyUArts Portal or in person in the Office of the Registrar.

Residency Requirements

^ TOP

The time it takes for a student to reach graduation will depend upon the time needed to fulfill The University of the Arts' degree requirements. Detailed information regarding the remaining credits needed to fulfill degree requirements can be found on each student's degree audit.

Every student must complete a minimum of four full-time semesters in residence preceding graduation and must earn a minimum of 48 credits in studio and/or Liberal Arts courses. Transferable credits will be applied only to the requirements stipulated for a UArts degree. For this reason, transfer students may be required to remain in residence at the University for more than the minimum four semesters and to complete more than the minimum 48 credits, regardless of the number of credits earned at previously attended institutions. Transfer credit is evaluated by the department chair or school director and the Director of Liberal Arts in consultation with the Office of the Registrar.

Undergraduate Degree Candidacy and Completion

^ TOP

To be certified for a degree, a student must:

- submit a Petition for Award of Degree to the Office of the Registrar;
- fulfill all degree requirements;
- satisfy the minimum residency requirements (four semesters in residence, a minimum of 48 UArts credits);
- achieve a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.0 ("C" average); and
- receive the approval of his/her department chairperson or director as having met all major requirements, including any and all requirements unique to the department.

Once the student has submitted a Petition for Award of Degree, and the Registrar has certified that student as having completed the degree requirements, the degree will be awarded. Two-year certificates are awarded only to students who are in residence and are matriculated in the certificate program.

Graduation – Conferral of Degrees and Diplomas

^ TOP

Students expecting to complete requirements for a degree within the year (December, May, or August) are required to file a Petition for Award of Degree with the Office of the Registrar or, online in the MyUArts Record section of the MyUArts Portal, by the deadline indicated below. The Office of the Registrar is responsible for certification of completion of requirements for the degree. Students may and are encouraged to petition during registration for their final semester.

Deadline for submission of Petitions:

- July 15 - August completion
- November 15 - December completion
- January 24 - May completion

Degrees and diplomas are conferred once a year at the Spring Commencement Exercises. For students who complete degree requirements in other terms, the transcript will be posted "degree granted" with either the date of December 31 for the Fall semester or August 31 for Summer semester graduates. Diplomas will be mailed to August and December graduates' permanent addresses approximately six weeks after the graduation date. Students graduating after the Summer or Fall semesters are invited to participate in the next May Commencement exercises with the May graduates.

Participation in Commencement Exercises

^ TOP

Only those students who have completely fulfilled the degree requirements may participate in Commencement Exercises.

The University recognizes that there are extenuating circumstances that are beyond a student's control that may affect a student's ability to complete the degree requirements as anticipated. The University is willing to consider special requests from students to participate in Commencement Exercises.

Students who request an exception to the policy noted above must meet the following requirements:

- Have petitioned for graduation.
- As of the end of the drop/add period of their last anticipated semester of enrollment prior to commencement be properly registered to fulfill degree requirements.
- Have no more than three credits to complete at the time of the request.
- Show proof of registration for the remaining credits required to complete the degree requirements.

The process for requesting an exception is as follows:

- The student must submit, to the Office of the Dean of Students, a written explanation of the unusual circumstances and the request for an exception to the policy. Requests may be submitted via email when done so through the student's University email account.
- The Dean of Students, after considering the request, will make the determination and communicate the outcome to the student and the Office of the Registrar.
- Requests for an Appeal of the Dean of Student's decision may be submitted to the Office of the Provost.
- Appeals must be submitted in writing to the Office of the Provost. Once received, the Provost will review the case and make the final determination. The decision will then be communicated to the student, Dean of Students, and the Office of the Registrar by the Office of the Provost.

Graduation with Honors

Candidates for the baccalaureate degree may graduate with honors only if they achieve a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.6.

The policies stated herein apply to all matriculated UArts undergraduate and graduate students unless otherwise noted.

The Office of the Registrar maintains the official academic record for each student and is responsible for certifying completion of requirements for graduation. Students who are formally admitted to the University, have paid all applicable tuition and fees, and have a program of courses approved by the required advisor(s) are allowed to register. All students are advised to obtain a copy of their curriculum requirements as soon as possible after admission to the University and to check them against their transcripts after each term. This can be done through the MyUArts Portal. Please note that course and program transactions and changes become official only when properly processed through the Office of the Registrar.

Directory Information

The following is considered directory information at the University of the Arts and will be made available to the general public unless the student submits a petition to the Office of the Registrar requesting to withhold this information prior to the end of the last day of registration.

- Name
- Address
- Telephone number
- E-mail address
- Major field of study
- Dates of attendance
- Current enrollment status (full-time/part-time)
- Class standing
- Last institution attended

- Participation in officially recognized activities
- Receipt or non-receipt of a degree
- Academic awards received (Dean's list, honor roll)

Under the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 students have the right to withhold disclosure of directory information.

Please consider carefully the consequences of withholding directory information. Should you decide not to release directory information, all requests for such information from the University of the Arts will be refused. For example, organizations such as potential employers, scholarship agencies, members of the press, loan agencies, educational organizations and others will not be given access to the student's directory information, and will not be able to contact the student. Opting out of directory information may mean that you will miss out on valuable employment, educational, cultural and other opportunities. Additionally, the University cannot notify your hometown newspaper about awards and honors you receive (e.g., Dean's list).

To Request Directory Information to be Withheld

A signed petition from the student is required to process this request. Once processed directory information will not be released until a signed petition to rescind the request is received or until after the student has deceased.

Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA)

In 1974, the Congress of the United States enacted the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, Public Law 93-380, as amended, setting out requirements designed to protect the privacy of students. Specifically, the statute governs 1) access to records maintained by certain educational institutions and agencies, and 2) the release of such records. In brief, the statute provides that such institutions must provide students access to official records directly related to themselves and an opportunity for a hearing to challenge such records; that institutions must obtain the written consent of the student before releasing personally identifiable data from records to other-than-specified exceptions; and that students must be notified of these rights.

1. Student Rights. As such, all students of The University of the Arts have the following rights with regard to educational records maintained by the University:
 - A. The right to review educational records that are maintained by the University.
These records generally include all records of a personally identifiable nature; however, they exclude the financial records of parents and confidential letters and statements of recommendation received prior to June 1, 1975.
 - B. The right to inspect and review records.
Such requests may be made by completing an "Access Request for Educational Records," which is available in the Office of the Registrar. Upon receipt of a request an appointment will be made to review records within 45 days.
 - C. The right to appeal misinformation in the files.
If a student believes any information in the file is inaccurate or misleading, that individual may request, in writing, the custodian of the record to amend, delete, or otherwise modify the objectionable material. If said request is denied, the student may request that a hearing be held to further pursue the request. At this hearing, the student may be represented by a person of his or her choice, if so desired. If after the hearing the request to amend is again denied by the University, the student has the right to place in the file a statement or other explanatory document, provided that such statements or documents relate solely to the disputed information.
 - D. The right to appeal violation of rights.
If a student believes that any of his or her rights hereunder have been violated by the University, he or she should make such facts known to the Dean of Students in writing. If the Dean of Students does not resolve the matter and the student still feels that his or her rights have been violated, he or she may so inform the Department of Education in writing.

E. The right to file a complaint with the US Department of Education.

Students have the right to file a complaint with the U.S. Department of Education concerning alleged failures by the University to comply with the requirements of FERPA. The name and address of the Office that administers FERPA is:

Family Policy Compliance Office
U.S. Department of Education
400 Maryland Avenue, S.W.
Washington, D.C. 20202-5920

F. The right to select a physician or other appropriate professional, at personal expense, to review records on a student's behalf, that have been created or maintained by a physician, psychiatrist, psychologist, or other recognized professional or paraprofessional while an individual has been a student at the University, filed with The University.

2. Definitions

A. The Educational Record maintained by the University will consist of:

1. Directory information as noted above
2. Application for admission
3. Applicant's secondary school records
4. Cumulative University of the Arts records of grades, credits, grade-point average, and academic actions
5. Correspondence (or copies thereof) re: admission, enrollment, registration, probation
6. Student petitions
7. Disciplinary actions
8. Departmental appraisals and evaluations of student progress

B. The Educational Records do not include:

1. Parents' and students' confidential financial documents
2. Counseling psychologists' files
3. Health Office files
4. Faculty and staff memoranda/files retained for personal/professional use

C. Educational Records are maintained by the following:

1. Office of the Registrar
2. Office of the Dean of Students
3. Financial Aid Office
4. Finance Office
5. Office of Continuing Studies

D. A dependent student is defined as one who is declared a dependent by his or her parents for income-tax purposes.

E. A student is defined as a person who attends or has attended the University. Persons who have applied to but who have not attended the University as an enrolled student are not covered under FERPA.

3. University Rights & Responsibilities.

A. The University may not generally release any information outside the University that is maintained in educational records without prior consent or waiver. However, the University does have the right to release the following information:

If a student does not wish any of this information made public, either in a directory of students or in any other manner, the student must inform the Office of the Registrar no later than the end of the third week of classes each semester of the information not to be released.

1. Name
2. Address
3. Email address
4. Telephone listing
5. Date and place of birth

6. Major field of study
 7. Participation in officially recognized activities
 8. Dates of attendance
 9. Degrees and awards received
 10. The most recent previous educational institution attended by the student.
 11. Enrollment status.
- B. The University may disclose FERPA-related information without consent to school officials when there is a legitimate educational interest. A school official is a person employed by the University in an administrative, supervisory, academic, or research or support staff position (including law enforcement unit personnel and health staff); or a person or company with whom the University has contracted (such as an attorney, auditor, or collection agent). A school official has a legitimate educational interest if the official needs to review an educational record in order to fulfill his or her professional responsibility.
- C. While release of information from educational records to outside parties requires the student's explicit consent, the following exceptions do not require the student's consent:
- D.
1. Compilation of general enrollment data for reports required by U.S. Government and Commonwealth of Pennsylvania authorities;
 2. Participatory information-sharing with educational service associations such as the College Scholarship Service and the American Council on Education;
 3. Information about an individual student in the event of a personal emergency that is judged to threaten the health and/or safety of that student;
 4. Compliance with judicial orders and lawfully issued subpoenas;
 5. Reference by appropriate University of the Arts faculty and professional staff.
 6. In cases of violent crime, the results of any disciplinary proceeding conducted by the University against an accused student to the alleged victim.
 7. Any release of information as outlined above that identifies an individual student and requires that student's consent will be recorded in his or her permanent record.
- E. The University reserves the right to inform parents/guardians of dependent students where it deems appropriate-specifically when it has cause to believe that a student's status at the University may be in jeopardy due to disciplinary reasons.
- F. Requests for the records of a deceased student must be accompanied by a notarized statement from the executor of the estate of the deceased approving the release of records. Requests concerning students who have long been deceased will be evaluated by the University based on legitimate educational interest.
4. Directory Information The University of the Arts has determined that the following information will be considered "directory information" and may release it without prior consent from the student:
- Name
 - Address
 - Telephone listing
 - Email address
 - Date and place of birth
 - Major field of study
 - Participation in officially recognized activities
 - Dates of attendance
 - Enrollment status
 - Degrees and awards received
 - Last institution attended

Graduation Completion Rates

^ TOP

Federal legislation relating to student consumer rights requires all institutions participating in Federal student assistance programs to compile and publish completion and graduation rates. The information-gathering requirements are contained in legislation known as the Student Right-To-Know and Campus Security Act as amended by the Higher Education Technical Amendments of 1991. Title I of the Act requires institutions to annually disclose completion and graduation rates of full-time certificate or degree-seeking undergraduate students to current and prospective students. The University of the Arts is pleased to provide the following information regarding our institution's graduation/completion rates. These rates reflect the graduation/completion status of students who enrolled during the 2000-2001 school year and for whom 150 percent of the normal time-to-completion has elapsed. During the Fall semester of 2001, 439 first-time, full-time, certificate or degree-seeking Undergraduate students entered UArts. After six years (as of August 31, 2007), 61 percent of these students had graduated from our institution or completed their programs. Many factors should be taken into consideration when reviewing graduation or transfer rates. It is important to recognize that students withdraw from college for various reasons; academic, medical, employment opportunities, personal, social and financial issues are among those reasons. Questions related to graduation/completion rates should be directed to Beth E. Frederick, Director of Institutional Research (215) 717-6387.

Verification of Enrollment

^ TOP

Students often need to send additional information concerning their enrollment to insurance companies, loan services, scholarship programs, and other outside parties. The student can either request an enrollment verification in writing or through the MyUArts Portal. Any request for verification of enrollment beyond the directory information listed above must be made in writing and signed by the student wishing to release the information. The request for verification must state exactly which information the student wants released and who is authorized to receive it. There is no fee for this service. The Office of the Registrar will verify enrollment for a future semester only after the student has registered in classes and has been cleared by the Student Billing Office. Normal service for other verifications of enrollment is three to five working days from the time the request is received. For immediate service (24 hours/7 days per week) - Enrollment verification requests may be made via the National Student Clearing House secure Website to make your request. There is a small fee for each request made of $2.50. The Website address is: <http://www.studentclearinghouse.org>.

Transcript Request Procedures

All transcript requests come to the Office of the Registrar for UArts programs as follows:

- Undergraduate transcripts
- Graduate transcripts
- Continuing Education transcripts
- Professional Institute for Educators transcripts

Transcript FAQ

- All questions pertaining to transcript requests should be directed to the Office of the Registrar at 215-717-6420.
- In order to process a transcript request the student's account must be in good financial standing. Please allow three to five working days to complete requests.
- "Unofficial" transcripts for current students may be viewed and printed through the MyUArts portal or obtained from the Office of the Registrar at no charge.

Transcript can be requested in two ways:

REQUEST ONLINE: You can order official copies of your transcript online in minutes through the National Student Clearing House. It is easy to use and secure. All major credit cards are accepted.

- Go to the transcript-ordering page.
- Create your user ID/password and profile (saves your information for future orders).
- Let Transcript Ordering walk you through placing your order,
- Check your email for updates on the status of your transcript order.

- Log on using the userID/password you created to obtain real-time order status and history whenever you want.

REQUEST IN-PERSON or BY MAIL: You may request a transcript by completing a transcript request form available in the Office of the Registrar, or by sending a written request, including the following information:

- Name under which you attended the University or any predecessor institutions
- Current address and telephone number
- Social Security number
- Date of birth
- Last date of attendance
- Program (major/degree or P.I.E. or Continuing Education classes)
- Address where transcript is to be sent
- Signature: transcripts will not be released without the original signature of the requesting student

Student Assistance General Provisions

^ TOP

In accordance with the Higher Education Amendments of 1998, The University of the Arts has available, upon request, information regarding academic programs, financial assistance, and institutional policies and statistics. This information may be found in the University's catalog.

- The Student Assistance General Provisions report includes information on the following:
- Accreditation
- Current degree programs including related facilities and faculty

- Tuition, fees, and other estimated expenses
- Withdrawal and refund policies
- Description of financial aid programs, including eligibility, award criteria, and application procedures, as well as students' rights and responsibilities upon receiving financial assistance (such as continued eligibility, exit counseling, and options for payment deferral)
- Requirements for the return of Title IV grant or loan assistance
- Services available for students with disabilities
- Graduation rate

In addition, each October, the Public Safety Department publishes an annual report on the University's security policies and crime statistics, which is available to all current and prospective students and employees.

To request a copy of the Student Assistance General Provisions report, please contact the Office of the Provost, The University of the Arts, 320 South Broad Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19102.

Student Email Policy

Students are responsible for regularly reading and responding to email sent by the University faculty, staff, and administration to the students' UArts email account for the entirety of the time they are enrolled at the University. Students are also required to use their UArts email account for all email correspondence with the University's faculty, staff and administration. Therefore, the University's offices and faculty will only accept email when sent via the student's UArts email account.

Each student is assigned an email account upon enrolling, and is responsible for activating their account by the first day of classes of their first semester of attendance. Students can activate their email account online through the University portal. A letter containing the user account and pin number will be mailed to the student's home residence before the start of classes. The portal URL address is <http://myuarts.uarts.edu>. Email and Portal support can be obtained by visiting Network Services in Room 250 in Hamilton Hall, via telephone at 215-717-6997, or by emailing portalsupport@uarts.edu.

Students are also expected to regularly check the My UArts Portal for University-related announcements and notifications. The portal is the primary source for student information, which includes grades, class schedules, transcripts, degree audits, and GPAs. Please note that information such as this is no longer mailed to students via U.S. mail, except upon request. Access to the portal, including student email, is available in the open computer labs on campus.

Email and portal accounts remain active for enrolled students and students on approved hiatus and will not be terminated unless the student is withdrawn from the University. The accounts for students who graduate from the University will remain active for one year from the graduation date, however, those interested in keeping their accounts beyond this time period can call the Development office at 215-717-6140 to make appropriate arrangements.

MyUArts Portal/My UArts Record

[^] TOP

Students are also expected to regularly check the MyUArts portal for University-related announcements and notifications. The portal is the primary source for student information, as well as access to the student's academic record. Through the MyUArts portal students can register online, change their address, request an official transcript or enrollment verification, review their grades, class schedules, transcripts, degree audits, and GPAs. Because this information is readily available through the portal, information such as this is no longer mailed to students via U.S. mail, except upon request.

Change of Address

It is essential that students keep the Office of the Registrar informed of all current addresses. A change of address can be completed through the MyUArts portal or by obtaining a form from the Office of the Registrar. All information sent via U.S. mail is mailed to the addresses provided by the student and cannot be changed by anyone other than the student.

Change of Name

Students must notify the Office of the Registrar of any change of name (through marriage, divorce, etc.) by bringing to the office an original legal document showing the change, which may be photocopied by the Registrar and kept on file.

Transfer Credit and Course Equivalency

|---|--------------------------|
| Course Substitution | Graduate Transfer Credit |
| Credit by Portfolio/Audition | Residency Requirements |
| Credit from Non-accredited Institutions | Transfer of Credit |

Transfer of Credit

^ TOP

Students may receive credit for courses taken at other accredited institutions that are similar in content, purpose, and standards to those offered at The University of the Arts. A minimum grade of “C” in a course is required for consideration for transfer credit. Only credits are transferable, not grades.

Candidates are given a preliminary transfer credit evaluation at the time of admission; final award of transfer credit and placement level are subject to receipt of final official transcripts and verification by the registrar at the time of enrollment.

Credit from Nonaccredited Institutions

^ TOP

Based on the applicant’s portfolio or audition, credit may be awarded at the time of admission by the department chairperson/director of the intended major. The maximum number of credits awarded may not exceed the number of credits earned at the nonaccredited institution (as adjusted to conform with the University’s credit evaluation policies). These credits may be assigned to fulfill specific requirements of The University of the Arts degree as agreed upon by the department chair/director and the Registrar.

Non-Accredited Study Abroad:

Students are encouraged to pursue study through programs that are affiliated with accredited U.S. Colleges or Universities. Coursework from non-accredited institutions may not be eligible for transfer and cannot be approved in advance. Students must apply for a Leave of Absence from the University. See the Office of the Registrar for more information.

Students studying abroad may be required to have international transcripts evaluated for equivalent U.S. credit before transfer credit can be awarded. Applicable fees are the responsibility of the student. A full evaluation may be obtained from the following agencies:

Academic Credentials Evaluation Institute, Inc. (ACEI)
PO Box 6908
Beverly Hills, CA 90212

website: www.aceil.com

World Education Services
Bowling Green Station
P.O. Box 5087
New York, NY 10274-5087
website: www.wes.org

Credit by Portfolio/Audition

^ TOP

A maximum of 18 credits may be granted to applicants by portfolio review or audition for artistic experience independent of any coursework. Credit by portfolio or audition is granted only for work done prior to matriculation at The University of the Arts.

- Academic standing and course credit based on portfolio review are determined by the appropriate department chairperson/director during the admission process. This portfolio work cannot have been part of the assigned work for a secondary or post-secondary course.
- Audition credit requires the approval of the Audition Committee and the school director. Academic standing and course credit based on the audition are determined during the admission process.

Graduate Transfer Credit

Information pertaining to graduate transfer credit can be found in the Graduate Student Policies section.

Course Substitutions

^ TOP

Occasionally a student may not be able to enroll in the exact course required for the degree program, or the department may recommend an alternate course to better suit a specific academic goal. In these cases, the student is to request an approval for a course substitution from the department chairperson or program director. The director/chair lists the required course and the approved substitution on the form. After completion the department chairperson or program director submits the form to the Office of the Registrar for processing.

Residency Requirements

^ TOP

The time it takes for a student to reach graduation will depend upon the time needed to fulfill The University of the Arts' degree requirements.

Every transfer student must complete a minimum of four full-time semesters in residence preceding graduation and must earn a minimum of 48 credits in studio and/or Liberal Arts courses. Transferable credits will be applied only to the requirements stipulated for a UArts degree. For this reason, transfer students may be required to remain in residence at the University for more than the minimum four semesters and to complete more than the minimum 48 credits, regardless of the number of credits earned at previously attended institutions. Transfer credit is evaluated by the department chair or school director and the Dean of Liberal Arts in consultation with the Office of the Registrar.

The Continuing Studies Division at the University of the Arts offers life long learning opportunities through arts education. The division houses Continuing Education courses for adults, Pre-College Programs for high school students, and the Professional Institute for Educators.

Continuing Education offers classes and workshops for Continuing Education credit and noncredit to the adult audience, as well as PA Act 48 activity hours. Offerings are available in a wide range of disciplines including: fine arts, crafts, digital technologies, music and recording industry, creative writing, photography, animation, dance and physical conditioning, interior design, illustration, writing for film and television, and professional development. Continuing Education also offers specialized certificate programs, as well as customized training solutions for corporate clients and organizations. Classes are generally held in the evenings and on weekends.

Pre-College Programs runs the Pre-College Saturday School and Pre-College Summer Institute for high school students. The Saturday School offers classes in crafts, design, fine arts, media and writing to high school students in grades 9-12 in the fall and spring semesters. The Summer Institute provides rising high school juniors and seniors with two- and four- week intensive programs in the visual and performing arts, and media and communication. Housing is optional in the summer, and students may apply for talent/merit and need-based scholarships for both programs.

Founded in 1973, the Professional Institute for Educators (The Institute) serves the needs of teachers, providing non-matriculated graduate-level courses for professional development, including PA Act 48 requirements. The Institute's offerings cover such subject areas as: crafts, music, visual arts, writing, digital media, art history, multicultural studies, teaching strategies, classroom management and computer technology. With off-site locations, including the James A. Michener Art Museum, the Philadelphia Museum of Art, and the Wayne Art Center, courses are designed to utilize museum resources and exhibitions as an enriching opportunity for learning. Each semester, The Institute hosts Continuing Inspiration - a program of intensive week-long studio experiences providing creative renewal for teachers.

Brochures are available for all of the Division's program offerings; refer to these for specific listings and registration procedures. Please note that the degree programs at the University have specific course and curriculum requirements. A total of six credits may be applied toward University degree programs. Persons seeking admission to a degree program at UArts or elsewhere should contact the appropriate office to determine which credits, if any, may be accepted.

For additional information about the programs in the Continuing Studies Division, please visit our website at www.uarts.edu/ce, www.uarts.edu/precollege, or www.uarts.edu/pie.

Programs by Degree

Acting - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 124

The four-year Bachelor of Fine Arts Acting program prepares students for careers in the professional theater or for continued study at the graduate level. In the first year, students concentrate on finding the "core of the actor" through the study of improvisation, monologue, emotional discovery, speech, and movement. In addition to fostering these acting skills, the first year of training is also designed to encourage an in-depth self-analysis of the student's commitment, discipline, and professionalism. The second year is devoted to technique training, in which actors develop a sense of conversational reality and strengthen their imagination, responsiveness, and spontaneity. This level of training also addresses an actor's skill for evoking a full and accessible inner life.

The third year is dedicated to giving shape and specificity to the actor's behavior and aims to refine technique and deepen characterization. Advanced scene study and an introduction to style work are also integral to this level of training. The focus of the fourth year is on classical performance and preparing the student to enter the profession. Students are given instruction in audition and camera techniques, resume preparation, how to work with agents, etc. The fourth year culminates with an audition clinic given by a selected panel of agents, directors, and casting representatives.

Actor training in the School of Theater Arts lies at the heart of the two performance curricula. The training is designed to cultivate the actor's ability to "live truthfully under imaginary circumstances." Students develop an understanding that such truth begins with a shared interconnectedness between actors onstage.

Early technique studies, for majors in both acting and musical theater, emphasize the "reality of doing" as it is rooted in a full emotional life, driven by action and expressed with meaning, clarity, and theatricality. To this end, students are challenged to cultivate a fuller understanding of themselves and to continually exercise their skills as analysts of text and as observers of human behavior.

The program introduces students to a range of training methods (Linklater, Meisner, IPA, LeCoq, Williamson, Fitzmaurice, Laban) as a part of their training. The successful student should emerge from the program with a practicable performance technique in place, which enables her/him to develop and sustain a role from first rehearsal to closing night.

Students completing these programs are also expected to be knowledgeable about a variety of styles and types of drama, and the challenges presented by each; to work in a vocally and physically free and efficient manner; to be able to identify their character type and its potential range within the casting conventions of the industry; to have a sense of how to begin to establish a career as a performer; and to possess a work ethic that will support the collaborative nature of theatrical production.

Additionally, the Acting Program seeks to train students who have developed:

- fundamental skills in stage combat and the use of selected weaponry;
- an awareness of mask techniques as a platform from which characterization and behavior can evolve;
- basic skills in performing for the camera, a familiarity with their image in two-dimensional media, and some experience in fundamental issues such as slating, continuity, hitting marks, working within frame, etc.; and
- scene study skills that will serve them in the interpretation of classical material that requires a command of both style and language.

Freshman Year Credits: 31

Fall Credits: 16

THEA 151 - Survey of Theater Arts

Designed to foster students' intellectual engagement with drama and theater, from classical to contemporary, by introducing them to the basic terminology and methodology used in understanding plays and performances. A range of critical perspectives are applied to a variety of plays from different periods and places; additionally, a number of contexts for theater study are introduced, including theater history and production elements. Formerly TH 113

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THMD 161 - Movement for Actors I

Introduces basic movement vocabulary in Modern Dance using basic improvisational technique. The course is designed to provide the student with awareness of his/her body and the basic skills of movement and dance, such as stretching, breathing, posture, coordination, balancing, etc. Course also allows student the experience of creative application of movement and movement expression through various forms and structures of improvisation. Formerly TH 115A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Acting majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

THMD 171 - Stage Combat I

The integration of aggressive acting intent and safe combat techniques using both the unarmed body and the knife. Formerly TH 105A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Acting and Theater Management and Production majors only.

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

THPD 123 - Scene & Lighting Technology

Introductory course in various phases of physical production dealing with the stage, house, backstage personnel and their duties, construction and painting of scenery, stage lighting, costumes, props, and makeup. Formerly TH 123

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: THPD 125

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

THST 101 - Acting Studio I

An introductory studio focusing on the fundamentals of acting including basic skills for stage communication, voice, and movement; involves centering and exercises designed to increase physical and emotional stamina, identify and strengthen technique, develop focus and concentration, and introduce the student to the demands of the theater. In the process of demystifying the craft, the student discovers the energy, power, and vulnerability of self. Formerly TH 103A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Acting, Applied Theater Arts and Musical Theater majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

THVC 111 - Voice and Speech for Actors I

Linklater exercises are the basis of a course designed to help the student find his/her natural voice and to integrate body, breathing, voice, thought and feeling into expression through speech. The student is given a practical understanding of the voice and how it works. Tensions that inhibit primary impulses are uncovered and dismantled. The function of the articulators is studied and they are examined for blocks and exercised for release. Formerly TH 109A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Acting majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

THEA 152 - Script Analysis

Introduces the student to practical analysis of texts/scripts. The course explores the concepts of conflict, human action, character, action/ reaction cycle, dramatic structure, translations and resources external to the script (historical perspective). At the course's end, the student should possess a firm understanding of the process involved in script analysis, be thoroughly familiar with the composite types of dramatic literature, begin to understand the nature of an informed aestheti, and understand the consequences of each element of a performance on its audience. Formerly TH 213

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THEA 151 or LACR 102

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THMD 162 - Movement for Actors II

Introduces basic movement vocabulary in Modern Dance using basic improvisational technique. The course is designed to provide the student with awareness of his/her body and the basic skills of movement and dance, such as stretching, breathing, posture, coordination, balancing, etc. Course also allows student the experience of creative application of movement and movement expression through various forms and structures of improvisation. Formerly TH 115B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THMD 161

Open to Acting majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

THMD 163 - Neutral Mask

A sequence of instruction in mask/movement techniques designed to remove all pedestrian movement from the actor, thereby helping the student to begin to develop a movement vocabulary. Develops students' awareness of their own personal movement habits and their ability to drop their habits in order to achieve neutral body movement. Exercises are designed to achieve neutral body by beginning with simple actions and progressing to object identification. Formerly TH 101

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Acting and Applied Theater Arts majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

THPD 120 - Crew

Four different production assignments for School of Theater productions. Continues the classroom instruction in theater tech skills, providing an increased understanding of Technical Production. Formerly TH 103L

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the School of Theater Arts only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 0 cr, hrs vary

THPD 124 - Costume & Property Technology

Introductory course in various phases of physical production dealing with the stage, house, backstage personnel and their duties, construction and painting of scenery, stage lighting, costumes, props, and makeup. Formerly TH 124

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: THPD 126 Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

THST 102 - Acting Studio II

An introductory studio focusing on the fundamentals of acting including basic skills for stage communication, voice and movement; involves centering and exercises designed to increase physical and emotional stamina, identify and strengthen technique, develop focus and concentration and introduce the student to the demands of the theater. In the process of demystifying the craft, the student discovers the energy, power, and vulnerability of self. Formerly TH 103B

THST 201 - Acting Studio: Technique I

Study in contact and truthful response, conversational reality, concentration, spontaneity, getting in touch with one's own behavior and that of others. Formerly TH 223

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 102 THVC 112 Corequisite: THVC 211

Open to Acting and Musical Theater majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 4 cr, 7.5 hrs

THVC 211 - Voice and Speech for Actors III

Practical training in speech for the stage. Emphasis on articulation and eliminating regionalisms. Through the course of the year, each student is expected to achieve a high degree of proficiency in General American Pronunciation by developing a working knowledge of the International Phonetic Alphabet. Resonance, placement, and range are developed. Particular attention is paid to ending consonants, equating length of thought and length of breath and key wording. Formerly TH 209A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THVC 112 or THVC 132; THST 102 Corequisite: THVC 210

Open to Acting and Musical Theater majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 17

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

THEA 352 - Theater History II

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

THST 361 - Fundamentals of Directing

An overview of the directorial process. Discusses the various facets of a director's job, especially in the early phases of a production, e.g. working with the actor, casting, table work and rehearsal, and culminates with each student directing a scene of his/her own. The emphasis is on empowering the students as theater practitioners, within the rehearsal process, by introducing them to the basic problems encountered by the stage director, with whom all theater participants work. Formerly TH 317

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: THST 232, THPD 261 or THST 201

Open to Acting, TMP and Technology majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THVC 311 - Voice and Speech for Actors V

Involves the study of the key dialects of North America, the British Isles, and Europe, as well as work in the area of voice characterization, using the International Phonetic Alphabet as a guide. Later work in voice and text would cover breathing support, vocal connection, energy, musicality, variety, and clarity. Some monologue and sonnet work would be drawn from material from such authors as Shaw and Shakespeare. The dialects chosen are those for which there is most demand in dramatic literature and in the commercial theater; consequently, some time is spent on "Standard British," "Southern Irish," and a range of "American Southern," and "New York" accents. Approximately six to eight dialects are addressed in depth. Formerly TH 309

THMD 362 - Movement for Actors VI

Develops clarity and precision of movement through increased awareness of action and character. The student develops greater kinesthetic sense and enhances his/her capability for expressive movement. First term focuses on Laban efforts and the second term on viewpoints. Formerly TH 315B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 301 THVC 311 THMD 361 Open to Acting and Musical Theater majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

THST 302 - Acting Studio: Poetic Realism

Exploration of scene study methods as they apply to dramatic works by such authors as Ibsen, Strindberg, Wilde, Chekhov, Synge, O'Casey, and Shaw, and further development of actor's attention to and application of behavioral specificity. Formerly TH 324

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 301 THMD 361

Open to Acting and Musical Theater majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

THST 344 - Audition Techniques

This course focuses on the skills necessary to audition successfully for theater, film, and television. Topics include cold readings, monologues, television commercials, and dealing with agents and casting directors. Formerly TH 326

Prerequisites & Notes

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

THMD 261 - Movement for Actors III

Utilizes intensive physical-emotional improvisation work, including exercises in Williamson technique, rhythmic movement, center floor work, stretches, and the use of physical impulse to expand emotional range. Formerly TH 215A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THMD 162 THST 102 THVC 112

Open to Acting majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

THMD 262 - Movement for Actors IV

Utilizes intensive physical-emotional improvisation work, including exercises in Williamson technique, rhythmic movement, center floor work, stretches and the use of physical impulse to expand emotional range. Formerly TH 215B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 201 THMD 261 THVC 211

Open to Acting majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

THMD 361 - Movement for Actors V

Develops clarity and precision of movement through increased awareness of action and character. The student develops greater kinesthetic sense and enhances his/her capability for expressive movement. First term focuses on Laban efforts and the second term on viewpoints. Formerly TH 315A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THVC 212 or THMD 262; THST 202 THVC 212

Open to Acting and Musical Theater majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

THMD 362 - Movement for Actors VI

Develops clarity and precision of movement through increased awareness of action and character. The student develops greater kinesthetic sense and enhances his/her capability for expressive movement. First term focuses on Laban efforts and the second term on viewpoints. Formerly TH 315B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 301 THVC 311 THMD 361 Open to Acting and Musical Theater majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

THMD 461 - Movement for Actors VII

Continuation of THMD 362. Work in LeCoq movement. Spring term develops a senior movement project. Formerly TH 415A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THMD 362 THST 302 THVC 312

Open to Acting majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

THST 101 - Acting Studio I

An introductory studio focusing on the fundamentals of acting including basic skills for stage communication, voice, and movement; involves centering and exercises designed to increase physical and emotional stamina, identify and strengthen technique, develop focus and concentration, and introduce the student to the demands of the theater. In the process of demystifying the craft, the student discovers the energy, power, and vulnerability of self. Formerly TH 103A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Acting, Applied Theater Arts and Musical Theater majors only. Instructor permission required.

THVC 311 - Voice and Speech for Actors V

Involves the study of the key dialects of North America, the British Isles, and Europe, as well as work in the area of voice characterization, using the International Phonetic Alphabet as a guide. Later work in voice and text would cover breathing support, vocal connection, energy, musicality, variety, and clarity. Some monologue and sonnet work would be drawn from material from such authors as Shaw and Shakespeare. The dialects chosen are those for which there is most demand in dramatic literature and in the commercial theater; consequently, some time is spent on "Standard British," "Southern Irish," and a range of "American Southern," and "New York" accents. Approximately six to eight dialects are addressed in depth. Formerly TH 309

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THVC 212 THST 202 THMD 262

Open to Acting majors only. May be taken twice for credit. Instructor permission required.

Advertising Minor

The minor in Advertising Strategy provides instruction in strategic thinking and creative execution required to design advertisements and ad campaigns in multiple formats (print, audio, video, and interactive). This minor offers tools and concepts to students interested in marketing and promoting any product, service, or artistic activity. It broadens the career options of students in any of the media and communication disciplines, and prepares them to work in both the profit and not-for-profit sectors of the media and communication industries. Communication majors may not declare a Strategic Advertising minor.

Requirements for the Minor

- Elective Credits: 3 cr
To be determined with minor advisor

CMMC 221 - Advertising: Creative Concepts I

Whether an advertisement appears in print, on television or radio, or on the Internet, it is built around an idea. Students learn to recognize and create strong advertising ideas that are relevant to the product and the audience, with an emphasis on print advertising. Students learn how to allow their creativity to be guided by strategy. Students are exposed to outstanding creative work and readings in their texts and from studying professional work. They then apply these principles as they create advertising of their own. Formerly CM 271

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Strategic Advertising minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 321 - Advertising Strategy Development

The business side of creative advertising. Examines the functions of the various departments within an advertising agency, focusing on strategic development, and introduces the three key steps in that development-market segmentation, brand positioning, and research. Students learn a variety of qualitative and quantitative research methods and analytical methods and apply what they have learned by developing and presenting an advertising strategy for an actual product. Formerly CM 371

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Strategic Advertising minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

CMMC 322 - Advertising: Creative Concepts II

Having learned how to create strong individual concepts, students create broader and deeper concepts that can form the basis for a number of ads and learn how to execute an idea in more than one medium. The course begins by examining award-winning print campaigns in order to recognize suitable ideas for multi-ad campaigns; to identify elements and themes and their grounding in research; and to understand the consumer. The course then examines how interactive media are being used to build customer relationships and brand identities, and explores the strategic functions of these new media. Students develop storyboards for a product or service that reinforces that product's existing brand personality. Formerly CM 372

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 221

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Strategic Advertising minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following:

CMMC 324 - Introduction to Public Relations

The fundamentals of public relations, viewed as a marketing communications tool, with special attention to its role in the non-profit sphere. Reviews the functions of a wide range of marketing communications tools and explores how PR can be used in conjunction with them to achieve an organization's objectives, helping students to come to understand the role of public relations in the overall marketing communications plan. Students learn how to coordinate messages in order to allow the company to speak with one voice and reinforce one overall corporate identity, with special attention to social marketing and the public. A series of projects culminates in students developing a public relations proposal for a non-profit organization. Formerly CM 373

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Strategic Advertising minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Required for Multimedia majors

WRIT 204 - Writing for Media

A studio writing class developing skills in effective, clear, and persuasive writing in the areas of media and communication. Students work from a variety of source materials and write research papers, project proposals, project treatments, and a newspaper feature. Emphasis is on writing structure and style, editing and revising, suitability to specific audiences, and delivering material on time and at prescribed lengths. Formerly CM 211 and CMMC 204.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to majors in the College of Media and Communication.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Not applicable as minor credit for Multimedia majors

Animation - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

The Animation program in the Media Arts Department prepares students to work in computer, traditional, stopmotion, and experimental animation. The basic principles of animation can be applied to all forms of image and object manipulation. The program gives its graduates a strong understanding of timing and motion, and a grounding in the wide variety of techniques available to the animator. Animation majors get a solid background in life drawing and traditional modes of animation, as well as 2D and 3D computer animation. Animation majors choose the area(s) on which to focus as they construct their junior and senior thesis films.

Sophomore Year Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

WRIT 251 and WRIT 252 Narrative Cinema I and II are required of all Animation majors. WRIT 252 Narrative Cinema II can be counted as a studio elective, or liberal arts course.

MAAN 201 - Introduction to Animation I

Through a series of drawn exercises concentrating on timing, movement, and weight, the student acquires an understanding of fundamental animation principles. Formerly PF 212A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111, FNDP 121 or MMDI 101

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 201 - Introduction to Film I

A hands-on introduction to the principles and techniques of media production: shooting 16mm film and digital video, developing a sensitivity to the nuances of movement, understanding lighting and exposure, composition, and the logic of editing. We also survey the historical and aesthetic development of the medium in order to expand the students' sense of the possibilities of the medium. Formerly PF 210A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

ILUS 285 - Drawing for Animators

Focuses on introducing and developing the skills and disciplines needed for good figurative animation drawing. The primary issues of anatomical figure drawing with a strong emphasis on the structure and solidity of the figure, good proportions, and specific movement and gesture as they relate to the model. Topics also covered: two-dimensional versus three-dimensional ways of translating form; how perspective and viewpoint are used with the figure and their effect on scale; exaggerated foreshortening techniques; diagrammatic and expressive line quality; facial expressions; hand and foot studies; capturing movement through gesture; and introduction to animal drawing for animation. Formerly IL 205

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Animation and Film/Animation majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 231 - Introduction to Computer Animation

This introductory course develops the student's understanding of digital movement and imaging through animation exercises using a variety of 2D software programs on the PC platform. No previous computer experience is required. Formerly PF 216

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Animation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

WRIT 251 and WRIT 252 Narrative Cinema I and II are required of all Animation majors. WRIT 252 Narrative Cinema II can be counted as a studio elective, or liberal arts course.

MAAN 202 - Introduction to Animation II

Students are introduced to under-the-camera animation using varied mediums such as puppets, cut-outs, and painting-on-glass. Special attention is given to non-narrative approaches to animation. A final project is created using one or more of the techniques explored during the semester. Formerly PF 212B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 201 or MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 202 - Introduction to Film/Digital Video

This course offers an introduction to the basic practices of digital video editing and further creative exploration of the art of moving images. Students perform timing, staging, and blocking exercises to develop a feel for direction, experiment with more advanced film strategies, learn to edit digital video, and investigate relationships between sound and image. A final project integrates these explorations creatively. Formerly PF 210B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students

MAAN 301 - Junior Animation Workshop I

The first half of this course is devoted to the creation of a short, client-based project. The second half involves an interdisciplinary group project aimed at refining students' knowledge of animation movement design. Formerly PF 312A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 202

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 325 - Storyboarding

The ability to create effective visual continuities represents a fundamental skill in animation and live-action filmmaking. In this class, an understanding of narrative story structure and the ability to translate words into images will be developed through exercises dealing with the specifics of shot and shot sequence design. Storyboards will be expanded into animatic form and will include the creation of basic soundtracks.

Directed independent production of a short film project in an idiom of the student's choosing; additional production of a visual portfolio and reel.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 302

Open to Animation majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 3 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr

MAAN 402 - Senior Animation Workshop II

Directed independent production of a short film project in an idiom of the student's choosing; additional production of a visual portfolio and reel.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MAAN 401

Open to Animation majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 320 - Film Forum: Selected Topics

Concentrated study of a particular area of film, video, or animation. Courses deal with specific issues and have included: film theory; seminars in sound and installation; studies in Japanese media; the history of video art; and the history of animation. Formerly PF 324

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202 or MAAN 202

Open to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Liberal Arts Distribution

Note all Liberal Arts courses are 3 credits.

- Liberal Arts Electives Credits: 15 cr

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 9XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - 20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI course in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR*102 and LACR*210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Animation Minor

This minor concentrates on the development of drawing skills that embrace a sense of timing and movement. The program also includes instruction in the basics of film and video technology. Film/Digital Video and Animation majors may not declare an Animation Drawing minor.

Requirements for the MinorMAAN 201 - Introduction to Animation I

Through a series of drawn exercises concentrating on timing, movement, and weight, the student acquires an understanding of fundamental animation principles. Formerly PF 212A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111, FNDP 121 or MMDI 101

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 202 - Introduction to Animation II

Students are introduced to under-the-camera animation using varied mediums such as puppets, cut-outs, and painting-on-glass. Special attention is given to non-narrative approaches to animation. A final project is created using one or more of the techniques explored during the semester. Formerly PF 212B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 201 or MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 301 - Junior Animation Workshop I

The first half of this course is devoted to the creation of a short, client-based project. The second half involves an interdisciplinary group project aimed at refining students' knowledge of animation movement design. Formerly PF 312A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 202

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 302 - Junior Animation Workshop II

This course focuses on the creation of a personal, 1.5 minute animated piece, starting from initial conception and ending with final output to digital of film media. Stages in the production cycle include storyboarding, animatics, animation, inking and painting, sound image editing, and final output. Formerly PF 312B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 301

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 201 - Introduction to Film I

A hands-on introduction to the principles and techniques of media production: shooting 16mm film and digital video, developing a sensitivity to the nuances of movement, understanding lighting and exposure, composition, and the logic of editing. We also survey the historical and aesthetic development of the medium in order to expand the students' sense of the possibilities of the medium. Formerly PF 210A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Art Education - Graduate Concentration in Educational Media

The Concentration in Educational Media, as part of a Master of Arts in Art Education, is designed to prepare graduate students to use, plan, and manage technology in the K-12 art curriculum and classroom. Educational media are those digital tools and applications used for creative and instructional purposes within a K-12 classroom and school setting. The use of educational media, therefore, is not solely for developing creative expression in students, but also as a means to support the teaching and learning of K-12 art.

Candidates for this Concentration are students with a background and training in both technology and art who want to integrate the use of technology into the teaching of art. Students in the Master of Arts in Art Education program who complete this Concentration will serve as classroom art teachers integrating technology into their curriculum and practice, and as technology leaders in their school and district.

Requirements

A Master of Arts in Art Education major must complete a total of 12 credits in required core and elective courses in technology for a Concentration in Educational Media. The other remaining six credits may be elective courses that the student chooses to advance his or her study of technology.

In addition to these 12 credits toward a Concentration in Educational Media, the graduate thesis/project (six credits) will be directed toward research involving the use of technology in art education. Competencies and specific requirements for the Educational Media Concentration are the following:

Technology Competencies

To acquire the following basic competencies in technology, a student may take University technology courses, workshops, and tutorials, including those offered through the Continuing Studies Professional Institute for Educators. Based on a review of portfolio and approval by the Art Education Department, a graduate student may be excused from this requirement.

- Macintosh and Windows operating environments
- Navigation, menu, file management, and transfer and storage skills
- Productivity skills (word processing and spreadsheet)
- Navigational and information search and retrieval skills (Internet and World Wide Web)
- Electronic presentation skills (PowerPoint, etc.)
- Computer graphics knowledge, concepts, and skills (raster, vector, and Web graphics)

Required Core Courses

Two related semester courses form the required core of the concentration in Educational Media A: Teaching and Learning, and Educational Media B: Planning and Management. These two core courses are designed to be taken together as a year-long sequence. Educational Media A: Teaching and Learning focuses on the conceptual, curricular, and instructional approaches and strategies needed to integrate digital technologies into the K-12 art classroom. Educational Media B: Planning and Management examines the issues and topics related to designing technology environments for K-12 art education.

Concentration Requirements

- Elective: 6 cr

AEDU 621 - Educational Media A: Teaching and Learning Online

This online course provides students with the knowledge, skills, and strategies to successfully integrate educational media into the teaching and learning of K-12 art. Areas of study include theoretical and conceptual basis for educational technology, instructional practices and strategies, approaches to integrating technology into the curriculum, training and development of technology skills, such as computer graphics, Web page design, and electronic presentations; and issues and problems related to technology use in education. Formerly AE 507

Prerequisites & Notes

Computer literacy required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 622 - Educational Media B: Planning and Management Online

This online course addresses the design, planning, and management of educational media in the K-12 classroom and school. Topics include developing a technology plan; software and hardware acquisition and assessment; care, maintenance, and security of classroom and lab computer technologies; networking concepts, design, and protocols; Internet basics and issues; and managing technological and human resources. Online guest speakers support the study of these topics. Independent online visitations to either K-12 educational settings, technology fairs, conferences, or businesses. Formerly AE 509

Prerequisites & Notes

Computer literacy required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 695 - Graduate Project/Thesis

Culminating independent project supervised by a faculty advisor. The graduate project or thesis may take either of two distinct forms: a) an academic thesis presenting original research in a significant historical, theoretical, or pedagogical question relating to visual arts education, or b) a studio or curriculum project intended for use as a pedagogical tool. Formerly AE 649

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 602, AEDU 606, AEDU 610

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 - 6 cr

NOTE: AEDU 695 Graduate Project/Thesis may be taken as a six-credit block or in two three-credit blocks. To remain in good standing while the thesis is "in-progress", students may register for the thesis continuation fee for each semester they are not enrolled in coursework. Students must be registered for the semester in which they defend their thesis, and until the thesis is completed and bound copies are submitted to the Art Education Department.

Art Education - Master of Arts

Program Total Credits: 36

Coordinating professional education courses with work in liberal arts, graduate research, and a concentration in studio arts that include emerging digital and alternative media, the MA in Art Education Program offers custom designed programs of study to meet individual needs. A series of graduate education seminars address historical and contemporary issues in art theory, criticism, and education. Drawing on the wide range of studio departments, nearly one-third of the program is reserved for work in one or more studio areas, liberal arts, art therapy, or educational media depending upon the student's particular background and career needs. The independent thesis or graduate project, which is normally completed in two semesters, may take the form of either an academic research paper or a graduate project in an appropriate format.

Fall Credits: 12

AEDU 509 is required of students who do not pass the Art Education Department Writing Proficiency Exam. The exam must be taken and passed with a score of 80 percent or higher in the first semester of enrollment and it does not fulfill any credit requirements for the MA. If a student must take AEDU 509, his/her semester will include a total of 14 credits.

- Electives Credits: 6 cr

AEDU 509 - Professional Writing Intensive

This course is required for students entering all art education programs (pre-certification, MAT, MA, MA+EM) who have not passed the Art Education Department writing proficiency exam. It addresses the use of effective and cogent written communication for the teacher, artist, and administrator to classes, groups, or clients. Formerly AE 599

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

AEDU 606 - Research in Education: Methods and Trends

A graduate education seminar on principal approaches to research for art and museum education. The course examines types of research, applications and recent studies for their methodologies and findings, grant writing, and assessment techniques. Formerly AE 606

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Art Education and Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRAD 650 - University Seminar: Structure and Metaphor

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from the several graduate programs examine theoretical issues of structure and metaphor in relation to art and design. Topics include cognition and perception, meaning and representation, and systems of organization and expression. (May be taken to satisfy Aesthetics and Art Criticism co-requisites for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 691

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 12

AEDU 695 Graduate Project/Thesis may be taken as a six-credit block or in two three-credit blocks. To remain in good standing while the thesis is “in-progress,” students must register for the thesis continuation fee for each semester they are not enrolled in coursework. Students must be registered for the semester in which they defend their thesis, and until the thesis is completed and bound copies are submitted to the Art Education Department.

- Elective Credits: 3 cr

AEDU 602 - History of Ideas in Art and Museum Education

Seminar on major issues and trends in the history of art and museum education, with an emphasis on child-centered and content-centered theories and the theoretical antecedents of Discipline-Based Art Education, the Visual Culture movement, and standards-based education. Formerly AE 602

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Art Education and Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 695 - Graduate Project/Thesis

Culminating independent project supervised by a faculty advisor. The graduate project or thesis may take either of two distinct forms: a) an academic thesis presenting original research in a significant historical, theoretical, or pedagogical question relating to visual arts education, or b) a studio or curriculum project intended for use as a pedagogical tool. Formerly AE 649

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 602, AEDU 606, AEDU 610

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 - 6 cr

GRAD 651 - University Seminar: Art and Society

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from all graduate programs examine theoretical issues relating to the place of art and design in society. Topics include the social role of the artist/designer, public policy and the arts, issues of post-modernism, and aesthetic and ethical implications of emerging arts communication technologies. (May be taken to satisfy Sociology/Anthropology corequisite for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 692

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Fall Credits: 12

AEDU 695 Graduate Project/Thesis may be taken as a six-credit block or in two three-credit blocks. To remain in good standing while the thesis is “in-progress,” students must register for the thesis continuation fee for each semester they are not enrolled in coursework. Students must be registered for the semester in which they defend their thesis, and until the thesis is completed and bound copies are submitted to the Art Education Department.

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr
Please See the Liberal Arts Curriculum for Course Selection
- Elective Credits: 3 cr

AEDU 610 - Graduate Studio Seminar

A one-semester interdisciplinary seminar exclusively for art educators. Topics of broad concern to studio artists are addressed in response to students’ work, assigned readings, and occasional public lectures or other art events in the University and the community. Formerly AE 610

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 695 - Graduate Project/Thesis

Culminating independent project supervised by a faculty advisor. The graduate project or thesis may take either of two distinct forms: a) an academic thesis presenting original research in a significant historical, theoretical, or pedagogical question relating to visual arts education, or b) a studio or curriculum project intended for use as a pedagogical tool. Formerly AE 649

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 602, AEDU 606, AEDU 610

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 - 6 cr

Must take this course for 6 credits.

Art Education Pre-Certification Concentration

Sophomore Year Credits: 15

- Math Elective: 3 cr
- British/American Lit. Credits: 3 cr

AEDU 200 - Presentation Skills

This course addresses effective speech and presentation skills for the teacher, artist, and administrator communicating with groups, classes, or clients. Formerly AE 200

Credits: 1 cr, 2 hrs

AEDU 201 - Introduction to Visual Arts Education

A theoretical and practical introduction to the entire field of art education with an emphasis on studio processes. A survey of various aspects of teaching in a variety of situations and environments, through field observations and classroom lecture-discussions, including public and private schools K-12, as well as specialized and alternative settings in museum education, early childhood education, special education (for students with disabilities and gifted children), and adult education. Formerly AE 201

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 226 - SIFT: Fundamentals of Mathematics

An introduction to the fundamental mathematical principles and operations used in undergraduate courses in the physical and social sciences. Topics include sets, logic, probability, statistics, number theory, algebra and geometry. The course includes a module on scientific method which is common to all SIFT courses.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Open to all students. LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 871 - Child & Adolescent Psychology

This course is developmentally oriented and focuses on Erikson's psychosocial stages of life from birth to adolescence. Major topics include pregnancy, the birth process, and the physical, intellectual, emotional, and social development of the child. Family life and parent-child relationships are also examined, with particular attention given to the impact of our social institutions upon parents and children. Formerly HU 181A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Art Education, Art Therapy concentration and Dance Education.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

This course also counts toward the liberal arts core of the bachelor's degree

Junior Year Credits: 15

AEDU 533 - Art and Inclusionary Education

This course is designed to provide the full scope of methodologies, techniques and innovative strategies needed to teach special education students effectively. Using the arts as a means for adapting to diverse learning methods, the K-12 classroom is regarded as a dynamic setting for inclusionary learning. The impact of special needs art education is further realized through direct school and community engagement; programs and national as well as local organizations are made available to assist in developing field placements. Arranged field placement opportunities include a broad range of community resources. Formerly AE 533

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs field work (8 weeks)

AEDU 541 - Program Design & Methods: Elementary

Through review of current literature, lectures, discussion, field observation, and miniteaching, students explore various educational philosophies and develop and implement effective classroom curricula based on prevailing theories of learning and child development. Topics include management issues; interdisciplinary content and teaching of art; evaluation and assessment of teaching and learning; and the integration of digital technology. Formerly AE 547

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: AEDU 201

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs; 3 hrs field work (8 weeks)

This course has a required field placement.

AEDU 543 - Aesthetics and Art Criticism

This course is designed to develop skills, techniques, and strategies for integrating developmentally appropriate aesthetics and art criticism activities in the K-12 classroom. Using prevailing theories of learning, teaching, and child development, students will design puzzle cases, activities, and curricula that promote the philosophical investigation and interpretation of art and aesthetic objects. Formerly AE 549

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 830 - Modern Art

At the beginning of the twentieth century, artists responded to new technological forces and the pressures of mass culture in styles such as cubism, constructivism, and surrealism – styles that are still being explored by our contemporaries. The course surveys the period 1880-1980, emphasizing the continuity of the modern artist's situation and role. Formerly HU 357

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

(preferred) or a Discipline Art History

LASS 820 - Individual & Society

An examination how the individual person is related to society, considering the ways in which society is a separate reality that regulates and even defines the personality and identity of the individual person. After covering some introductory material on culture, definitions of situations, social location, socialization, and deviance, a few sociological works are examined in depth that discuss such subjects as street gangs, ethnicity, social mobility, suicide, morality instincts, and the nature of the self. How the individual can be free in the context of the constraints of society is a major issue addressed within the course. Formerly HU 162

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Senior Year Credits: 15

AEDU 509 - Professional Writing Intensive

This course is required for students entering all art education programs (pre-certification, MAT, MA, MA+EM) who have not passed the Art Education Department writing proficiency exam. It addresses the use of effective and cogent written communication for the teacher, artist, and administrator to classes, groups, or clients. Formerly AE 599

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

AEDU 542 - Program Design & Methods: Secondary

Students in this course will explore current educational “best practices” in the field of secondary art education. Focus areas for learning will include curriculum development, lesson planning, classroom leadership, collaborative learning, student assessment, learning environments, materials ordering, and time budgeting. Class structure includes weekly outside reading assignments, group discussions, methods demonstrations, studio production activities, reflective writing, and field observation. Formerly AE 548

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 541 or AEDU 560

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs; 8 hrs field work

This course has a required field placement.

AEDU 560 - Saturday Practicum

Students are involved in various aspects of the Saturday Arts Lab. They observe classroom instruction, plan and teach lessons, and exhibit student work under the supervision of cooperating master teachers and through the instruction of a professor in the seminar portion of the course. Formerly AE 559

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs field work (10 weeks)

This course has a required field placement.

Post-Baccalaureate Teacher Program Credits: 12

Students will not be allowed to student teach unless they have successfully completed AEDU 509 Professional Writing Intensive and the Instructional I PRAXIS tests: Reading, Writing, and Mathematics.

AEDU 503 - The Art of Teaching

Teacher preparation and knowledge of instructional techniques will be addressed, including professional image, teachers' rights and responsibilities, and aspects of group process. The course explores cultural and family factors that influence learning expectations conveyed by teachers and peer behavior and techniques of instruction and creativity. A retrospective analysis of each student's individual education experience and perceptions of teaching is explored through interactive simulation of classroom situations and teaching styles. May be taken during either the summer or spring semester. Formerly AE 552

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: AEDU 541

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 561 - Student Teaching: Elementary

An intensive, elementary-level field experience built around a seven-week student teaching internship, under the guidance and supervision of a highly qualified art teacher/mentor. It is intended to provide practical experience in which the intern assumes professional-level responsibilities and experiences in teaching art at the elementary level. A University supervisor observes, advises, facilitates the relationship between the mentor and intern, and assesses the student during the internship. AEDU 561 is taken concurrently with AEDU 565. (If students elect to take AEDU 561 one semester and AEDU 562 another semester, AEDU 565 must be taken both semesters.) Formerly AE 660

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 533, AEDU 541, AEDU 542, AEDU 560 Corequisite: AEDU 565

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 4 cr, hrs vary (7 weeks)

The two field placements may be taken over two semesters. If this option is elected, the full 15-week seminar that accompanies the field placement must be taken in both semesters.

AEDU 562 - Student Teaching: Secondary

An intensive, secondary-level field experience built around a seven-week student teaching internship, under the guidance and supervision of a highly qualified art teacher/mentor. It is intended to provide practical experience in which the intern assumes professional-level responsibilities and experiences in teaching art at the elementary level. A University supervisor observes, advises, facilitates the relationship between the mentor and intern, and assesses the student during the internship. AEDU 562 is taken concurrently with AEDU 565. (If students elect to take AEDU 562 one semester and AEDU 561 another semester, AEDU 565 must be taken both semesters.) Formerly AE 662

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 533, AEDU 541, AEDU 542, AEDU 560 Corequisite: AEDU 565

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 4 cr, hrs vary (7 weeks)

The two field placements may be taken over two semesters. If this option is elected, the full 15-week seminar that accompanies the field placement must be taken in both semesters.

AEDU 565 - Student Teaching Seminar: Elementary/Secondary

Discussion and analysis of: field experiences; special workshops; Literacy: Reading and Writing Across the Curriculum; Professional Teaching Portfolios; One-Year Curriculums for an Elementary and a Secondary Grade.

Continuing development and refinement of skills in reflective practice is emphasized as well as the needs of special learners. AEDU 565 is taken concurrently with AEDU 561 and AEDU 562. (If students elect to take AEDU 561 and AEDU 562 over two semesters, AEDU 565 Student Teaching Seminar must be taken both semesters.) Formerly AE 661

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 533, AEDU 541, AEDU 542, AEDU 560

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, 2 hrs

Required Studio Electives

Pre-Certification students should complete at least three upper-level credits in a two-dimensional medium if their major is in a three-dimensional area, and vice versa. Other studio work must include at least one course each in photography, computer with graphics applications, painting, drawing, ceramics, and printmaking. A non-Western art history is also required. AEDU 533, AEDU 541, AEDU 542, and AEDU 560 fulfill Art Education and studio elective requirements outside of the major program.

Art Therapy Concentration

LASS 871 - Child & Adolescent Psychology

This course is developmentally oriented and focuses on Erikson's psychosocial stages of life from birth to adolescence. Major topics include pregnancy, the birth process, and the physical, intellectual, emotional, and social development of the child. Family life and parent-child relationships are also examined, with particular attention given to the impact of our social institutions upon parents and children. Formerly HU 181A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Art Education, Art Therapy concentration and Dance Education.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 872 - Adult Psychology

An overview of adult stages of psychological development throughout early, middle and late adulthood. An eclectic variety of perspectives citing psychoanalytic, cognitive and humanistic orientations are considered.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Art Therapy concentration and Dance Education.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Junior Year Credits: 12

Fall Credits: 6

AETH 301 - Introduction to Art Therapy

Introduces students to key concepts and dimensions of the art therapy profession. Course content addresses the different orientations and approaches that comprise this discipline, as well as the diverse populations that are served. Art Therapists who work within a wide range of settings are invited to present to the class to balance the theoretical with the practical. Formerly AT 300

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LASS 871, LASS 872

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 973 - Abnormal Psychology

Historical perspectives, causal factors and treatments for types of mental disorders in adults and children including stress, panic, anxiety, mood and substance eating, cognitive and personality disorders. Schizophrenia, mental retardation, autism and behavioral disorders of childhood are also addressed. Theoretical systems relating to psychopathology including psychodynamic, social theories, cognitive as well as biological influences are explored.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LASS 871 or LASS 872 Priority enrollment to Art Therapy concentration.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 6

AETH 302 - Social and Group Process

Introduces students to a basic understanding of social groups, group behaviors, group therapy, and group art therapy. The class helps students to better identify their own role as well as that of others within a group setting. Experiential art tasks are used to underscore course material and exemplify group dynamics. Formerly AT 301

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: AETH 301

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AETH 304 - Theories and Techniques of Art Therapy with Children and Adolescents

Introduces students to the use of art therapy with children and adolescents, including the different arenas where art therapists work with children, as well as the various approaches that are utilized. Normal child development, as evidenced in artwork, serves as the foundation for understanding key concepts. Indicators of emotional, cognitive, and behavioral difficulties, as seen in art productions, are also presented. Formerly AT 304

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LASS 973, AETH 301

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Senior Year Credits: 9

Fall Credits: 6

AETH 303 - Theories and Techniques of Art Therapy with Adults

This course explores the practice of art therapy with adults as demonstrated through the use of case material from a variety of clinical populations. Overviews of diagnostic indicators as seen in artwork are presented. Issues of long- and short-term treatment are addressed, as well as a rich variety of interventions that are at the art therapists' disposal. Formerly AT 305

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: AETH 304

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 974 - Theories of Personality

Introduces the study of personality and how patterns of behavior, interaction, perception and response are understood by a broad variety of theorists. Questions of nature vs. nurture, whether the past impacts the present, and what defines mental health are discussed. Psychodynamic, cognitive, humanistic, and behavioral approaches are compared and contrasted. Formerly HU 483

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LASS 871 or LASS 872; and one additional course from: LASS 871, LASS 872, LASS 873, LASS 874, LASS 875, LASS 876, LASS 972, LASS 973, LASS 975, or MMDI 353 Priority enrollment to Art Therapy concentration.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 3

AETH 401 - Senior Practicum

A field placement provides an opportunity for the student to apply classroom knowledge to work within a specific clinical setting. A research paper, based on the experience, enables students to integrate theory with observation and practice. This practicum includes on-site individual supervision by an art therapist, as well as a small group supervision on campus with the Art Therapy faculty. Formerly AT 401

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AETH 303, LASS 974

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 921 - Dynamic Anatomy

The structure of the body as it relates to form (size, shape, and proportion) and support (posture, position, and movement). In-depth exploration of the location, orientation, and actions of the major muscle groups, joints, and bones, and how they differ by gender through the life cycle. Formerly HU 281

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Dance.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Book Arts Minor

This minor emphasizes the development of skills related to designing and creating books, incorporating both type and imagery. Instruction in image-making in multiples through printmaking processes, basic typesetting techniques, and introductory bookbinding methods are studied. Fine Arts-Printmaking majors may not declare a Book Arts minor.

Requirements for the Minor

FAPR 233 - Bookbinding Methods

A workshop class familiarizing the student with the characteristics and handling qualities of materials used in various book structures. Structures covered include pamphlet binding, multi-signature books, clamshell boxes, portfolios, accordion structures, and oriental binding. Emphasis is placed upon both the use of conservationally sound materials and the use of these structures as vehicles for the student's creative expression. Formerly PR 223

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors and minors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPR 234 - Book Arts: Structures

Historical book forms serve as models as well as a departure point for innovative new work. Students are made familiar with traditional binding techniques, encouraged to explore new applications and to experiment by combining images and text into unique book structures. Among the structures presented are signature binding, Japanese binding, accordion structure, pop-up structures, and tunnel books. May serve as a follow-up course for those who have completed PR233. Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors and minors. Formerly PR 224

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPR 304 - Book Arts: Concept and Structure

An opportunity to explore the integration of type and relief image in unique and editioned book structures. Hands-on experience in dealing with composition (metal) type and computer typesetting is on an intermediate level. Relief printing, photopolymer plates, color reduction printing, and related traditional and contemporary methods of multiple image making are pursued. Special emphasis on development of a personal visual language. Formerly PR 307

Prerequisites & Notes

Students must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits). Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors and minors; and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 434 - Book Production

This advanced course focuses on the development and production of a printed book or portfolio of works: design and formatting of a publication including the investigation of sequence, page design, and binding possibilities; hands-on experience in the preparation of images for press production, pre-press techniques; and assisting the Master Printer in the printing. All work is produced in the Borowsky Center for Publication Arts, the University's offset lithography facility. Students may choose to collaborate on projects or work independently. Formerly PR 425

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the College of Art and Design only. Student must have completed the first semester of their Sophomore year (45 credits). May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5-3 cr

Select one of the following two:

FAPR 201 - Relief/Monotype

Introduction to the graphic and expressive qualities of woodcut, linoleum, and collograph processes printed in monochrome and color. Monoprinting with direct drawing and painting on Plexiglass and metal plate are also explored. Formerly PR 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors. Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

or

FAPR 204 - Screenprint/Etching

The graphic qualities of expression in screenprinting and etching/intaglio are presented through historic and contemporary examples and demonstration of the methods, which convey ideas in these two media. Various stencil processes from direct-drawn to photographic and computer-generated are explored in screenprinting with water-based opaque and transparent inks. Handwork on the metal plate includes drawn drypoint, etching, and tonal processes. Emphasis is placed on the understanding of the qualities of these methods and the development of personal ideas. Formerly PR 204

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors. Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following two:

FAPR 323 - Intro to Offset Lithography

Students are offered a hands-on course that develops skills in image preparation and printing techniques using offset lithography. An emphasis is placed on personal imagery where both hand-drawn and photographic methods of image making are investigated. Formerly PR 326

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors and minors. Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 1.5 - 3 cr
or

FAPR 411 - Digital Printmaking

This course offers the students an opportunity for continued investigation within the various printmaking processes. Photoshop is introduced with an emphasis on using the computer as an imagemaking tool within the context of printmaking. The emphasis is on the integration of idea and process. Graduate students may register for this course under GRPR 633. Formerly PR 412

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors; Book Arts and Digital Fine Arts minors. Computer literacy required. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Book Arts/Printmaking - Master of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 60

The Book Arts/Printmaking program is individually tailored to each student's interests and experience, and encourages the development of new concepts, while offering proficiency in both traditional and contemporary processes. The core program of bookbinding and printmaking courses is augmented by investigations into related fields of study in studio arts and colloquia and seminars on art and the book. Courses in the first semester intersect, reflecting the integration of skills and concepts integral to book arts. Through both years, students are encouraged to work on their writing. The second year concentrates on the MFA Thesis Exhibition under the supervision of an advisory committee. Students frequently choose to use their elective credits for internships in professional laboratories and organizations and are welcome as interns in many prestigious conservation labs.

Year One Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 1.5 cr

GRPR 601 - Colloquium: Text & Image

The focus is on the development of the student's sensitivity to language and verbal constructs and an understanding of the relation of text to image and structure. CMAC Discovery Year

The Discovery Year

A first-year program in the College of Media and Communication, the Discovery Year provides students with an excellent opportunity to explore media and communication before deciding on a major in Communication, Multimedia, or Writing for Film & Television. During the year, they are introduced to the principles and skills that media makers must know through courses taken in video production, visual communication, interface design, writing, and storytelling.

In addition to these courses, students also take Liberal Arts courses each semester as required by the University core and have the option of taking at least one elective course.

Designed to provide its students with an introduction to the concepts and skills of media used in all of the programs offered by the college, the CMAC Discovery Year is ideally suited for students interested in a broad overview of media and communication who have yet to decide on a major focus. Students, who already have decided on their focus, should apply for admission to one of the college's majors – Communication, Multimedia, or Writing for Film & Television – since that will provide them the chance to take more electives and start minors earlier in their course of study.

Declaring a Major

The college provides each student with an advisor who helps the student decide upon the major that is best for him or her. Each semester, in advance of the University's registration period, the college also holds special advising sessions to explain the majors in detail, supplemented by departmental meetings intended to give students in the Discovery Year the opportunity to talk to students already in the majors. During the year, students meet with their advisors on a regular basis to discuss their work and their career goals and interests. In addition, through course crits and reviews, students have a chance over the year to talk to faculty about their work and to assess their potential for success in the various majors.

To declare a major, students must complete a Declaration of Major form, which must be signed by the student and the director of the proposed major. Students can declare a major as early as November of their first year but must declare their major before registering for the fall semester of their second year. Failure to do so may extend their stay at the University.

CMAC Opportunities and Facilities

The college sponsors a number of clubs and publications – most of which are student run and all of which are open to first-year students. They allow students to explore and create outside the classroom in a number of different media – Webzines, Web-based radio, Web television, and several print publications.

The College of Media and Communication is housed in a state-of-the-art media environment, which includes a multifunctional production studio; a sound studio; digital labs for audio and video editing; multimedia studios that provide Mac, PC, and Unix-based operating systems and industry-standard software; a MIDI studio; and a black-box production space, as well as a wireless environment that supports collaboration and independent work.

The College's Equipment Room offers CMAC students the opportunity to borrow the most current portable video, audio, and photographic equipment. The College's galleries, interactive kiosks, and virtual window provide students ample opportunities to display their work.

Discovery Year: 30 Credits

Students may take up to 3 additional credits of Electives in the Discovery Year.

Fall Credits: 15

CMMC 102 - Video Production Workshop

Acquaints students with the fundamentals of visual storytelling by providing hands-on experience translating the written word into images and sounds. Areas of study include framing images, lighting, using off-screen space and sound, editing, and postproduction. Students integrate their own writing to produce some of these projects. Formerly CM 290

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication, Writing for Film and Television, and Theater Management and Production majors and Web Drama minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 101 - Visual Communication Studio

All communication takes place through language. However, not all language uses words. This course allows students to harness the power of visual language in order to convey messages and meaning. The elements of drawing and two-dimensional design that are covered include point, line, shape, composition, texture, color, type, and image. Although non-digital mediums are addressed, the exploration of digital tools for the screen is a primary goal. Individual creativity is stressed. Formerly MM 110

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 111 - Dramatic Structure I

An intensive year-long writing course that introduces students to major principles of the three-act dramatic structure found in narrative screenplays. Topics of the course include sequences, creation of character, conflict, and setting. Students are required to complete focused and specific creative written work on a weekly basis. Workshops are held on a weekly basis. Formerly WM 113

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Writing for Film and Television and Discovery Year majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

Select one of the following:

CMMC 353 - Media Industries

This course investigates the range of organizations and economic forces involved in media production. Includes diverse production models, from mainstream and corporate, to public sector, to alternative, and comparisons with media industries in other cultural settings. The course focuses on business and policy issues and considers examples of media practice from broadcast and cable news, advertising, Hollywood and independent cinema, public media, and new media industries. The course includes a final research project. Formerly CM 260

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to College of Media and Communication students.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 141 - Collaboration and Spontaneity

Through a series of exercises, class discussions, and readings, students explore what it means to work as part of a team. Students learn to develop environments in which the creative process is encouraged to unfold. The basic assumptions that affect the formation of collaborative groups, such as personal responsibility, authority relations, leadership issues, individual differences, competition, the development of norms, and the generation and uses of power, are experienced, explicated, and examined. Students work within this collaborative environment to explore the connections between spontaneous verbal and nonverbal communication. Formerly MM 150

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 141 - Storytelling: Theory and Practice

This course introduces students to storytelling as a way of structuring communication. Course material ranges from annual reports to ad campaigns to greeting cards to rap music to political campaigns, offering students an introduction to the many ways narrative can be exploited for a powerful effect. Students learn to apply theory and to explore the relationship of different types of media to different narrative forms. Formerly CMMC 141.

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 111 - Introduction to Interface Design

The software interface represents the focal point of user interaction with the various modes of multimedia communication. Readings by interface theorists inform discussions on the evolution of the software interface, conceptual models, prototypes, interaction design, deliverables, and basic concepts of human-computer interaction.

Avenues for pursuing interactive media design in entertainment, publishing, and education are also addressed. Current technologies, including the trend from soft to hard interfaces are studied, in terms of their potential short- and long-term influence on communication and multimedia. Basic methods for rapid prototyping and testing are considered. Formerly MM 121

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one of the following:

WRIT 112 - Dramatic Structure II

An intensive year-long writing course that introduces students to major principles of the three-act structure found in narrative screenplays. Focus on such topics as act design, creation of character, conflict, and setting. Students will be required to complete major written work and participate in workshops of written material. Formerly WM 114

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Writing for Film and Television majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 252 - Narrative Cinema II

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 252

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 253 - History of Television

Provides an overview of the medium of television. The impact of television since its inception has become increasingly pervasive and has influenced an entire society through its ability to educate and entertain. Video examples of the medium are supplemented by class discussion and reading assignments. Formerly WM 253

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to CMAC majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

CMAC Core/Discipline History

Select one of the following:

CMMC 353 - Media Industries

This course investigates the range of organizations and economic forces involved in media production. Includes diverse production models, from mainstream and corporate, to public sector, to alternative, and comparisons with media industries in other cultural settings. The course focuses on business and policy issues and considers examples of media practice from broadcast and cable news, advertising, Hollywood and independent cinema, public media, and new media industries. The course includes a final research project. Formerly CM 260

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to College of Media and Communication students.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 141 - Collaboration and Spontaneity

Through a series of exercises, class discussions, and readings, students explore what it means to work as part of a team. Students learn to develop environments in which the creative process is encouraged to unfold. The basic assumptions that affect the formation of collaborative groups, such as personal responsibility, authority relations, leadership issues, individual differences, competition, the development of norms, and the generation and uses of power, are experienced, explicated, and examined. Students work within this collaborative environment to explore the connections between spontaneous verbal and nonverbal communication. Formerly MM 150

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 141 - Storytelling: Theory and Practice

This course introduces students to storytelling as a way of structuring communication. Course material ranges from annual reports to ad campaigns to greeting cards to rap music to political campaigns, offering students an introduction to the many ways narrative can be exploited for a powerful effect. Students learn to apply theory and to explore the relationship of different types of media to different narrative forms. Formerly CMMC 141.

CMMC 201 - Media Forms and Concepts I

First of a two-semester exploration of media forms through the perspective of genre, structure, and representation, combining analysis and media production. Students are exposed to mainstream and alternative media and focus on issues of form (i.e., time, space, point of view, etc.) and social context (i.e., cross-cultural representation, stereotyping, the portrayal of gender and sexuality, the representation of violence, etc.) in order to observe how media forms create cultural meanings. Students develop an analytical framework and practical language for talking about media and an understanding of how production practices and audience expectations combine to affect the structure of media forms. Students approach these topics in media representation through creative work in documentary, journalism, and advertising using digital video, audio, still images, and the Web. Formerly CM 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

CMMC 401 - Communication - Senior Studio I

In this project based, two-semester sequence (CMMC 401 & CMMC 402), students work on the development of their own presentation-quality hybrid project, combining aspects of their two chosen application areas (documentary video, digital journalism, narrative video, screenwriting, advertising, game design and web design). Students research and develop project proposals in the fall semester, and begin production work. They continue this work in the spring semester, resulting in a polished piece of video, audio, print or digital form. Students write reflective pieces about their production experience in light of theoretical and contemporary issues, and complete the yearlong course with a portfolio/reel of their creative work. Formerly CM 461

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: Completion of two application areas
Open to Communication majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

CMMC 499 - Communication Internship

Professional internship with a media organization or producer. Student needs to gain approval for internships from an advisor, meet periodically for supervisory discussions, and complete a short, reflective essay at the end of the internship. Formerly CM 499
